MECHANICAL FLIGHT

Interesting Talk Before the Men's Club of Newton Highlands

Before the Men's Club, St. Paul's Newton Highlands, Wednesday night, Mr. J. Emery Harriman of Brookline delivered his lecture on Mechanical Flight. He first demonstrated the method used by the Wright Bros. in solving the problem of Equilibrium by the flexing of the rears extremities of the wings in combination with rudder appliances for steering. As an alternate method of accomplishing this he demonstrated his own device of an overhead wing, centrally located with an umbrella-like handle that instinctively influences the machine upward, downward, to the right or left, by a one arm movement of the operator without any wing flexing or rudder steering.

He also demonstrated the natural movements in bird flight of raising the wings above the body during descent for the purpose of gaining stability and maintaining balance and equilibrium during flight. He first illustrated his theories of natural and mechanical flight with chalk drawings, going quite deeply into an analysis of natural flight with the construction of the bird's body in reference to its wings, head, tail and legs. He claimed that the wings themselves were used only in the accomplishment of flight, while the head, tail, body and legs in their many movements were used in the guidance of flight in maintenance of stability and equilibrium.

After illustrating natural flight to a considerable extent, he showed designs of a machine closely conforming to the points brought out and advanced theories in reference thereto that were Newtonian in scope. The one great theory that Mr. Harriman has advanced is that "There can be no inherent stability during propelled flight," and that during propelled flight the machine is a projectile and may twist on its travelling axis; that, like the bicycle, it may be maintained in equilibrium and balance by manipulation of wing areas and weights and resistances. He pointed out that a boat has stability, whereas a flying machine, is balanced in equilibrium during forward motion, and both fall when the forward motion ceases.

He further showed that the experiments in the problem of mechanical flight have endeavored to solve the problem of stability as a moving or live machine with non-stop motor, the impracticability of which theory, has been demonstrated, thousands of accidents resulting in more than 500 deaths, whereas Mr. Harriman claims the problem should be attacked as a dead machine in the air, with its motor stopped, and the only way of gaining stability under such conditions would be by the upraising of the wings as in natural flight, thereby placing the weights far below them and bringing the machine to earth similar to a parachute.

During his lecture he illustrated mechanical flight with about 175 stereoscopic views, showing the progress from its infancy to the present time, even covering the flying machine as now used in the European war. He claimed that history of the present war will show that the value of a single aeroplane may be estimated in figures running into the millions and even into the billions, for, according to the reports of General Joffre, he warned General French to make the resisting retreat before the powerful forward movement of the German army, as his aeroplane scouts had reported 3 corps of the Germans advancing on the English. Without this notice, making possible the wonderful resisting retreat, the taking of Paris was more than probable, and the consequences could be estimated in billions, if the penalty of the loss of Paris to the Germans in 1870 be used as a criterion.

He showed that a transatlantic machine would have been designed with adaptability to travel on sea, land, and in the air, as its initial start with operators and supplies must necessarily be from the land, with ultimate return to the land, and provisions should be made for resting and travelling on the water at any desired time. He thoroughly illustrated the dirigible or propelled gas bag; pointed out that, in its present form, it was not by any means adaptable to resting or travelling on land or water, and showed as a solution for making it adaptable to sea, land and air, his patents for pivotally connecting two dirigibles, with the operating car and propellers midway between and away from danger of gas ignition, and with central pull by propellers. The dirigibles are further connected together with aeroplane surfaces which lift twenty-five to thirty per cent of the weight after forward motion shall have been attained. Mr. Harriman has lectured on Mechanical Flight for the last ten years, having given his first lecture in May, 1904, before the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, and before the Society of Arts, M. I. T. He has received patents in England, France and Germany and was recently granted forty-two additional claims to his patents already issued in the United States.

A NEW RECORD

A new record for an open amateur golf tourney was established last Friday and Saturday at the Albemarle Golf Club, when 169 entries were recorded, and the club officials believe that fully 200 would have been out had weather conditions been a little more satisfactory.

M. P. Graham of the home club, the Waltham High School boy, captured the prize for the best gross with a 74. Raymond Olmest, Woodland, got the second best gross, one stroke behind Graham, while John H. Sullivan, Jr., Woodland, had the third best score.

W. L. Woodman, Newton, captured the prize for the best net, and the players tied for second and third best net.

R. C. Lehan, Commonwealth, won the best selected nine holes, with a 33, and J. H. Sullivan, Jr., Commonwealth, F. P. Lee, Framingham, C. W. Huntington, P. Schofield, J. L. McKeon, H. H. Cook and H. A. Roark, all of the home club, tied for the greatest number of 8s, each having five.

BEAUTIFUL DAHLIAS

Brilliant Exhibition of These Fall Flowers On Farlow Hill

Now that the winds are beginning to blow off the leaves and the days becoming shorter and colder, we feel that the glory of summer has departed. Not so on Farlow Hill, Newton. There spring is holding high carnival in brilliant array. Dahlias! dahlias! dahlias! Thousands of them. Over two thousand bulbs were planted the first of June with inspiring results. Here in one of the choicest locations in Newton, encircled by the deep green of trees for a background, is this gorgeous field of color.

For the first impression, the visitor had better stand at the top of the hill and overlook the color masses before examining the individual plants. The bulbs have been planted in long rows with wide intervening lanes which permit a person to walk through to study the coloring and shape of each flower. All varieties are labeled so if one admires a particularly fine white bloom he may read, "Yvonne Cayeux" or "Riesene Edelweiss," or a pink "Corallina" or "Yellow gem" or the immense red "Mammoth" and the still darker crimson with its deep glooms labeled, "Aunt Chloe." "Fireburst" attracts the eye by its large scarlet blossoms and W. W. Rawson is interesting in its cup-like shaped petals and dainty lavender color.

One hardly recognizes these aristocratic flowers with their velvety and satiny texture and ravishing color as relatives of the stiff dahlias of old-fashioned gardens. Here are the wonderful cacti varieties with the narrow petals, suggesting chrysanthemums, and other larger, curled petals until one finds the very large open petals of the single dahlias. The visitor is impressed by the uniform size and quantity of blossoms on each plant, some of the flowers measuring eight inches across. The number of blooms on each plant has not been sacrificed to size by pinching off side buds to allow the strength of the plant to go into one central large bloom as is done for chrysanthemum exhibitions.

The dahlias are not allowed to bloom during the summer as the heat and dryness would produce small flowers and these large splendid blossoms are all the more appreciated in the fall when the gardens are wanting.

Mr. George A. Rawson, a well-known citizen of Newton started his dahlia hobby on a small scale, eight years ago and has gradually enlarged his space to this large "field of glory" which annually attracts hundreds of visitors from all parts of the country, one being from the Sandwich Islands. By actual count, over three hundred persons visited the display one Sunday and yet it is unknown to many is proved by the surprise of a near-by, old resident when he discovered it.

The bulbs are imported, a few new varieties being tried each year and if they prove satisfactory, a larger order is given the following year with additional new varieties to test and the interest grows. For the next two weeks, the dahlias will be at their height and well worth a visit.

AGED CLERGYMAN DEAD

Rev. Dr. A. Judson Padelford Passes Away At Newton Centre

Rev. A. Judson Padelford, D. D., a retired Baptist minister, died Monday at his residence at 21 Chase street, Newton Centre, at the age of eighty-three years.

Dr. Padelford was born in Galway, N. Y., in 1831. He was graduated from Rochester University in 1860 and from the Rochester Theological Seminary in 1862. His first pastorate was the First Baptist Church in Fall River. He later became pastor of the Fourth Baptist Church in Providence and of the First Baptist Church in Amherst. Several years later he accepted the pastorage of the Portland Street Baptist Church, Haverhill, where he remained for eight years, and then became pastor of the Baptist Church in Calais, Me., where he remained for thirty-two years, resigning four years ago at the age of seventy-nine years.

Dr. Padelford is survived by two sons, Rev. Frank W. Padelford, educational secretary for the Baptists of the United States, and Frederick M. Padelford, head of the department of English at the State University in Washington.

Funeral services were held from his late home on Wednesday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Galusha Anderson of Newton Centre, an old friend and classmate of Dr. Padelford, and Rev. Willard E. Waterbury of the Massachusetts Baptist Missionary Society.

Four pallbearers were Rev. H. A. Heath of Boston, Rev. George R. Baker of Leominster, Rev. M. W. Schuh of Westboro and Rev. W. E. Waterbury of Boston, all close friends of Rev. Frank W. Padelford, son of the deceased clergyman. The body was taken for burial to Albion, N. Y., which was Mrs. Padelford's native place.

POSTPONED UNTIL NOVEMBER 2ND
The Public Service Commission has again held up the proposed new rate of schedule of the Boston & Middlesex Street Railway Company, pending its decision with respect to the petition of the street railway company to increase its fares from 5 to 6 cents and to charge for transfer privileges.

Under a former order of the board the new schedule was suspended until Oct. 1. The new order of the board suspends the proposed new schedule until Nov. 2. Meantime it is expected that the board will hand down its decision as to the proposed fare increase.

Well Known Newton Resident Gives His Impressions of the War in Europe

London, September 8th, 1914.

To the Editor:

Dear Sir:

During my annual visits to Europe in the last twenty years, I have been greatly impressed with the preparations everywhere for war. The question, "Why is this?" has always been answered by both English and French—"We are afraid of Germany." Asking of Germans, the answer has always been vague but with a tinge of ambition running through it, as shown by the practice of the Germans always at their public dinners of drinking to "Ded Tag" (the day). That is, the day of German domination of Europe. This idea was so preposterous to me, that I set it aside as unthinkable, as too awful in its accomplishment to be considered, and tried to think, as probably many others have thought, that with the inevitable breaking up of the Austrian Empire, when the old Emperor dies, that Germany would seize the western portion and get an outlet to the Adriatic by thus gaining the port of Trieste, and also that she might absorb Holland, thus securing an outlet to the west which she does not now possess because the ports of Hamburg and Bremen are so difficult of access. The extension of Germany's possessions thus to the south and to the west seemed the only adequate reason for her immense army and navy; the former to acquire and the latter to hold what had been acquired.

The overbearing attitude of the Germans has been growing the past few years to a noticeable extent, so much so that it has been quite unpleasant at times for tourists travelling in Germany, and we know how during our Spanish war the German navy was a thorn in the flesh to our Admiral Dewey at Manila; and apparently for no other reason than a desire to have a hand in everything that is going on and to show their importance, a vain assumption having taken possession of them. Had not a feeling existed of the impossibility of Germany trying to dominate Europe in the very same way that Napoleon tried to do so, people would have been more awake to the real situation.

The present generation of Germans has never seen war; but war has been preached to them and their young men have been trained to it for the past forty years. England and France, notwithstanding protests of taxpayers, have been preparing for defence, but in the hearts of the people of those two countries there has been the belief that they would not be directly attacked. But Germany during this forty years has been preparing to begin where Napoleon left off just one hundred years ago, and to do what he failed to do; that is, conquer Europe, a state of mind on their part one is forced to accept as the result of present conditions. In the past we have admired German methods of thought and their great achievements in science, and our colleges in America have all been copying German methods more or less, but the teaching of German professors in Germany has been all towards a glorification of force and of science instead of ideals and morality. The most powerful intellects in Germany, and especially in Prussia, have devoted themselves for many years past to teaching in schools and colleges the gospel of aggressive force, of which General von Bernhardi's book "Germany and the Next War" has been the most brutal expression. Treitschke, perhaps the most influential of their professors, and who stands for German modern thought, has taught a violent hatred of Britain and France, a hatred that seems to know no bounds and which teaches that in war every sentiment of humanity must be obliterated, and that the perpetration of the cruelties of savages are not only permissible but obligatory, to the end that the enemy may be paralyzed.

So though I did not expect war, because of its terrible results when using modern science, Germany has taught war because she saw success as the result of her advances in science, and has brought up her young men to think that might makes right. On no other hypothesis can one understand her bringing on war at this time.

The evidence is that Germany pushed Austria to war with Serbia, Russia said she must stand by Serbia, and France said she would stand by Russia. Then Germany demanded permission to march across Belgium to get at France, and when Belgium refused said she would go across anyway and proceeded to go, having her army ready on the spot. England demanded to know why Germany was violating her solemn treaty obligations in crossing Belgium, and Germany said, "What is a scrap of paper?" to stop us when war is before us. The very fact that she could hurl a big army so quickly at France shows that she intended war and was standing armed. Had not Belgium heroically opposed Germany at Liege, the German troops would have been in Paris before this.

So for the past month the war has been on. England had to fight beside France, for after all it is England and what England stands for that Germany is fighting against, the idea of government by the consent of the governed. It has come to me as a great shock, this low standard of German morals. My former opinion was based on their professions of altruism and peace, but the stubborn facts all point in the other direction, and the drunkenness of their great success since 1871 has so warped their vision that they are

EDITORIAL

While the opening of the new subway tomorrow will give residents far better transportation facilities than at present, the change to be made in the service between Nonantum and Harvard squares, will probably cause considerable criticism and loud protest from those in the habit of traveling in that direction. The Elevated Company is making an effort to improve the congested conditions in Nonantum square by removing the present Harvard square cars and starting them from the Watertown car barn
thus requiring passengers travelling in that direction to use the Newton-Brighton cars to that point and transfer there to the inward bound car.
This additional transfer will undoubtedly turn the stream of travel into Boston by way of Brighton instead of thru Cambridge, and its effect will be watched with interest.

The removal of the Harvard square cars from Nonantum square will also relieve to some extent the congestion at that point, but it will probably prove the contention maintained in these columns in the past that the real obstruction in Nonantum square is caused by the cars of the Middlesex and Boston Co.

Peace Sunday will be generally observed in this city on October 4th in accordance with the proclamation of the President. Let us hope that the efficacy of prayer may be conclusively
proved on this occasion.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

By Virgil O. Strickler, C.S. of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church

A large audience listened to the lecture of Mr. Virgil O. Strickler on Christian Science at Players' Hall last evening evidencing the interest taken in this subject by Newton and Waltham people. The lecturer was introduced by the First Reader of the Church, Mrs. George H. Moore, as follows:

The teachings of Christian Science have brought to the world a renewal and a restatement of the gospel of the Prince of Peace. Its message should be doubly welcome at this time if for no other reason than that Christian Science has become one of the most vital influences for the ultimate peace and unity of mankind that the world has yet seen. The attack of Christian Science is directed against the very foundations of human discord; it is displacing the spirit of intolerance and hate, of strife and bitterness and fear from the hearts of men and is substituting therefor an intelligent confidence in the overruling power of divine Principle. Christian Science is thereby enabling men to live at peace
not only with God and their fellows,
but what is even more significant, it qualifies man to live at peace with himself.

Mr. Strickler said:
It is undeniable that Christian Science has healed many sick people and has brought about the regeneration of many who were the victims of sin.
Among its membership are those who have been healed of intemperance, of so-called chronic and organic diseases, as well as of mental diseases, and the use of hypnotism, mental suggestion, drugs or any material means, and
entirely through the application of the spiritual and metaphysical teachings
of Christian Science.

In every case of Christian Science healing, whether the disease was chronic or acute, physical or mental,
the cure was brought about without the use of hypnotism, mental suggestion, drugs or any material means, and
entirely through the application of the spiritual and metaphysical teachings
of Christian Science.

The healing of the sick, however, is not the primary purpose of Christian Science. According to the teachings of this Science all sickness and disease result from error and false belief, which are summarized as sin, and when the error of belief is destroyed by the truth which Christian Science imparts, the disease disappears. Christian Science, therefore, teaches that the cause of all disease and sin is mental, and not physical, and that both sin and disease may be cured by one and the same means, namely, by the substitution of spiritual truth in place of error and false belief in the human consciousness.

Peace Sunday will be generally observed in this city on October 4th in accordance with the proclamation of the President. Let us hope that the efficacy of prayer may be conclusively
proved on this occasion.

If a thing is not, in fact, true, no amount of sincerity on the part of the believer can ever make it true. No engineer ever arrived at a correct result, no matter how sincerely he may have believed that his processes were correct, if they were not so in fact.

With respect to many things it may be unimportant whether the thing believed is true or not, but with respect to the things that people believe about God, and about themselves, and about their relationship to God, they are vital, because it will be shown that the things believed with respect to these matters, become laws that are binding upon the believer.

God

In trying to ascertain what constitutes religion the very first subject to be considered is that which relates to God. Every one who has a correct understanding of God is essentially as the foundation of religion. Any system of religious teaching that is founded upon an imperfect or errorneous conception of God must necessarily fail to bring to its adherents the help and comfort for which they seek.
When we look about us and see the splendid fidelity of men and women to their religious beliefs, and how much suffering and failure they experience, and how far short they become of attaining the good which they so honestly seek, it is a fair deduction that there is something wrong about their understanding of God.

No offense will be given, therefore,
by the statement that the average person has a very indefinite and erroneous conception of God. If you were to ask a dozen people to tell you who and what God is, you would get a dozen different answers. There are some who think God is a person. How many people there are who, when they kneel down and close their eyes, and reverently pray to God, have in mind a person, or a form, or an image, to which they pray. And how many others there are who think of God as a being of anger and resentment, who sends failure and suffering to those who displease him? And are there not a great many others who think of God
as a being who lives in a far-off country called Heaven, and that it is necessary for people to die and go there, in order to see him?

These are a few of the incorrect beliefs which people entertain about God. When it is remembered that Jesus has said that it is the knowledge of the truth that shall make men free, in the face of such confusion of belief about him, it is strange that people are sick and that they die? Is it not apparent that what humanity needs is a demonstrable understanding of God in place of theoretical and speculative beliefs about him?

Yet, all the while that people have gone on believing these erroneous things about God, the Bible statements concerning him have been perfectly plain. The Bible says, for instance, that God is Love, and since He is infinite, He must be infinite Love. Christian Science says, therefore, that infinite Love cannot be the author of evil, either in the form of sickness or sin, and that, no matter what one may think about evil, it must be accounted for in some other way than as being a part of the creation of God. Now, note the significance of that statement,
for if God did not create evil, and if it manifest that He could not have created it, then it follows absolutely that evil is not eternal. For whatever God created must be eternal like Himself,
and if God were the creator of evil,
then evil would be eternal, and, hence,
indestructible.

Christian Science presents a scientific method for the destruction of evil.
No matter in what form it may present itself to the individual, whether as sickness, sin, unhappiness, sorrow or distress, Christian Science says, that since it is evil, it may be destroyed and that the destroyer of evil in every case is Truth, precisely as Jesus has declared. Wherever you find a Christian Scientist, therefore, you will find a person who is honestly striving to destroy evil out of his or her experience by means of the scientific method which Christian Science presents.
While it may be true that no one, thus far, but Jesus, has been able to make a perfect demonstration over evil, yet every one will concede that Christian Scientists have, at least, made some progress, and have succeeded, to some extent, in destroying both sickness and sin for themselves and others.

The Bible further discloses that God not only is Love, but is also omnipresent. If that is so, then He is everywhere, for that is what the word means. He fills all space, and in one place in precisely the same degree as in every other place. Does that not lift one's thought above the concept of a limited God? And is it not plain that so long as people believe in a limited God, who is limited as to His form, dwelling place, or goodness, they will continue to suffer from limitations —limitations with respect to life and the duration thereof, health, strength, mental capacity, success, love, spirituality and every good thing? Christian Science makes plain that humanity can hope to be emancipated from the curse of limitations in any and all of these directions when men and women shall have given up their false beliefs about a limited God, and shall have learned the truth concerning His nature and character.

Upon one occasion they asked Jesus to tell them when the Kingdom of God would come, and he made an answer that has proved to be a stumbling block to many people from that day to this. He said, in substance, that the Kingdom of God is not a place that you can see with observation; it is not a place that you can say, Lo here it is, or Lo there it is, for behold, he said, the Kingdom of God is within
you. If that statement is true, then it follows absolutely that the Kingdom of God, or the Kingdom of Heaven, must be a state of consciousness, and not a locality. Then is it not plain that the further people go in the belief that the Kingdom of God, or the Kingdom of Heaven, is a locality, and that it is necessary for people to die and go there in order to become citizens of that kingdom, in reality the further they are alienating themselves from it? And the more sincerely they believe that sort of thing, the more their sincerity will stand as a barrier to prevent their progress towards that kingdom.

Christian Science, therefore, pleads
for a rational and demonstrable understanding of God in place of theoretical and speculative beliefs about Him.

Prayer

Another subject that enters into the religious life of all people is that of prayer. Since prayer is the medium through which the connection is established between the human and the divine, it is, therefore, of great importance for every person to find out what constitutes true prayer. What are its characteristics, what is its nature, and how it may be employed as a means to bring to the one who prays with certainty the blessings which the Scriptures say shall come as a result of true prayer.

It is stated in the fifth chapter of James that "The prayer of faith shall save the sick." There is no ambiguity in that language. It is not indefinite or uncertain in any particular. It is, in fact, as positive and direct as a statement can be made with human language. And yet, it would seem that one of two things must necessarily be true, either that statement in the Scriptures is wholly false, or else people have not known how to make the proper use of faith throughout the centuries. Except in very particular instances, the sick have not been saved as the result of prayer. It, therefore, becomes a subject for legitimate inquiry
in order that it may be determined,
if possible, whether or not that statement in the Scriptures is true. Many people ask if Christian Scientists pray, and how Christian Science prayer differs from that of other churches, and it will doubtless prove both interesting and helpful if the difference is explained.

It can be said that almost every person is taught to make the prayer of petition, the prayer of pleading. They are taught to petition God for whatever good thing they desire, and also to petition him to withhold whatever evil thing they seek to avoid. Pleading through the prayer of petition, and in fact, its very foundation and essence, is the belief that the mind of God can be changed by the petition. There is the belief that, but for the petition, God would not do the thing He is asked to do, else why ask Him? Or that but for the petition He would do the thing and would send the evil, that He is asked not to do or not to send.

Yet, all the while that this form of prayer has gone up from unnumbered millions of agonizing hearts, the Bible has declared that God is unchanging.
If God is unchanging, as the Bible declares Him to be, then is it not plain that so long as people go on in the belief that it is the function of prayer to change the mind of God to meet the human desire, in reality the further they are getting away from the true theory of prayer; and the more sincerely they believe that sort of thing,
the more their very sincerity will prevent them from making the prayer of faith which, the Bible says, "shall save the sick."

Christian Science, upon the other hand, teaches its adherents to make the prayer of realization, the prayer of affirmation. Christian Science teaches that God is infinite good, and that it is wholly unnecessary to beg or petition infinite good, to manifest good to us, for infinite good cannot do anything else except manifest good to every creature. If one should fail all an object it would be absurd to beg or petition the law of gravitation to operate.
That law would operate automatically,
and would pull the object down to the first obstruction. Christian Science teaches that God is Mind, or Principle, and that Mind governs through spiritual law, and that the operation of that law is automatic, and is manifesting good and nothing but good ceaselessly to every human being.

One person says if that is true, why,
then, do people seem to have so little good, and so much that is not good?
Let us look at that for a moment. If that is true, the law of gravitation will pull it down to the first obstruction, but if the obstruction is removed, it will pull it down further and further as the obstructions are removed, until at last, if every obstruction were removed, the law of gravitation would then have its perfect work, and would pull the object to the center of the earth. That is precisely what happens through the operation of spiritual law. That law is operating in human consciousness, just as far as the obstructions will permit, which obstructions are mental qualities—superstition, false beliefs, human will and the like. As they are removed, the spiritual law will operate further and further in human consciousness to bring the good nearer and deeper into human experience, until at last, when every such obstruction shall have been removed, when the human consciousness shall have been completely evangelized by truth, and every mortal thought shall have been brought into obedience to Christ, as the Scripture commands, then the spiritual law will have its perfect work in human consciousness. In that day men and women will walk the earth
free from every evil condition, no longer in bondage to sickness, sin, poverty, old age or death, but shall then be found in the conscious possession of that dominion which God said in the beginning belongs to man.

As each one of us works out this question for himself, striving to arrive at that conclusion which shall best satisfy him as to which is the true theory of prayer, one other thing can be mentioned to aid the inquirer in reaching that conclusion, and that is that through the Christian Science method of prayer hundreds of thousands of sick people have been healed.
Is not this great array of proof by demonstration at least sufficient to put every thinking person upon inquiry, lest the Christian Science theory of prayer may not, in fact, be the true theory.

Every person who prays desires to know how to make true prayer. All people desire good and not evil, and,
in the main, all people are equally honest

in their religious affiliations, for no one would knowingly deceive himself about so important a matter. The only reason, therefore, why people are grouped together in different religious organizations is because they honestly believe that through the organization to which they belong they will be most likely to gain the good which they so earnestly desire. Since, then, through Christian Science prayer, so many people have found health, contentment and peace, it is plain that sooner or later, every thinking person will desire to know how to pray as Christian Science teaches.

Creation

Another subject about which there is great confusion of belief, is the subject of creation. There is perhaps no subject connected with religion, or mentioned in the Bible, about which there is greater misunderstanding than there is about creation. It is surprising how many people there are who do not even know that there are two accounts of the creation in the Bible.
The first account is to be found in the first chapter of Genesis, and extends down to and includes the third verse of the second chapter. Beginning with the fourth verse of the second chapter of Genesis another account, that is wholly different from the first, is given.

In the first account, we are told that God created the universe, and that everything made by Him was good, and lastly, that He created man, in His image, and after His own likeness, and that he was good; while in the second account, we have the allegory about God coming down to earth, and mixing up dust and calling it man. Then follows the story of Adam and Eve, and the Garden of Eden, and we are told that a deep sleep fell upon Adam,
and that then sin appeared, and that brother murdered brother, and from that day to this that the man made of dust has been a sinner and has been at enmity with God.

Christian Science accepts the first account of the creation as the spiritual and real creation and upon this foundation and basis it builds. Religious teachers throughout the centuries have erroneously regarded the Adam-man as being the real man made in the image and likeness of God, and yet the Bible nowhere says so. The Bible nowhere says that the Adam-man was made in God's image or likeness.
That statement was made concerning the real man described in an account of the real creation. And religious teachers have vainly striven to make the wisdom and the love of God fit
the creation of a sinner.

Such a doctrine as that is impossible. It dishonors God, and degrades man. It makes God responsible for all of the sin and all of the misery from the beginning of time, and the best proof that it is not true is that it has never delivered those who believed it from evil.

How perfectly the name "mortal man" fits him. Have you ever thought of it? Mortal—mortality—what is that? It is the word means. A death-man, having a death-body and a death-mind!
Does any one believe that God ever created a death-man or gave him a death-mind or a death-body? And is it not plain that so long as people conceive of themselves as being mortals, or the mortal, or death-man, so long will they continue to remain in partnership with death. Christian Science makes plain that men and women can be emancipated from that enemy when they shall have learned the truth of their own being, and of their own true relationship to God.

Christian Science teaches that man is just what the Bible says he is; that he is spiritual; that God made him in His own image and after His own likeness; that He made him perfect, and that what God made perfect has never possessed the capacity to become imperfect.

Christian Science is the only system of teaching, either religious or secular, that even makes an attempt to explain the difference between man and the Adam-man, and Christian Science does explain it and make it perfectly plain by pointing out that the Adam-man—the dust-man—the mortal or death-man, is nothing more or less than the false mortal concept of man—
the mis-concept of man. It is precisely as though one should put on a pair of green eyeglasses, and then look out upon a green universe. He might scrub and scour some object all he pleased, but could never remove the green from it, because the green would not be in the object though appearing to be there, for it would be in the lens through which he looked at
it. The only thing necessary for the man to do in order to translate the entire universe back into its normal aspect would be for him merely to take off the green lenses through which he was looking. In like manner, the only thing necessary for us to do in order to translate what seems to be a material universe and material man back into the spiritual is to take off the false, mortal eyeglasses.

Christian Science is making plain in many ways that so long as people continue to look through mortal eyeglasses, through lenses that are composed of superstition, false beliefs, human will, pride, self-righteousness and the like, they will continue to see man and the universe as material instead of spiritual; they will continue to see a deformed and diseased man and a distorted universe. But when they shall begin to lay aside the mortal eyeglasses and shall begin to look through the lenses of the spirit—lenses that are composed of truth, spiritual understanding, meekness, humility, love, faith and purity—they will then see a constantly improving man and universe. As this mental transformation progresses, disease, sin, sorrow, poverty and the limitations of old age will disappear and the spiritual real man will begin to appear. When this transformation shall have been completed we shall then see man and the universe as wholly spiritual as they now appear to God and as they have always appeared to God, for God has never seen His children nor His creation through mortal eyeglasses. He has always seen us as spiritual, and hence to Him we have always been perfect. In that day we shall know, as in fact we have now learned, that nothing that God made is material or ever needs to be healed, and that the only thing that needs to be healed is our own false concept of that which He made perfect.

RECEPTION

Mrs. George W. Morse of Court street, Newtonville, and Miss Harriet C. Morse, were at home informally, on Friday evening, when a number of their friends welcomed them back from Europe, where Mrs. Morse went early in June, accompanied by her younger daughter, Miss Genevieve Morse. Abroad they joined Miss Morse who had preceded them by several weeks, in order to take a course at the Sorbonne in Paris. Their plans for general travel on the Continent, with Germany as their special objective point for a prolonged stay, were of course wholly changed upon the breaking out of the war, and their escape from Paris was accomplished only under greatest difficulty, after exciting experiences. Last evening's informal gathering offered opportunity further for the friends of the hostesses to greet Mrs. Hickey of New York, formerly Miss Gertrude Morse of Newtonville. Some of Miss Morse's friends assisted in the hospitalities by presiding over the table in the supper room. Among the comparatively few present were Thomas J. Kenny, former candidate for mayorality of Boston, and his sister, Miss Julia Kenny, who went abroad with Mrs. Morse and her daughter and travelled with them, all returning on the same steamer to America. Mr. Kenny was the junior law partner of the late George W. Morse.

If all this were only a theory people might be justified in refusing to accept it, but Christian Science practitioners are proving daily in all parts of the civilized world that by holding the perfect man in concept, by knowing that man is spiritual and perfect and is governed by an all-loving God, and by arguing steadfastly from the standpoint of the reality of good instead of from the standpoint of evil, and the reality of evil, the sick are healed, and human conditions do improve.

Christian Science, therefore, is proving step by step that the declaration made by Jesus is true, and that in proportion as the knowledge of the truth fills human consciousness, driving out error and false beliefs, men and women come into the possession here and now of their God-given dominion.

Mental Causation

I know how difficult a thing it is for people who are unacquainted with the teachings of Christian Science to understand what is meant by mental causation. Humanity has been accustomed through so many centuries to consider that all causation is vested in matter, that when we begin to discuss the subject of mental causation we are dealing with something that is unfamiliar to many. When I first turned to Christian Science, I did so for physical healing, and I was healed under circumstances that admitted of no doubt that I had been healed. I, therefore, became deeply convinced that Christian Science must be the truth, because it had wrought in me so great a change. When I was told, however, that there was no intelligence or sensation in the human body, I said to myself, "How can it be so absurd that no intelligent person could believe it for a moment, and in spite of the fact that I had been healed through Christian Science, I came very near turning my back upon it. Instead of doing so, however, I determined to make an honest effort to find out, if I could, what Christian Science meant by the statement that there is no intelligence or sensation in the mortal body."

I had not proceeded very far before I found that the statement was true, and then I found that it was necessarily true, and then I began to wonder why I myself had not thought of it long before, because it appeared so perfectly plain and obvious. It was pointed out to me that this body which we worship and fear, and which most people get down on their knees before every day and say to it, "Oh, body, what can I do for you today, to keep you from hurting me?" is composed of something over 70 per cent of water, and that the balance of it is chalk, lime, starch, potash and a few other things—that it is matter, just as truly as the ingredients of the dirt and wood are matter.

I then learned that there could be no more intelligence or sensation in matter when in the form of flesh, bones and nerves than when in the form of dirt or stone, which fact is proved whenever an opiate is given to a person and the human mind is put to sleep. The body may then be cut and gashed and the nerves lacerated, without the slightest indication of intelligence or sensation.

I thus learned that sensation and intelligence do not reside in the human body apart from the human mind. Some day mankind will recognize the immeasurable service that Christian Science has performed for the human race in making this fact plain. For if it be true, and it is true, which sensation and intelligence do not reside in the human body, apart from the human mind, then it follows, absolutely, that the human body cannot do anything, feel anything, or have anything, except that which the human mind first decrees, and that by educating, instructing and controlling the human mind with truth, we shall thereby control the body with truth, and the body will then be healthy and harmonious.

Just as certainly as the human body has suffered from disease and discord, and has gone down in wreckage in all of the ages of the past, as a result of wrong mental government, Christian Science is proving that in the future the body will respond with health and harmony, when it shall be governed by "that mind which was also in Christ Jesus."

Regardless of what any one may think or say to the contrary, Christian Science has proved beyond all possibility of successful contradiction, that the human body is not self-acting. It is not a self-acting machine. Since it possesses neither intelligence nor sensation in nor of itself, it can act only in obedience to the mentality that governs it.

At this point Christian Science performs an invaluable service to mankind by explaining how each one may take possession of his own future, and harmoniously, Christian Science here declares that no one is under any obligation whatever to allow the so-called mortal mind to dictate the terms and conditions upon which he may live, but upon the contrary, it is the right and privilege of every one to be governed by the law of Spirit instead of the so-called laws of matter, and that by telling the truth to mortal mind, and thereby destroying false belief, to preserve his body in health.

To illustrate how the body responds to the mentality that governs it, study the faces of two men. One is furrowed with deep lines. It expresses bitterness, and shows that the man hates every one, and believes that every one hates him. The other is radiant with good will, and shows by its every expression that the man loves every one, and thinks that every one loves him. What is it that makes the difference between the faces of the two men? Is it not their thought? And if thought can produce such radical changes in the shape, expression and contour of men's faces, is it not plain that thought will also produce like changes in the shape and action of every organ and part of the body? For there is no part of the body that is beyond the reach of human thought, and since no part of the body possesses intelligence or sensation in nor of itself, it follows that it makes available as a present right and possibility man's inheritance as the son and heir of God by showing that the real man created by God is spiritual and not material; that his life, continuity, intelligence and harmony are in spirit and not in matter; that all of his qualities and attributes are derived from Spirit, and that every function of the real man is governed by the divine Mind. Man, therefore, expresses the divine nature, and hence he is the image of God, and as such is perfect and immortal. The material man is not the likeness of God, for matter cannot be the image of Spirit. He is the false concept of man, and the sin, disease and death involved in this false concept will disappear as false mortal beliefs are dissolved by truth. The material belief must give place to the spiritual fact in every case.

Out of the amplitude of her own spiritual understanding Mrs. Eddy has translated into human language the truth about God and man, and their relationship; has revealed a perfect divine Principle that governs mankind, and has proved that the truth taught by Jesus is scientific and may be demonstrated today as of old to deliver the sinning, sorrowing and suffering from their oppressors, to set all mankind free from bondage to evil, and to establish the kingdom of God on earth.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Much interest centres on the engagement of the new comedy "Wanted $22,000" at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, commencing next Monday night. Primarily because it is a Cohan and Harris production, and their offerings are invariably worth while, and secondly on account of the importance of the players who are to originate the several roles of the new piece. The piece is the work of E. A. Thomas, best known as author of "The Rainbow" and other big successes and Clayton Hamilton, who has been a big contributor to magazines. The producers have refrained from disclosing the story of the play, but from authentic sources it is learned that it contains a surprise that is likely to prove more or less of a sensation. The cast includes such competent players as Ernest Glendinning, Richard Sterling, Forrest Robinson, Harold Russell, William Courtleigh, George Wright, Jr., Harold Grau, Desmond Kelley, Isabel Garrison, Hazel Lowry and Frances Wright. As usual the management devote strict and accurate attention to all mail orders when made payable to Fred E. Wright. The regular scale of Plymouth Theatre prices, 50 cents to $2.00, will prevail while Thursday and Saturday will be the regular matinee. Out-of-town playgoers should avail themselves of the extra matinee announced for Monday, Oct. 12, Columbus Day. As this day is usually a big day in theatricals it would be wise to waste no time in sending in your order for seats for either the matinee or evening performance for that day.

WILBUR THEATRE—The fourth week of William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur Theatre in Boston, shows steady success and increasing popularity for this most American of all plays now on our stage and for this star who is the most American of all actors. The very spirit of the masses of the American people—that homely, simple, basic cheerfulness and optimism which distinguishes our native character and humor—shines forth delightfully in this well-named drama. The large audiences bask in the happy Yankee wit and the sunshine of the piece. Denham Thompson's heart throbs in "The Old Homestead." James A. Herne's pathos and humor in "Shore Acres" and "Sag Harbor" and Sol Smith's quiet, roll sentiment in "A Poor Relation" have all passed into this latest drama of village life. The heart interest and the humor cause the spectators to sway between smiles and tears. "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur is one that everybody should travel.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

The members of the Church of the Messiah at Auburndale, tendered their pastor, Rev. John Matteson, and Mrs. Matteson, a farewell reception on Tuesday evening in the parish hall. Mr. and Mrs. Matteson received from 8 until 9 and Mrs. Matteson was beautifully gowned in spangled heliotrope colored silk with corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. Refreshments were served and the table was attractively decorated with pink cosmos and pink shaded candelabra. During the evening musical selections were rendered on the piano and violin, by Mr. Curry and Miss Herron. There was an attendance of about 100.

do it. An ash pan is hard to remove and it usually spills the ashes in carrying.

The deep Ash Hod of our latest ranges catches all of the ashes, is easy to remove and carry and does not spill the ashes. Coal Hod beside it. Both hods free with each range.

Then there is a wonderful "Single Damper" [patented]; gives perfect control of fire and oven. Better than two dampers. Have you seen it? Gas ovens if desired, end [single] or elevated [double].

THE KITCHEN CUPBOARD

A SUBSTANTIAL SUPPER.

SUPPER MENU.
Soup.
Deviled Roast Beef.
Tomato Omelet.
Potatoes au Gratin.
Fruit Salad.
Plums in Batter.
Tea.

THIS supper will be found to be a savory yet nourishing one. In serving vary to suit the taste. Deviled Roast Beef.—Cream one tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful each of lemon juice and table sauce, a saltspoonful of prepared mustard and a few grains of cayenne. Cut thick slices of rare roast beef, spread them with the seasoning and brown in a chafing dish. Serve with brown bread sandwiches.

Vegetable Omelet.

Tomato Omelet.—Take three eggs, one cup strained tomato, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, dash of pepper, one teaspoonful of cornstarch and one teaspoonful butter or bacon fat. Beat the eggs until light and add cold water, salt and pepper. Beat until well mixed. Put the butter or bacon fat into a fry pan. When hot pour in the beaten egg and reduce the heat a little. Shake the pan constantly and with a fork loosen the edges until the egg is firm. Pour in the tomato, which has been thickened with cornstarch, wet with a little cold water. Fold over half the omelet and turn out on hot platter. Garnish with parsley.

Grapes in Salad.

Fruit Salad.—Take one-half pound green grapes, five bananas, juice of lemon and one small head lettuce. Wash the grapes, make an incision and remove the seeds. Skin the bananas and with a French potato cutter cut into round balls. Squeeze the juice from the lemons and pour over the bananas. Put the grapes and bananas in cold place until ready to use. When ready to serve pile on lettuce leaves and cover with French dressing. To make the dressing put one tablespoonful of lemon juice and one-quarter teaspoonful salt into sauce dish; add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil slowly, beating constantly.

A Delicious Dessert.

Plums in Batter.—Make a batter with two beaten eggs, five tablespoonfuls of flour, a little more than one pint of milk and a pinch of salt. Remove the stones from one quart of large ripe plums, crack them, put the kernels inside of the plums again, mix the fruit with two heaping tablespoonfuls of moist sugar and stir it lightly into the batter. Turn it into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a hot oven till done. Sprinkle powdered sugar over the top and serve hot with one-half cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar and one well beaten egg stirred to a cream and flavored.

GREEN CORN Dainties.

THIS favorite vegetable may be prepared in so many different ways and is so delicious in almost any form that it is no wonder it holds a high place in the housewife's favor. For the fastidious the following recipes may be of special value:

Superior Fritters.

Corn Fritters.—Sift one cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one scant teaspoonful of baking powder and one level teaspoonful of sugar together. Stir in two eggs, one cupful of grated corn and milk enough to make a batter that will drop easily from a spoon. Cook in hot fat and place on absorbent paper before serving.

Corn Salad With Mayonnaise.—Take cold boiled corn, cut it from the cob, carefully removing any shreds of silk. Line a salad bowl with small white leaves from the heart of a lettuce head and then heap the corn in the center. Pour the mayonnaise over the whole, being sure to have plenty of it. The toothsome corn as a salad ingredient is just becoming appreciated. Corn alone is better eaten with a mayonnaise than when mixed with other vegetables.

A Dainty Souffle.

Corn Souffles.—Prepare a cream sauce with a rounded teaspoonful each of butter and flour and a cupful of hot milk. Add the beaten yolks of three eggs, a cupful of grated raw corn and seasonings to taste. Fold in the stiff whites of three eggs, turn into individual cases, well buttered, and bake about twenty minutes in a hot oven. These must be served hot in the molds in which baked.

Corn Timbales.—Take one cupful each of grated corn and milk, two whole eggs and one extra yolk, well beaten. Season, turn into buttered timbale molds, place in a pan of hot water and bake about a half hour in a moderate oven. Remove from molds, garnish with bits of truffle and serve with tomato sauce or with Spanish sauce. This latter is a rich white sauce, into which is stirred small cubes cut from the firm pulp of a tomato and dried green peppers.

GIDDINGS—DAGGETT

A quiet home wedding took place on Saturday last at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Chase Giddings in Waltham. Their daughter Ernestine was married to Fred Wallis Daggett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Daggett of Washington street, Brighton. The house was prettily decorated with palms and flowers. Little Billie Giddings, a nephew of the bride, was flower boy, Miss Marion Giddings, a sister, was bridesmaid. Mr. Everett Tewksbury of New York City was best man and the officiating clergyman was the Rev. Samuel Maxwell of Boston. Both Mr. Tewksbury and Mr. Maxwell were classmates of Mr. Daggett's at Harvard. '99. Miss Giddings graduated from Simmons, 1911.

The guests were limited to relatives and a few intimate friends. Among them were, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Jennings of Boston, Prof. and Mrs. Walter Jennings of Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jennings of Randolph, Mrs. Henry F. Burrage and daughters, Miss Madeleine Giddings of Boston, Miss Mary Price of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Wambolt of Watertown, Mr. Ralph Cowdery, Mrs. Wm. R. Cowdery, Miss Harriette Cowdery of Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. McKenne of Everett. Mr. and Mrs. Daggett received many beautiful gifts. After a tour through the Berkshire Hills they will reside in Tinton, N. J., where Mr. Daggett is Superintendent of the Water Filtering Plant, that he has been erecting for the city.

BARNES—HILLS

Miss Florence Hills, daughter of Mr. George W. Hills, formerly of this city and now of Philadelphia, was married Thursday last week at St. James Episcopal Church, Elberon, N. J., to Dr. George Stratford Barnes of Washington, D. C., a distant relation of President Wilson. The ceremony, which took place at 5.30 p. m., was performed by Rev. Dr. Paul Birdsall in the presence of a small company of relatives and immediate friends. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite imported wedding gown of duchess satin trimmed with Brussels lace, court train. Her veil of point Venise was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a full shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bride's only attendant was her maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth De Lesdernier of New York. Howard Hayward of Newton was groomsmen. Following the ceremony the bridal party and guests motored to the New Tenny hotel, Asbury Park, where the supper and reception took place. Dr. and Mrs. Barnes left for an extended tour of the South, including a visit to the former's mother, Mrs. Sallie Barnes of Greenville, South Carolina. They are to make their home at Terrace Inn, Thomas Circle, Washington, D. C., where they will be at home on Tuesdays after Oct. 10. Mrs. Barnes is the granddaughter of Mrs. E. F. Hills of Vernon street, with whom she spent this summer.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—"Arizona." Augustus Thomas' most successful play, has been doing big business at Castle Square all this week. The full houses may be ascribed partly to the cool weather, which again makes theatre going a pleasure and partly to the strong appeal of this full blooded drama of Western military life. "Widow by Proxy" which will be given next week, is a high spirited farce with breathlessly rapid action. Gloria Grey, the chief character, is a young music teacher who gets into financial difficulties, and in a spirit of dare devilry, persuades a widowed girl that lives with her to let her impersonate her and win the esteem of her husband's rich relatives. She not only does this but wins the heart of the son of the family, a naval officer. One entanglement brings on another, and Gloria is involved in a seemingly inextricable web of difficulties, when everything is straightened out by an unexpected return from Alaska.

now given up to the lust of war and conquest. The great number of Germans in America who look back to the Fatherland with affection, and probably most of whom left Germany because of the militarism there which overwhelms every other thought, must look on this war with sadness. This is the greatest war the world has ever known. It is a war fought in secret. The brass bands we heard in 1861 are hushed, London is remarkably quiet, the soldiers have nothing on that gilters, and England has sent 200,000 men to the Continent and no one knew when they went for they were all transported in the night. All that people living near Portsmouth knew about it was that every night there would go out a large fleet of transports, dull, dark looking vessels just seen as they crept out of port, and that they were back at their anchorage again in the morning before anyone was up. The King held the usual review of the Fleet on the last week in July. People noticed that it was larger than usual. The King, after the review, went ashore from his yacht. The Fleet anchored, but no morning it was nowhere to be seen, and to this day no one of the public knows of its whereabouts—except that it is in the North Sea. The newspapers have not been allowed to send reporters, and all the news given out here is a few paragraphs daily from the War Office. All this because of the wonderful good sense and patience of the British people, who acquiesce in Lord Kitchener's regulations. At England, France and Russia will be successful I have no doubt, but the loss of life is awful; the greatest war the world has ever known, but the spirit of the lust for power must be put down at any cost—and at home in America we can only remain on the land of the free by holding to our sense of right—keeping the proportion of things before us.

The Germans are united; the workman as well as the Kaiser thinks he is striving for what is best for Germany, for the thought of the nation has been perverted—and, said to say, by the influence of some of their ablest thinkers. Let us see what in America we think straight and have justice towards all both high and low. We have peace societies in America, and to hear the talk at their meetings one would think that all the world was ready to submit everything to arbitration, but I have never found anywhere in Germany, that is amongst the people, who would ever listen to a word of peace. So "it must needs be that offences will come," through suffering to learn, and after it is all over there may come an agreed peace—disbanding of armies, with only an army under the orders of the Hague Conference, whose duty it shall be to keep the peace.

The home of Frank F. Jonsberg on Dedham street, Oak Hill, was almost destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon, causing damage estimated at $3000. Jonsberg recently bought the house and had it entirely renovated. In the forenoon painters and others had been completing the interior work and quit work at 1 o'clock. About an hour later a driver on a passing team noticed flames and smoke issuing from the house and ran at once to the home of W. T. Mick, nearby, where police headquarters was notified and an alarm rung from box 92. Mr. Jonsberg had the house partially furnished and nearly all the furniture was destroyed. He also had a beautiful library, but the neighbors, who had heard of the library, rushed into the house and succeeded in saving the bulk of the books.

The firemen had a hard fight for a time, but subdued the flames after the roof and top floor had been burned away.

ENGINEERING FEATS.

Clever Tricks With Which Emergencies Have Been Met.

Engineering is filled with so many tricks to meet emergencies that most of them pass unnoticed, but two have recently attracted the attention of engineers because of their real oddity.

One was a scheme for stopping a blazing leak in a big high pressure gas main in San Francisco. Some unknown men who wanted to make trouble set off a chemical preparation on the gas main, with the result that in a few seconds a hole had been melted in the main, the gas poured out and a great flame shot twenty-five feet in the air. It was then after midnight, and it was very inadvisable to shut the big main off, so it was decided to make an attempt to stop the leak without shutting off the gas.

An oil well trick was used. An iron pipe six inches in diameter and twenty feet long was stood on end beside the gas main and then by careful manipulation placed directly over the leak. This sent the leaking gas shooting through the pipe and flaming out at the top twenty feet in the air. Some gas leaked out at the bottom of the pipe, but this was easily stopped, so the only flame was that at the top of the pipe. Ropes had been attached to the pipe, and finally at a given signal the ropes were yanked and the pipe was thrown many feet away from the gas main. The pipe carried the flame with it. The leaking gas then shot directly into the air from the main, but as there was no flame near it did not burn. It was then a comparatively simple task to plug the hole until permanent repairs could be made.

The other scheme was to get to the top of a high chimney without using scaffolding or other expensive methods. The chimney rose two hundred feet beside a Missouri power plant, and it was proposed to attach a sign running up and down its side. A little parachute with a stout cord attached was pushed into the chimney at the bottom, the flue gases carried it to the top and then out into the air. It fell on one side, dragging the cord after it. Then by means of the cord a rope was passed up outside of the chimney and down the inside and the chimney top was accessible.—Saturday Evening Post.

DEVILED SHIRTS.

When Dumas Really Thought He Had Started a New Fashion.

Alexandre Dumas, the famous French romancer, was as recklessly extravagant as he was abnormally stout, and more than once found himself in awkward straits. Indeed, he was often enough without the common necessities, even of dress, as when anxious to attend an ambassador's reception he discovered he was without a single clean shirt among his linen. A friend who chanced to be with him at the time volunteered to go and buy one, only to find that none of the shops had in stock a garment sufficiently large to encircle the novelist's generous girth of neck and chest.

At last, when on the point of relinquishing his search, Dumas' friend came upon a shop where a shirt called "the hercules" was advertised. The name struck him as being one of good omen, and he entered. But, alas, they had nothing approaching the size required, unless, indeed, their customer would care to take one made to order of a very corpulent Quarter Latin student, by whom it had been left on their hands. Although covered with little red devils careering about in red flames, it was a case of Hobson's choice, so the shirt was purchased and taken home to Dumas, who, doubtless entering into the humor of the situation, resolved to wear it at the reception.

"You would hardly believe it," he said afterward, "but my costume was an immense success, and I really think I have started a fashion of deviled shirts for evening wear."—London Tit-Bits.

Kick of the Mule.

A wise man, in his own estimation, announces that a mule kicks because it doesn't know any better. This will greatly surprise many students of contemporary mule life. If ever there was an animal with low cunning expressed in its eye and its twitching nostril, that animal is the mule. Its ability to plant a kick where it will give the greatest offense to its victim is something marvelous.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Spanish Flag.

The red and yellow of the Spanish flag is said to be derived from this occurrence: In 1378 Charles the Bold dipped his fingers in the blood of Geoffrey, count of Barcelona, and drew them down the count's golden shield in token of his appreciation of the latter's bravery. The shield, so marked, became the arms of Barcelona, which became part of Aragon, and its arms were taken by that kingdom.

Winding Clocks.

Be careful about winding clocks. Wind them always at the same time and never wind them too tight. Find out just how many full turns of the key it takes to wind the clock to the proper point and always stop with that number of turns.

Roquefort Sheep.

The milk of a single Roquefort sheep will in a year provide from thirty to forty pounds of cheese. In that district of France there are about 8,000 sheep devoted to the cheese industry.

A Born Orator.

"Senator Wombat is considerable of an orator, I take it?"
"Oh, yes. He waxes eloquent in borrowing a match."—Pittsburgh Post.

TORTURE FOR CONVICTS.

The Cruel Methods in Use in Portugal's Mozambique Colony.

Mozambique being one of the principal convict settlements of the Portuguese government, many poor creatures make desperate dashes for liberty only to be devoured by the sharks before the eyes of their guards. It was no uncommon event to hear the fortress gun boom forth, announcing that another poor soul was running this ghastly gantlet of the sharks sooner than exist like a half starved dog in deplorable surroundings.

There being no capital punishment under Portuguese law, many of the convicts were of course of the most desperate type—notorious murderers, and so on. Some of them, after a certain time and as a reward for good conduct were allowed to work on parole, leaving the fortress in the morning and returning at night, plying their various trades to their own advantage. Others of a more dangerous character might be seen working in chains on the road, guarded by slovenly half caste sepoys.

Outside the dungeon cells were whipping posts, over which poor creatures had to kneel, their arms and legs being bound to iron rings, while lashes were administered with a chicotte, a strip of hippo hide. Palmatoria was another torture used. Although illegal to Portuguese law, it is nevertheless still widely used, causing excruciating pain. The implement employed is a flat, spoon shaped heavy piece of hard wood about an inch and a half thick, with a handle eighteen inches long, the spoon head being perforated with five holes. The person to be punished extends the palms of his hands, and sharp, regular blows are administered, which at each stroke suck up the flesh. The bravest can rarely stand more than thirty blows, for the tortured hands swell to double their natural size. The sentence is often several hundred blows, the punishment continuing on succeeding days until "justice" is satisfied.—Sibyl Belcher in Wide World Magazine.

UNSELFISH SAVAGES.

Generosity of the Semisavage Eskimos of Arctic Siberia.

Probably no more clannish and unselfish people exist than the natives of the arctic coast of Siberia, the lowest type of semisavage Eskimos. They are ever thinking of one another's welfare, and if one comes into possession of anything of value he never thinks of keeping it for himself, but calls the other members of the tribe to share with him. If a whale is taken or a polar bear, caribou or walrus is killed the meat is divided among all the igloos. Even during the hard winter, when there is a shortage of food, if a seal is brought in by some fortunate hunter the meat and blubber are equally distributed.

Four men from East Cape, the Siberian side of Bering strait, were taken aboard the whale ship Narwhal to make up the boat crews for whaling in the Arctic. All through the summer season they remained aboard the vessel, doing their share of the perilous and wearisome work. When the vessel returned to East Cape on its way south the captain made a pile of flour, sugar, hard bread, calico, tobacco, cartridges, needles and thread, tea, matches—everything dear to the Eskimo heart. It was their wages, and the Eskimos were proud of their wealth. The walrus hide capes came along, and the four men were taken ashore with their riches. At the water's edge every article was delivered to waiting hands, and when the men who had worked all summer for these necessities and luxuries started for their igloos they carried all they kept for themselves in their hands. They were almost as poor as they were when they started on the cruise, but the village was temporarily happy, and so were they.—Exchange.

Alleged Scottish Kings.

Jests innumerable have been showered upon the hundred portraits of alleged Scottish kings, with a strong family likeness, especially about the nose, which adorn Hollywood—kings, as Scott says, "who, if they ever flourished at all, lived several hundred years before the invention of painting in oil colors." The late Mr. W. C. Hazlitt, recalls the London Chronicle, had a story of a visitor who gravely inquired of the old woman who showed him over the palace, "Did you do these?" She shook her head as gravely, and he added, "You might have done better."

When the Long "S" Was Abolished.

In the latter part of February, 1800, a London publisher instituted a trifling though welcome improvement in printing. His name was Bell, later the founder of the well known Weekly Messenger, and at the date mentioned he caused to be submitted the short for the long "s" in the setting of certain works he produced. His example was generally followed a year or two later.—St. James' Gazette.

Coins For Lepers.

The Philippine government has minted a special coinage for use in the Cullion leper colony. The coins are of aluminum and include pieces of 1 peso and 20, 10, 5, 1 1/2 centavos. They are accepted at face value for all business carried on within the colony, but are of no value elsewhere.

CHANGE IN SERVICE

The Middlesex & Boston Street Railway announces a change in service beginning tomorrow in consequence of the opening of the new Boylston Street subway in Boston.

Possibly the most important change is the inauguration of a ten minute service from Auburndale between 7.05 and 8.05 A. M. and from 4.05 to 6.05 P. M. and between Lake street and Auburndale between 7.30 and 8.30 A. M. and 4.30 to 6.30 P. M.

This 10 minute service is put on so that the people living in Auburndale and along Commonwealth avenue may avail themselves of the opportunities afforded by the quick service on the new Boylston Street Subway. A passenger may take any car in the Subway during those hours signed up for Lake Street and avail themselves of this 10-minute service from Lake Street to Auburndale.

The running time from Auburndale to the Park Street Subway via Lake street and the new Boylston Street Subway will be fifty minutes—from Newton Highlands forty minutes—from Newton Centre thirty-five minutes.

This service will be obtained by changing cars at Lake street and taking Boston Elevated cars via Commonwealth avenue and the new Boylston Street Subway. The Auburndale-Subway line will now run by way of Beacon street and the time consumed from Auburndale to the Subway will be fifty-ninety minutes.

The Newton Highlands-Lake Street-Subway line will be discontinued as a through service on this date, and passengers will change cars at Lake street and take Boston Elevated cars via Commonwealth avenue and Boylston Street Subway.

DAVIDGE—WEEKS

At the home of United States Senator and Mrs. John Wingate Weeks, on Valentine street in West Newton, their daughter, Miss Katharine Sinclair Weeks, was married Saturday afternoon to Mr. John Washington Davidge of Washington, D. C., where his family is prominent socially. He is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1902, and has many friends in Greater Boston.

The bride was in conventional wedding dress of white satin, made with long, full train and trimmed with exquisite old Venetian lace and her bridal veil, also of rare Venetian lace, is an heirloom, long a family treasure. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, minister of the First Unitarian Society in West Newton. The wedding was made extremely simple. The bride had no attendants and the bridegroom dispensed with the customary service of a best man. A large reception followed the marriage, but there were no ushers, the guests making their way informally to the receiving-party to offer their congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Davidge will make their home in Washington.

ROOT-DUDLEY

At noon yesterday, at the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, Miss Ellen Dudley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dudley of Chicago was married to John Root, also of that city. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Lucian Rogers, the rector of the parish. The ceremony was a quiet one, as the bride's family, having relatives involved in the European War, wished to avoid a large wedding in their home city. Therefore, besides the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom, only a few Chestnut Hill people were present at the church. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast for the bridal party was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Blodgett of Chestnut Hill. Mrs. Blodgett is a great aunt of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Root left immediately after the breakfast for their wedding journey.

AUTO ACCIDENT

At the corner of Walnut and Homer streets, Newton Centre, Tuesday morning an automobile owned and driven by D. Frank Lord of Clyde street, Newtonville, came in collision with a car owned and operated by Miss Abbie R. Baxter of Lincoln. Mr. Lord was thrown out and had a leg broken and his niece Miss Alvira Ward of 204 Ward street, Newton Centre, who was an occupant of the Lord auto, was slightly bruised. Mr. Lord was taken to the Newton Hospital and Miss Ward to her home in the police ambulance. Miss Baxter escaped injury and her car was only slightly damaged.

THE DeMERITTE SCHOOL

For earnestness of purpose, thorough work and the character of its pupils, is attracting the attention of thoughtful parents, who wish their sons to accomplish something definite in life, and do it in a manly way. The same careful training is given to all boys, whether preparing for college or the Mass. Institute of Technology.
THE AIM OF THE SCHOOL IS, not how many pupils, but how well it can do its work of developing MEN.

Dainty Little Aprons For the Smart Maid's Afternoon Wear

LACE TRIMMED APRONS.

DAINTY little aprons for the maids are illustrated here. They are in one case of fine lawn trimmed with insertions of valenciennes. In the other instance the apron is of dotted swiss trimmed with insertion and edging of the val lace. The fastidious housekeeper insists that the maid shall be neatly dressed. An outfit of this order may include a lace cap with ribbon bow and dainty collar and cuffs worn with a simple black gown. These are nice enough for any household or any occasion.

HOW TO CHOOSE COLORS.

It is an important question, for we can make ourselves almost beautiful or entirely hideous just by the colors we wear. Is there one of us who hasn't some friend who persists in wearing a color which grates on the nerves and tastes of the beholder—a color which gives her face a washed out pallor or which accentuates to apologetic proportions a florid complexion? Whatever may be your faults of color or line, whether you are too pale, too sallow, too highly colored, too thin, too fat, too short, too tall, you can subdue and sometimes, to all appearances, eradicate them by care in choosing the colors of your gowns.

Nor is this all. Different colors produce distinct psychological effects, and you can to a degree create in others the attitudes of mind which are pleasing to you.

How do you feel, for instance, on a boiling hot day when a woman in a bright red gown greets your gaze? Distinctly irritated and increasingly conscious of the state of the thermometer, of course, while the vision of a pretty girl in a cool filmy white gown, white hose and white slippers is almost as refreshing as a breeze.

For summer white is the color pre-eminent, not only because it is cool to look at, but also because it repulses the heat rays, while red absorbs them.

In using touches of color with your white gown be careful to avoid "hot colors" and to select pastel shades. An exception to this is a rather vivid green, but this should not be worn unless you have a clear complexion and a good deal of color.

DISCRIMINATING MARKETING.

Choosing Foods Whose Nutritive Value Is High Good Policy in Hard Times.

Now, when food prices soar, is the time to think of the comparative nutritive values of foods, what cheap food can be substituted for expensive food and how cheap meats and fish, when available, can be made into attractive dishes.

To build the tissues the body requires protein, from meat, fish, eggs, cheese, peas, beans or milk; to furnish heat and energy, sugars and starchy foods and fats, and to keep well, mineral matter, from various vegetables, cabbage and greens. The point is to select the cheapest source of these nutritive elements required.

When potatoes are high remember that rice, at 5 to 10 cents a pound, can well be substituted, as it has very nearly the same composition when boiled as potatoes and is even slightly more nutritive. Macaroni and spaghetti, being starchy foods, may also replace potatoes and have the further advantage of containing considerable protein.

CANNING HINTS.

It is not possible to obtain the best results from vegetables that are overgrown or from fruits that are dead ripe, yet even these have their uses when nothing better is available. The fresh material should be cleaned, all imperfect portions removed and the remainder sorted for different purposes.

Large articles may be sliced or cut in convenient uniform sections. Imperfect shapes or edges may be chopped fine for pickles or used for jams or jellies.

Uniform sections of different fruits and vegetables may be cooked until nearly tender and then put in a sweet pickle vinegar or a mustard sauce.

Underripe fruit is suitable for pickles or for jelly making. If fully ripe it may not look as well in the jars, but will have good flavor. A fruit that may be too soft to keep its shape even in a thick syrup will serve for jam or fruit butter.

Proper utensils are essential, especially of materials that will not injure the delicate flavors of fruits, such as silver, wood and enamel ware.

Wire baskets for scalding fruit to remove skins and the rapid use of a wire strainer for fruit pulp are not objectionable. The large mouthed funnel for filling jars is made of tin or of enamel ware.

A wooden spoon or paddle is convenient and a wooden masher is good for "jams."

For accuracy, thermometer and syrup gauge are required. Where large quantities are to be prepared cherry stoners and fruit presses are desirable.

WAXED PAPER.

Odds and Ends From Cracker Boxes Are Useful in the Kitchen.

The thick waxed paper that adds so to the weight of cracker boxes and for which housewives are paying at so much a pound may as well be utilized in some way. It is of great help in the kitchen.

The cakes that stick to the pan may safely be trusted to the lining of this paper, which will need no grease, as the ordinary white sort does. In lining the pan, if the paper is cut so a flap can be brought up nearly to the top on both sides, a cake may be nicely lifted out without danger of breaking.

Also where there is a chance that the oven is a little too hot lay a round of the paper on top of the cake until the baking is nearly done, then remove to permit of the proper browning.

This same paper if rolled into a cornucopia and fastened with a pin or two to prevent collapse makes as good an apparatus with which to drop icing in fancy designs on a cake as the real tin pastry tube, with the advantage that the whole thing may be crumpled up and burned after use.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SUBSTANTIAL PEACH DESSERTS.

WITH cooler weather desserts of a more substantial character are appreciated. Delicious pies and pastries are available with late fruit. Peaches are most useful in the making of these late desserts, for the acid of the fruit is a great aid to digestion.

Nice For Luncheons.

Peach Cakes.—Take a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, one egg, a half cupful of milk, a half cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and six peaches. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt into a bowl; add the milk, beaten egg and melted butter and mix together. Put on large, deep pie dish. Wash, pare and halve the peaches and put on top of batter, stone side up; sprinkle with sugar. Bake in hot oven. Serve while warm with milk or cream.

Peach Cobbler.—Take one pint flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, two teaspoonfuls baking powder sifted together several times, one-quarter cupful butter rubbed in, one egg beaten and mixed with one scant cupful milk, one quarter cupful cream. Beat this batter well. Fill a granite baking dish about one-half full of pared and stoned peaches. Allow one pint of sugar to each quart of fruit; cover with batter and bake until peaches show a dark red color; cool and serve with sugar and cream.

Fritters For Tea.

Peach Fritters.—Lay the halves of ripe, tender peaches on a flat dish, sprinkle with sugar. Let stand for an hour, turning once. Dip each piece separately in batter and cook to a golden brown in deep, boiling fat. The batter should be mixed several hours before it is needed. It is made by stirring one-half cupful cold water into the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Add to this gradually an even cupful of sifted flour and a tablespoonful of olive oil. Beat vigorously for three minutes. Just before using add a pinch of salt and the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth.

Baked Peach Pudding.—Take one-half cupful of rice and boil in a quart of boiling water till tender. Add one cupful of granulated sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, and when the sugar is dissolved add the yolks of two eggs. Cook for one minute. Butter a pudding dish, add first a layer of rice, then a layer of peaches and so on until the peaches are all used, finishing with the rice. Add one cupful of the peach juice. Bake in a moderate oven twenty-five minutes. Take from the oven and cool. Make a meringue of two whites of the eggs and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Slightly brown in a slow oven and serve with or without sauce.

TODAY'S DINNER.

DINNER MENU.
Soup Without Meat.
Cucumbers Stuffed with Meat.
Watercress Salad.
Tomato Beef Steak.
Walnut Cake.
Ice Cream.
Coffee.

HERE'S a suggestion for the day's dinner that is economical and palatable:

Nourishing and Cheap.
Soup Without Meat.—Take one cupful of pearl barley, three or four potatoes cut fine, two or three onions, celery or any other vegetable that is at hand and one can of tomatoes. Cook slowly, the fireless cooker being best. Barley should soak overnight and then cook two or three hours before adding other vegetables. Strain when done and add a cupful of cream or milk. The pulp can be used with a can of corned beef for hash for luncheon next day.

Baked Vegetables.
Cucumbers Stuffed With Meat.—Take four medium sized cucumbers, peel and cut in two lengthwise, removing seeds. Prepare a filling of one cupful of minced veal or chicken, two tablespoonfuls of cream, one-half teaspoonful of soft parsley and salt and pepper as needed. Fill cucumbers and pour around them in baking pan a cupful of veal or chicken stock or white sauce. Bake one-half hour, covered; then uncover, strep top with buttered crumbs and brown five minutes.

A Stew That's Different.
Tomato Beef Stew.—Pour into a porcelain saucepan one can of tomatoes, two large onions sliced, one teaspoonful each of cloves, nutmeg and allspice and one cupful of sugar. Let cook until onions are tender, about an hour, and add cold boiled meat, diced.

Walnut Cake.—Take one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of butter, creamed together. Add two eggs and two-thirds of a cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour into which has been sifted two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful of raisins and one cupful of chopped walnuts. This is nice with chocolate frosting thickly covered with walnut meats.

NEARER HOME.

One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er—
I'm nearer my home today
Than I ever have been before.

Nearer my Father's home,
Where the many mansions be;
Nearer the great white throne;
Nearer the crystal sea.

Nearer the bound of life,
Where we lay our burdens down;
Nearer leaving the cross;
Nearer gaining the crown.

But lying darkly between,
Whirling down through the night,
Is the silent, unknown stream
That leads at last to the light.

Closer and closer my steps
Come to the dreaded abyss;
Closer death to my lips
Presses the awful crisis.

Oh, if my mortal feet
Have almost gained the brink;
If it be I am nearer home
Even today than I think.

Father, perfect my trust;
Let my spirit feel in death
That thy feet are firmly set
On the rock of a living faith.

—Phoebe Cary.

RELAXATION.

Achievement is the result of the proper co-ordination between work and rest. Were it not for its regular fraction of a second rest between each throb the heart would soon pump itself out. Relaxation is energy stored up. There is to relaxation a quiet, cumulative power that is sure to hold you in good stead if ever panic or disorder come near, for it is at such times that every ounce of energy and resource is demanded. Relax as you work. Take time to think as you go. Reflect upon the improvement of everything you do. All things can wait upon a man building up and fortifying his own soul and his own character. Invest in relaxation.—George Matthew Adams.

THE ONLY SON.

Oh, bitter wind toward the sunset blowing,
What of the daisies tonight?
In yonder gray old hall what fires are glowing,
What ring of festal light?

"In the great window as the day was dwindling
I saw an old man stand;
His head was proudly held and his eyes kindling,
But the list shook in his hand."

Oh, wind of twilight, was there no word uttered,
No sound of joy or wail?
"A great fight and a good death," he muttered,
"Trust him, he would not fail."

What of the chamber dark where she was lying,
For whom all life is done?
"Within her heart she rocks a dead child, crying,
"My son, my little son."

—Henry Newbolt.

STREET CAR CHANGES

The opening of the new Boylston street subway tomorrow by the Boston Elevated Railway Company will give excellent transportation facilities from Nonantum square, by saving about eight minutes in the present running time to Park street.

The following transfer privileges are announced by the Elevated Company: Any transfer privileges have been provided at Union Sq. from inbound North Beacon-street cars to inbound cars for Cambridge, via River street, or to inbound Newton-Brighton cars; from inbound Newton-Brighton cars to inbound Cambridge-street cars; from inbound Newton-Brighton cars to outbound North Beacon-street cars, and from inbound River-street-Cambridge-street cars to outbound Newton-Brighton or North Beacon-street cars.

During normal hours, the line of cars now running between Oak square and Central square, Cambridge, via Market street and Western avenue, will be run from the junction of Washington and Parsons streets, Brighton, to Central square, and transfer privileges will be established at Washington and Market streets, Brighton, to permit transfer from outbound Western-avenue cars terminating at Parsons street to other outbound cars, and in a similar manner, from inbound Newton-Brighton cars to inbound cars of the Western-avenue line. During rush hours the Western-avenue will be run as at present.

The Newton-Brighton line will be run from Watertown carhouse. The North Cambridge-Harvard square-Newton line will be run to the Watertown carhouse only.

The transfer privileges now existing at Watertown square between Western avenue or North Beacon-street cars and Newton cars, will be moved to the Watertown carhouse, and in addition to present transfer privileges, transfers will be provided from outbound Mt. Auburn-street cars to cars for Newton likewise from cars from Newton to inbound Mt. Auburn-street cars.

Transfer checks issued from outbound Western-avenue-North Beacon-street cars are good on the Newton cars only as far as Nonantum square, and conductors are instructed to see that passengers presenting these checks do not ride beyond Nonantum square without the payment of further fare.

TO ONE I LOVE.

You wept to see the roses die,
The limp, pale blossoms, frail and sweet,
Thou couldst for me, love, do no more,
Though I lay dying at thy feet.

You wept to see the roses die,
Oh, love, how dark seem skies above,
For how couldst thou love such as I
When thou hast all the world to love?

You wept to see the roses die,
Shall I complain when all is done,
That thy great soul for all can sigh,
And my poor heart can love but one?

—St. Nicholas.

NEWTON CLUB NOTES

During the past fortnight the season's activity has begun with considerable animation in all branches of the indoor sports. A larger attendance of members at this season of the year than has been known for many years has given much satisfaction to the various committees in charge of the events and encourages them in the belief that the season just opening will be one of the most notable in the club's history.

The club house has been renovated throughout at considerable expense. The ball room has been completely repainted in white and the floor, after being thoroughly scraped is now in excellent condition for the season's dancing. The desirability of this fine hall for private social affairs has filled the list of engagements to overflowing, there being few open dates left for the club itself to occupy the room.

The beautiful ladies' parlor, the dainty private dining rooms, the card room and the grill have all received careful treatment, and the beautiful oaken woodwork throughout the entire building gleams with a freshness which gives the fine architectural lines of the interior a new beauty and interest.

Two rooms on the main floor have been set aside for the ladies' dressing rooms, to be used for no other purpose, and the locker and wash rooms adjoining the bowling alleys are now in an up-to-date condition.

The club is in excellent financial condition, and under the direction and supervision of an active and hard-working house committee, and capable entertainment and sports' committees, the value of a membership in the club cannot be estimated. A movement is now on foot to increase the membership by urging many desirable residents of Newtonville and of the entire city, who are not at present on the roster, so that the social value of the club will have wider scope. The club is noted for its democratic sociability, and the particular charm of its dances and Thursday night neighborhood gatherings and the Saturday men's nights, as well as its auction assemblies, lies in the agreeable informality among hosts and guests.

The house bowling tournaments for both ladies and gentlemen will begin on or about October 6. Although much repair was done to the alleys last spring, the work of the summer has been put into a complete renovation of the entire room. The neighborhood night last week was well attended, considering the earliness of the season; and the Saturday night crowd was quite large, all enjoying the wholesome collation.

There has been a large attendance in the billiard room, where a tournament, to be announced, will soon begin. The first subscription dance was held last Friday, about twenty couples being present, and the first formal dance of the season is announced for Halloween Eve.

Members of the club will be glad to know that there have been very few resignations during the past summer. A complete roster of the club as well as a copy of the latest text of the by-laws will be printed for distribution among members about November first.

REAL ESTATE

The estate 72 Oxford road, corner Browning road, Newton Centre, consisting of a single frame house and about 7500 square feet of land, the whole assessed for $6500, of which $5500 is on the building, and $1000 on the land, for Mrs. Emma H. Bacon to Frederick M. Thrall of Rutland, Vermont. The new owner has bought for occupancy.

For Frank P. Burnham to F. W. Denio, the estate on Langley road, Newton Centre, consisting of a new frame house and about 4500 square feet of land. The new owner buys for occupancy.

For Prof. Wm. Z. Ripley, trustee of the estate of N. L. Ripley, to Walter L. Lane, the estate 116 Church street, corner Eldredge street, Newton, consisting of a single frame house and 8556 square feet of land, the whole assessed for $9200, of which $5500 is on the building, and $3700 on the land.

For Mary E. P. Chadbourne to Edith M. MacDonnell the lot of land on the southerly side of Marshall street opposite Chestnut terrace, containing 14,501 square-feet of land, assessed for $1800.

For Marie C. Fitzgerald to Daniel O'Driscoll, three lots of land with a large frame stable on Elliot street, Newton Highlands, assessed for $2000 of which $1500 is on the building and $500 on the land.

WINS FIRST GAME
Newton High opened its football season by winning from Quincy High 7 to 0 on Tuesday evening after-noon in a poorly played game. With the exception of the first period, Quincy had all the better of the contest and were it not for fumbles, would have tied Newton.

Wellman, Newton's quarterback; Capt. Van Tassel and Brady were the three Newton boys who played up to expectations. The former who played his first game at quarterback used good judgment directing his plays and his ability to carry the ball was surprising. Capt. Larkin, Foy, Bogan and Hamlin excelled for Quincy.

Newton had two chances to score and Quincy one. Newton made its touchdown in the first three minutes of the first period. Quincy kicked off to Brady, who ran back 15 yards. The Newton backs made three first downs and brought the ball beyond the center of the field. Wellman circled Quincy's end for a 28-yard run, which placed the ball within a yard of the goal.

On the second play Wellman went through the center of the Quincy line for a touchdown. Harris kicked the goal.

In the third period Quincy intercepted a Newton forward pass and ran back 40 yards. Turner of Newton overtook the Quincy back and downed him on Newton's 20-yard line. Three attempts to gain failed and Newton took the ball on downs.

Quincy made two forward passes which gained 35 yards. Newton's backfield found the Quincy line very strong and the visiting players frequently sifted through and stopped plays before the Newton backs started.

MASSACHUSETTS NAUTICAL SCHOOL

The outlook for young men who answer the call of the sea has not been so promising since the era of clipper ships as it is today. It is expected that the opening of the Panama Canal will result in the development of a commerce of large proportions between the Atlantic and Pacific coast ports of the United States.

The trade with South America that Germany, England and France have been compelled to relinquish on account of the war, will be diverted very largely to the United States if the war continues.

On August 18 last, an amendment to the Panama Canal act became effective allowing foreign built ships to be admitted to American registry for deep sea trade. Already a number of foreign ships have been placed under the American flag in accordance with this act.

The law recently enacted requiring all vessels of one thousand tons or more to carry an additional officer has increased the demand for graduates of the Massachusetts Nautical School.

In his last annual report, the U. S. Commissioner of Navigation reports as follows regarding the condition of shipping: "The year has been one of steady and symmetrical growth in practically all branches of the merchant marine. On June 30, 1913, the total tonnage of our merchant marine was 7,886,518 gross tons, an increase of 172,335 tons over the previous year, and the largest in our history. Excepting the British Empire, this tonnage greatly exceeds the combined tonnage of any other three nations. The most satisfactory statement is the record of 1,027,776 gross tons registered for the foreign trade, an increase of 95,675 tons over the previous year. Twenty-seven years have elapsed since we registered for foreign trade so large a tonnage as at present."

The development of our shipping and the increased demand for competent officers insure rapid promotion to those having proper qualifications and training. The young man who prepares himself today for a seafaring career will be in command of a ship in ten years, and the American ships of the future will be larger and better equipped than anything the country has yet seen.

The American merchant marine, "the great national training school," not only affords the youth of the state an opportunity to enter an honorable profession with a good income, but it develops character. The discipline of ship-board life brings out those heroic qualities which make for the highest manhood.

The Massachusetts Nautical School, now in its twenty-second year, is maintained by the state of Massachusetts and offers practical and theoretical instruction in seamanship and marine engineering. The scientific training received in this school prepares young men for the highest service as officers in the mercantile navy.

Lads of good character, physique and ability are graduated in two years.

The autumn examination of candidates will be held on October 10, 1914. Catalogue and application blank can be obtained by addressing Commissioners, Massachusetts Nautical School, 2A Park street, Boston.

GRAND OPERA
The dream of Boston music lovers to secure real Grand Opera at prices within the means of the masses is to find its complete realization at the Boston Theatre beginning next Monday evening when a season of twelve weeks of popular Grand Opera will be inaugurated.

There will be performance on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2 o'clock. The opening bill for Monday night will be a spectacular production of "Aida." The scenic settings have all been painted especially for the opening, and the gorgeous Nile scene must be seen to be appreciated. This opera will see the Bolshoi debut of two local singers, Blanche Hamilton Fox, the brilliant mezzo-soprano, who will sing the role of Amneris, and Joseph Florian, a splendid basso. The title role of Aida will be sung by Johanna Kristoffy, the leading soprano of the great Hof Opera in Vienna. One hundred and fifty people will take part in the wonderful triumphal scene. "This opera, "Aida," will be repeated with the same cast on Wednesday afternoon. On Tuesday and Friday evenings the favorite opera of "Carmen" will be given with Alice Gentile in the title role, Umberto Sacchetti, as Don Jose, Pietro Gallazzi as the Toreador and Rina de Sales, another Boston artist as Micaela. "Luscia di Lammermoor" will be sung on Wednesday evening and Saturday afternoon with the following cast: Attilio Ardini, Ramon Blanchard, Artile Crescenzo, and Pietro di Biasi. The supreme favorite, "Trovatore" will be given on Thursday and Saturday evenings with Kathryn Lynbrook as Leonora, Blanche Hamilton Fox as Azucena, Giuseppe Opezzo, as Arance, Ferruccio Corradetti as Count Di Luna and Joseph Florian as Ferrando. No matter what the opera or who the star, the popular scale of prices will always remain the same. Every Sunday evening there will be a superb operatic concert by the members of the company.

PEACE SUNDAY
In accordance with the President's proclamation "Peace Sunday" will be fittingly observed in St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands with a specially prepared form of service the offering at which will be devoted to Red Cross.

The full vested choir will render an elaborate musical service the program for which follows:

NEWTON SCHOOLS

training and broad experience, deeply interested in achieving the highest success for their individual schools. The teachers are earnest, enthusiastic and capable. I feel that our chief asset is not our buildings, fine as they are, but our faculty.

"Of course to maintain a system of schools as complete, up-to-date and progressive as ours requires a great deal of money, and makes the cost of education seem excessive compared with what it was in years gone by. It must be remembered, however, that the cost of maintenance in all of the city departments has greatly increased in the last 10 or 15 years, and I don't think that the increase for school maintenance has been above the average increase found necessary in other departments.

"Nor do I believe that the cost of the Newton schools is excessive when compared with that of other leading cities in the state. The cost of schools in any community will be determined ultimately by the ability of the community to pay the bills and by whether or not they desire the best in education. I am not in a position to know whether the Newton schools are more expensive than they ought to be, but I trust the city is eager for and will tolerate nothing but first-class schools.

Changes Necessary.
"In view of the great variety of opportunities offered here it would seem to me unnecessary to enlarge our activities at present or make any changes in the policies that have prevailed. I shall be fully occupied in studying the present system for the next few weeks and it will be my purpose to encourage and demand the best possible work in all lines pursued. Schools exist only for the highest welfare of the children who attend them, and any system fully to fulfill this purpose must be an alert, growing system, frequently subject to modification. Usually such modification should come about so naturally and gradually as not to disturb the situation."

Newton differs from many places in having both a classical and a technical high school building. More than that, the technical building houses two distinct schools, the technical and vocational. Each occupies about one half of the plant. The first offers courses which prepare for college and technical schools of college grade, for the managing and office side of mercantile business, and for art work. The vocational school aims to prepare pupils to pursue the practical arts of the home and to enter trade and the productive rather than the distributive side of manufacturing industry.

Vocational Work.
It is expected that the total enrollment in the vocational school this year will be nearly 400, and present signs indicate that two thirds will be boys. The courses open to boys comprise the machine, electrical, pattern making, cabinet making, printing, and a combined carpentry and cabinet-making course.

The course open to girls is called household arts, and its aim is to give girls and young women training for the profession of homemaking as well as the practical training which will enable them to be at least partially self-supporting upon completion of the course. This means that the sewing, cooking, millinery and so forth are given in such a way that they will measure up to a high commercial standard.

Beginning about the middle of October the school is to conduct evening classes for trade workers, both men and women. An enrollment of about 480 is anticipated, the instruction being open to those over 17 years of age. The vocational school is conducted under the direction of Michael W. Murray, head master, who also holds the position of director of manual and industrial work in the grades. "What we are trying to do," Mr. Murray says, "is to fill the need of the state for men who come between skilled mechanics and technical school graduates. Employers want young men who have detailed knowledge of the work in which they are to engage, knowledge that cannot be found in textbooks. We aim to supply this knowledge and at the same time we insist that the student take with his shop-work a certain amount of cultural study, English, civics, mathematics and the like.

"One difficulty we have is that boys get work to do in the summers and, by the way, we encourage them to do that—and then become so well pleased with the idea of having a job that they fail to return to finish their course. It would be better all around if the manufacturers would insist on these boys coming back to school.

"Another difficulty we have had is to secure the right kind of teachers, for they must be persons who have had college training and industrial experience as well. We are fortunate in the teachers we have and inasmuch as the state has undertaken now to provide training for the kind of teachers we need, it should not be difficult to secure them hereafter. Our teachers have come from all over New England, and from the West.

"It probably will be a surprise to some to learn that in each of our shops about $1500 worth of work is done each year. The boys who take the printing course, for example, do the printing for the school department of the city.

"There is no doubt that there is need in the state for much more of that kind of education given in our vocational courses. To be sure, the equipment required by such a school as ours makes it an expensive plant to build, but after such a building is once constructed the state pays half the maintenance expenses, so that really it is not such a costly proposition as it might at first appear.

"Our Newton technical high school was planned for 800, and now we have nearly 1100 pupils. This means that every available inch of space is being used. In the vocational school we have a faculty of 27, and we limit our classes to a membership of 15 in order that the pupils may get the individual attention necessary in this type of instruction."

A CITY MANAGER

How It Works In Dayton, Ohio the First City To Adopt This Method

The following article on the City Manager form of municipal government by Henry M. Waite of Dayton, Ohio, will be of interest to students of city government in this community. Mr. Waite says:

The commission-manager form of government in Dayton is the application of the newest development in organization to a municipality. The commission is elected by the people on a non-partisan and short ballot. The commissioner receiving the highest number of votes is the mayor. These five commissioners correspond to the board of directors of a corporation, and they select and appoint an executive, who is the city manager. All the functions of the municipal government come under the city manager, outside of the legislative functions, which are in the hands of the commission.

Under the executive in Dayton are the five operating departments. Each of these departments is headed by a director, and each of these directors is appointed by the city manager. They are:

Director of public safety, covering the police, fire, weights and measures. Director of service, who has charge of the water works, engineering, the construction, repairing and cleaning of the streets and sewers, the collection of garbage and ashes, and the general supervision of all public utilities.

Director of finance, who has under him the treasurer, the accountant, and the purchasing agent.

Director of welfare, having charge of all correctional institutions, hospitals, charities, parks, playgrounds, recreations, outdoor relief and social betterment and all community and social features.

Director of law, who is the city attorney. The appointment of these directors is the first step in the application of business methods to municipal government. Our director of law is one of the leading attorneys of Dayton. He was on the original charter commission and had more to do than anyone else with the drafting of the charter. He accepted the position at a sacrifice to his own business.

The director of welfare was a minister. He is an executive. He was at the head of a very large parish, and he is a man who was doing a wonderful work outside of his church. He had made studies of social conditions and social betterment; had traveled abroad and studied conditions in foreign cities, as well as the cities in this country, and his greatest work was being done outside of the church. He accepted the position of director of welfare and resigned from his church.

The director of finance is a man from Dayton who had occupied in the various industries of Dayton the positions of accountant, purchasing agent, and treasurer. When he was appointed he was a member of a firm of public accountants.

The director of service is a man from out of Dayton. When it came to the appointment of the various directors the commission and myself got together and they furnished me lists of the men who they thought had the characteristics and experience to fill the various positions. For the position of the director of service, however, they thought it advisable to bring a man from out of town, and so I selected a man who had large construction experience, had been on the waterworks in New York, a man who had studied municipal work, and who had been my principal assistant engineer in Cincinnati.

The directorship of safety has never been filled, as we were not able to find the right man, and the city manager is now filling that position.

These directors with the city manager, form the staff. They meet every day for an hour and go over the important questions in each department, the same as would be done in a corporation. If there is a division of ideas in these staff meetings, a vote is taken, and while this particular function is not called for in the charter, it centralizes the entire organization. Each director is responsible for his own department. Each director makes his own appointments, subject to the approval of the city manager, and the question of appointments is taken up at the staff meetings.

The commissioners, together with the city manager and the director of finance as secretary, form the sinking fund trustees. This brings all of the finance of the government inside of the central organization.

I think everyone will agree that there has been an awakening all over the country to the inefficiency of the old forms of municipal government and to the fact that we ourselves, the voters, made the conditions what they are. We may be dissatisfied at what is being accomplished, but, as a matter of fact, we are responsible. We have allowed innumerable laws and statutes to be passed which surround municipal work with a network of red tape, making progress and efficiency impossible. We, to protect our communities and ourselves—as we thought—allowed these laws to be passed, and there we ended our interest in municipal affairs. We elected people to office and then hampered them, then condemned them. I have thought, since I have been in municipal work, that if it was possible to get one of these public jobs in the open where we could handle it as our business, we are handled more remarkably showings could be made. Unfortunately, however, it is impossible, due to the network of laws and the attitude of the people, to get efficiency rapidly.

The municipal governments of American cities may be divided today into three classes: federal, commission, and commission-manager. Take any city organization under the old federal form and analyze it. Could any man operate his own private business with the organizations which we have allowed in our municipal affairs? We have here all kinds and conditions of individuality—some departments run by boards and commissions, some appointed and some elected. In a number of our cities the governor may appoint some of the boards or commissions.

A NEIGHBORS DUTY

Good Advice To Follow In Contagious Diseases

Every family which has a member ill with typhoid fever, scarlet fever, or other contagious disease, is entitled to the sympathy and intelligent help of the community. At the same time, the stricken family should realize fully that simple good citizenship calls upon its members to do everything in their power to prevent the spread of the contagion to neighbors. In the country especially, where there are seldom health officers to impose rigid quarantines, the duty of keeping the sick separated from the well falls with peculiar weight on the afflicted family. Ordinary neighborliness demands that such a family keep its members away from others and prevent outsiders from coming in contact with the infection.

On a farm producing and selling milk, a contagious disease such as typhoid or scarlet fever demands special precautions. A very few germs of these diseases allowed to get into the milk may multiply rapidly and be a source of disease in many families on the milk route served by the farmer.

In the case of typhoid, the disease may come from germs in the well water, and this water if used unboiled for cleansing milk bottles or cans may very well start a typhoid epidemic in a neighboring town. Inspectors have frequently traced outbreaks of scarlet fever and typhoid along a milk route and back to a sick person on the producer's farm.

It is the duty of every milk farmer to see that no one who is suffering from fever of any kind ever enters the dairy. Moreover, no one engaged in nursing the sick should ever be allowed to go near milk. Those who handle the milk on such farms, even though they never have been near the person who is sick, should take special precautions. Before entering the milk room they should put on a clean cap and a clean duster, which are never allowed to go into the house. In cases of typhoid or suspected typhoid all water used in cleansing milk vessels should first be boiled. Finally, even with all these precautions, whenever suspected in a family, the milk should be thoroughly pasteurized before being sold.

The milk producer who takes these precautions establishes his good citizenship. The one who handles milk carelessly with sickness in his family is, though he may not realize it, a possible enemy to his customers. Such precautions are doubly necessary where the owner of the farm is the sufferer, because the milk is apt to be handled carelessly for lack of his supervision. Inspectors recently following up a case of bad milk found the owner of the farm sick with a bad case of typhoid fever. He gave his illness as a reason for his not being prosecuted, because the low quality of the milk was due directly to his handling by inexperienced persons. Investigation proved that the farmer's illness was one of a succession of cases of typhoid that had occurred on this farm. The probability, therefore, was that the milk being sent out before the farmer was sick was dangerously contaminated, while

CHRISTIAN FORUM

Will Open For the Season At Eliot Church On Sunday Night

The Christian Forum will hold its first meeting of the season in Eliot Church Sunday, October 11, at 7.30. Rev. Arthur J. Brown, D. D., of New York, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, will speak on, "The Effect of the European War Upon World-Wide Christianity."

The program for the other meetings is as follows:—

November 8. President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University on an educational subject, announced later.

December 13. Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale University. "The Case For and Against Socialism."

January 10. Dr. Graham Taylor of the Chicago Commons. "Humanized Religion Emphasized by War."

February 14. Lee Franklin Hamner of New York. "The Basis of Public Concern in Recreation."

March 7. Mary Antin of New York. "The Responsibility of American Citizenship."

April 2. Dean Laurens J. Birney of Boston University. Preacher at the Union Good Friday Service.

SAMPSON—WOODBURY

The wedding of Miss Pauline Adele Woodbury, niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur McKee and Mr. Winsor Garbett Sampson took place Wednesday evening, Oct. 7, in St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands, at eight o'clock. Rev. Louis A. Parsons, rector of the parish officiated and Mr. Edgar J. Smith presided at the organ.

The bride is the only child of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Woodbury of Winchester, N. H. The bridegroom is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Sampson of Newton Highlands. Miss Woodbury was accompanied by her cousin Miss Vera G. McKee, as maid of honor, and was given away by her uncle Mr. McKee. Mr. Preston S. Sampson, brother of the groom, was best man, the ushers being Mr. Ernest W. Fisher and Mr. Harry B. Bradford of Newton Highlands, Mr. Kenneth Smith of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mr. Lawrence W. Smith of Newton.

Mr. and Mrs. Sampson will reside in Auburndale after returning from a short trip in the west.

EVENING SCHOOLS

Excellent Courses To Be Opened On October 19th At Technical High School

All evening schools will open on Monday evening, October 19, 1914. The following courses are offered:

A SHORT SESSION

Board of Aldermen Consider a Long Docket In Record Time

Notwithstanding a long docket and numerous hearings, the board of aldermen held a comparatively short session on Monday evening, adjournment being reached just before nine o'clock.

President Blakemore was in the chair and all were present but Aldermen Blanchard, Jamieson and Winslow.

Hearings were held on pole locations of the Edison Co. on Eddy street, and Moreland avenue, of the Telephone Co. on Ridge avenue, on petition of C. Peter Clark to keep gasoline on Pleasant street, on the laying out of Ionia street, and laying concrete sidewalks, under betterment act on Newtonville avenue. No one appeared at these hearings and favorable action was taken on all later in the session. A hearing was also held on the Edison petition for poles on Summer street and of the Edison and Mid-diesex & Boston Co. for joint poles on Eliot street.

Mayor Childs sent in a long list of matters including an offer of John T. Burns and Russel K. Nash to buy the old armory property on Washington street, requests of the Street Commissioner for $4200 additional for sewer work at Waban, and for transfer of $2100 to Street Maintenance account, the decree of the County Commissioners for a 50 foot bridge over Boylston street, Eliot, recommending the widening of a portion of Rowe street recommending certain changes in the Building Code in regard to roofing, request of the Board of Appeals for changes regarding garages, and inviting the board to the annual inspection of the city of October 17th.

The City Clerk reported the number of ballots cast at stated intervals on Sept. 22 in which it appeared that about 35 per cent were cast after 5 P. M. on that date. The Election officers asked for additional pay for the extra hours required on Sept. 22 and this was subsequently refused. The Fire Prevention Commissioner filed a communication authorizing the mayor and aldermen to issue licenses for keeping gasoline.

Petitions were received from J. V. Green for intelligence office license, Fred McIsaac, M. T. Mehigan and Emmanuel DeFazio for taxicab licenses, F. J. Mague for sewer in Washington street, E. H. Alexander for abatement of street sprinkling assessment on Greenough street, of the Edison Co. for relocation on Beacon street, for attachments on Eddy street, and Bowen street and for leave to withdraw on relocation petition on Summer street, from McMullen et al for removal of switch track and for centre location of regular track on Woodward street, of the Telephone Co. for attachments on Waldorf road and to remove poles on Washington street, and of Helen S. Sisk relative to laying out of Duffield road. Petitions of M. H. Gulesian, Waban Hill road, Ferdinand Vachon and James McDonald, Faxon street and Jos. Pouliot, Los Angeles street for apportionment of betterments were granted.

On reports of committees, claims of James Bros. $76.25, Minnie I. Locke, $50., John T. Gilmore $40.74, and James Maher $171.58, were approved, leave to withdraw granted on claims of Thomas Kiley and Jas. H. McCready, the Edison Co. were granted pole locations on Churchill street, Warren avenue, Prince street, Washburn avenue, Plymouth road, Baldwin street, attachments on Eddy street, Florida street, and Allerton road, the Telephone Co. was granted attachments on Fayette street, Russell court, Madison avenue, Regent street, Aspen avenue and Waldorf road, the West End St. Rwy. was granted pole locations on Washington street, leave to withdraw was granted the Edison Co. on poles on Washington park and for relocations on Newtonville avenue and Summer street, and to A. K. Casson for a garage license of Commonwealth avenue, licenses were granted W. H. Marston, as common victualler, Walnut street, ward 2, T. F. Green for 2 pool tables, Walnut street, ward 2, F. A. Currier, for 2 pool tables, Walnut street, ward 2, R. C. Huestis for removal of license as private detective, and to Andrew Mazzone to keep gasoline at 975 Chestnut street, petitions for sewers in Trapelo road, Hawthorne street, Davis avenue, Lexington street, Boylston street, Ransom road and Rockwood terrace were referred to the next city government, leave to withdraw was granted on sewers in Wetherell street and Grove Hill Park and for repairs to Washington park, petitions for sewers in Watertown street and Wolcott park, and for water mains in Brewster and Crofton roads were granted. A hearing was assigned for Oct. 19 on laying curbing on Adams street, claim of A. W. Robinson on account of lay out of Waban Hill road was settled for payment of one-half the assessment, the Rules Committee was requested to draft an ordinance regulating the collection of ashes and papers, $2500 was transferred for resurfacing of Beacon street, east of Hobart road, and $4200 additional voted for sewers in Waban. Soldiers' Relief was granted to Eliza Nagle and a veterans' pension to Patrick Nagle. $1500 was voted the Board of Health for work on wet, rotten and spongy land off Needham street, sidewalk assessments levied on estates on Aberdeen street, and orders adopted calling the state election.

The platforms of the three political parties in this state are now before the voters for consideration. Not one of them probably represents all that each individual voter would like emphasized as a party creed, and yet all undoubtedly are a fair statement of the prevailing opinions of large groups of voters, modified, possibly by the individual impress of some of the prominent leaders. But the voters will, undoubtedly, look beyond the platform to the personality of the party candidates, for, after all, the man chosen as the leader of the people will point the way, more or less regardless of a platform, framed by others than himself.
In this respect, the Republican party must commend itself, for in Mr. Mc-Call, it has a candidate for governor who measures head and shoulders above the others. With a splendid record for many years for independent thought and action combined with much constructive legislation in the National Congress, Mr. McCall has gained the confidence of the people of Massachusetts which will be reflected in the vote on November 3rd. When Mr. McCall is compared with the "amiable inefficiency" of Mr. Walsh and the weather vane performances of Mr.
Walker, there can be but one answer.
Elect Mr. McCall as the next governor of Massachusetts.

One of the interesting side lights on the action of the aldermen in calling the city election for Dec. 8th was the failure to recognize a vacancy which will take place on January first on account of the removal of Alderman Blakemore from ward one to ward seven. Mr. Blakemore would have one year more to serve, had he not purchased a home in another ward, and under the city charter, his office will become vacant at the end of the present year. The same thing took place some five or six years ago, when Alderman Weston of ward 7 moved to ward 3, and at that time the call was inserted in the order for the city election and the people filled the vacancy by electing Alderman Barker. As the matter stands at present, the voters will not have the opportunity to fill the coming vacancy and it will be left to the new board of aldermen to elect Mr. Blakemore's successor. The GRAPHIC believes that the matter should have been treated as it was before and that the people should fill this office and not the board of aldermen.

Real estate owners, agents and builders will be interested in the proposition to be given a public hearing before the Committee on Rules of the board of aldermen next week, to increase the distance a wooden building can be erected from the property line.
From five to ten feet, and the distance
a new wooden building can be erected from an existing wooden building from ten to twenty feet. The measure is frankly aimed at the kind of building now contemplated in the vicinity of Tremont street, near the Brighton line, and while it has some merit, it is such a radical change in the building policy of the city as to demand the most serious consideration.

The women's clubs of this city who have been agitating the abolition of billboards will have an opportunity to make an effective protest on these lines
at a public hearing to be given Oct.
19 at 15 Ashburton place, Boston, before a commission appointed by the last legislature to consider the proposed taxation of signs.

Boston Transcript

Saturday, Oct. 10, 1914

If the country is to be called upon to protect the cotton growers of the South by the purchase of individual bales of cotton, there is an equal demand from New England apple growers who are facing a similar crisis in their own field of industry. An enormous crop, limited world markets on account of the war, competition from exceptionally heavy crops of other fruits—all these causes spell a condition that the New England apple growers must face. This year is but a promise of what will shortly come.
Over one-half of the apple-trees in the state are practically coming into bearing, and in a few years more the resulting enormous additional crop of apples from these maturing trees will gut the market yearly.

"Buy A Barrel."
While it is possibly too soon to protest too vigorously against the new arrangements of the Boston Elevated due to the opening of the new Boylston street subway, it is quite evident that two conditions require modification before they will become acceptable to the travelling public. The most annoying situation is that of the new transfer point at the Watertown car barn, where conditions have been very bad all the week, largely due to the negligence and indifference of the operating force of the company. The Company also, probably did not realize that the new subway would add very much to the travel between Nonantum square and Boston by way of Brighton and more cars are urgently needed to accommodate the public.

It is amusing to note that the Republican state convention sidestepped
the equal suffrage matter by simply ignoring it. It reminds one of the ostrich hiding its head in the sand,
for that matter will certainly come up for action at the next Legislature and if the vote at the last session is any criticism, it will receive a large majority in favor of its submission to the people at the election in November, 1915. In some things the leaders of the Republican party are as obtuse as ever, and this is perhaps the most conspicuous.

While the Heath claim for reimbursement for money advanced for splendid public improvement has no legal standing before our city government, there can be no question regarding the moral obligation resting on the city to recompense Mrs. Heath for all financial outlay regarding the widening of Lowell avenue, as soon as the necessary Legislative authority can be obtained.

The change just made in the Building Code to stiffen the requirements for fireproof construction in all apartment and tenement houses is a step in the right direction. Newton is not anxious to have a "Melvin apartment" holocaust.

A Kalamazoo judge sentenced a man to jail for five years for stealing a can of condensed milk. Apparently a case in which the punishment was not sufficiently condensed to fit the crime.—Boston Transcript.

ANNUAL MEETING

The Thirty-first annual meeting of the Auburndale Village Improvement Association was held in Society Hall,
Taylor Block, Wednesday, October 7th.

President Wickliffe J. Spaulding reported on the work of the Society for the past year, that the chief result had been the completion of the new playground on West Pine street.

Auburndale Park of which the playground is a part, was secured a number of years ago by the Society through the generosity of the Auburndale people.

Their interest has been shown again
this year by a ready response to the Society's call for money to supplement the city appropriation in finishing the playground. The playground has been carefully graded and in the spring will have the best base ball diamond in the Newtons.

The treasurer's report showed a healthy condition of the Society's funds.

A vote of thanks was given Dr.
Winslow of Lasell for the use of the Seminary tennis courts during the summer.

at 12 o'clock. The address will be given in the auditorium of the Church
by Mr. Thomas Weston, Jr., of West Newton. An offering will be taken at Rally Service for the Sunday School Board of the M. E. Church.

PASTOR'S RECEPTION

The annual pastor's reception on Tuesday evening at Immanuel Baptist church was a very delightful social occasion, and attended by more than 150. The affair was in charge of a committee from the Immanuel Woman Associates, and the church parlors were most attractively adorned with autumn foliage, chrysanthemums and hydrangeas.

An excellent program of music was furnished by the Children's Orchestra
from the Makechule Music School, and vocal selections were rendered by Mr. Lothar Van Buskirk.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlin received during the early hours of the evening, and were assisted by the deacons of the church and their wives. Refreshments were served and autumn flowers were arranged in pleasing effect on the tables.

The Potato Habit.

Potato eating has become a habit
not because potatoes contain enough nourishment to carry on life, but because they are cheap, easy to prepare and bulky enough to fill up the stomach. The potato consists almost entirely of starch, and though this has a place in the diet it is not capable of building up strength and muscle. Constant reference is made to the hardi-hood of colonists and early settlers.
They were not raised on a potato diet,
for the potato was a luxury as late as 1800, to be served with sugar, nutmeg and mace. It is a product of more recent years, part and parcel of the struggle to keep down the living expense at the cost of the body.

This does not mean that potatoes should be eliminated from the dietary,
for like every other food they have a definite mission to fulfill, but they must be used with discretion and in proper combination. Excessive use brings an inevitable trail of anaemia, obesity and auto-intoxication.—Country Gentleman.

Poisoners of Rome.

Tofana, the Italian woman poisoner
of the seventeenth century, was carrying on a tradition of ancient Rome. In 331 B. C. a supposed pestilence swept the city, and many leading men were carried off. Then a slave girl gave information, and the authorities surprised twenty Roman matrons preparing drugs over a fire. Since they insisted that the drugs were not poisonous they were compelled to drink them in the Forum, and all perished. Further information having been laid, 170 matrons were condemned. In 184 B.
C. a four months' inquiry by the praetor resulted in the condemnation of 2,000 persons for poisoning. There were many similar scandals, but it will always remain doubtful whether in any particular one of these ancient cases the epidemic was not really natural.—London Spectator.

Gladstone's Quick Temper.

A story is told of an encounter between Queen Victoria and Mr. Gladstone.

Mr. Gladstone in an audience with the queen one day produced a list of people whom he wished to be made peers. The queen demurred and said,
"I cannot create as many as this, Mr.
Gladstone."

Whereupon Mr. Gladstone, who sometimes got into a temper, tore the list up. The queen dashed slightly, but said nothing to Mr. Gladstone, who shortly afterward quitted the royal presence.

Some short time later Mr. Gladstone presented a new list, much shorter than the previous occasion.

The queen, without looking at it, tore it up. It was then Mr. Gladstone's turn to flush.—New York Sun.

Wonders of the Soil.

Professor W. B. Bottomley, in a lecture recently delivered at the royal botanic gardens, said that a cloud of earth might seem to have no romance in it, but it was one of the most wonderful things imaginable. The soil was alive, it was a living machine, where microbes so small that 10,000,000 to 100,000,000 were contained in enough earth to cover a halfpenny were working together in a systematic way. They could not be seen and were only known by their work, and the greatest benefactors to the human race were those who promoted their activities. The wise gardener looked after their well being, for without them there would be no plant life and no human life, since all nutriment was drawn from the soil.—London Globe.

Modesty.

Dribbler—In my opinion a man who writes an illegible hand does it because he thinks people are willing to puzzle over it. In other words, he is a chunk of conceit.

Scribbler—Not always. Sometimes a man writes illegibly not because he is conceited but because he is modest.

"Modest! What about?"
"About his spelling!"—London Mail.

A Step Higher.

The Delegate—I tell you, sir, that the root of trouble of the educational system of this nation is the teacher.
The Listener—But, say, ain't you a teacher yourself? The Delegate (indignantly)—A teacher, sir! Certainly not. I am an educator!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Always Doubtful.

1805—It is doubtful if men will ever
fly.

1914—It is doubtful if men will ever
fly across the ocean.

1920—It is doubtful if men will ever
fly around the world.

1925—It is doubtful if men will ever
fly to Mars.—Pittsburgh Post.

Distasteful to Him.

"Look at those cannibals gambling about the pot."

"I never did care for these dinner dances," said the other shipwrecked one.—Kansas City Journal.

Made a Bad Job of It.

Mr. Bacon—That Mr. Crossley, who called last evening is a self made man.
Mrs. Bacon—Too bad he couldn't have made himself a little more agreeable.

Courage of Innocence.

To dread no eye and to suspect no tongue is the greatest prerogative of innocence; an exemption granted only to inviolable virtue.—Johnson.

Wrong Both Ways.

"You refused the earl, Amalie, dear?"
Young Widow—He's too old for me.
"But his title?" "That too new for me!"—Dix Muskete, Vienna.

DEATH THE LEVELER.

The glories of our birth and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armor against fate—
Death lays his icy hand on kings—
Scepter and crown
Must tumble down,
And in the dust be equal made
With the poor crooked scythe and spade.

The garlands wither on your brow;
Then boast no more your mighty deeds.
Upon death's purple altar, now See where the victor victim bleeds!
All heads must come
To the cold tomb.
Only the actions of the just Smell sweet and blossom in the dust.

—James Shirley.

MEMORY.

It is with the human race as with the individuals of it, our memories go back but a little way, or, if they go back far, they pick up here a date and there an occurrence half forgotten.—
Dawson.

It is the treasure house of the mind wherein the monuments thereof are kept and preserved.
—Fuller.

Recollection is the only paradise from which we cannot be turned out.—Richter.

The right honorable gentleman is indebted to his memory
for his jests and to his imagination for his facts.—R. B. Sheridan's Reply to Mr. Dundas.

If a man do not erect in this age his own tomb ere he dies,
he shall live no longer in monument than the bell rings and the widow weeps. * * * An hour in clamor and a quarter in rheum.—Shakespeare.

THE ASPEN.

At that awful hour of the Passion when the Saviour of the world felt deserted in his agony;
when

The sympathizing sun his light withdrew
And wondered how the stars their dying Lord could view;

when earth, shaken with horror,
rang the passing bell for Delty
and universal nature groaned, then from the loftiest tree to the lowliest flower all felt a sudden thrill and, trembling, bowed their heads—all save the proud and obdurate aspen, which said:
"Why should we weep and tremble? We trees and plants and flowers are pure and never sinned."
Ere it ceased to speak an involuntary trembling seized its every leaf, and the world went forth that it should never rest, but tremble on until the day of judgment.—Old Legend.

SAGES ON MAN.

Such is man! In great afflic-tion he is elevated by the first minute; in great happiness, the most distant sad one, even while yet, beneath the horizon, casts him down.—Richter.

I have thought some of nature's journeymen had made
men and not made them well.
They imitated humanity so abominably.—Shakespeare.

The man of wisdom is the man of years.—Young.

Man, that flowers so fresh at morn and fades at evening late.
—Spenser.

When I beheld this I sighed and said within myself, "Surely mortal man is a broomstick!"
—Swift.

ERIN, MAVOURNEEN.

When the pure sense of honor shall cease to inspire thee
And kind hospitality leaves
thy gay shore,

When the nations that know
thee no longer admire thee,
Then Erin, mavourneen, I'll
love thee no more.

When the trumpet of fame shall cease to proclaim thee
Of warriors the nurse in the ages of yore,

When the muse and the record
of genius disclaim thee,
Then Erin, mavourneen, I'll
love thee no more.

When thy brave sons no longer
are generous and witty
And cease to be loved by the fair they adore,

When thy daughters no longer
are virtuous and pretty,
Then Erin, mavourneen, I'll
love thee no more.

FATALLY BURNED

Joseph Cincotte, gardener for Frederick H. Kennard at 246 Dudley road, Oak Hill, died at the Newton Hospital at 11 o'clock Friday night as the result of burns sustained that afternoon by an explosion of kerosene while he was filling a lantern in an outbuilding on the Kennard estate.

His clothes caught fire and he ran to the Kennard house, where the flames were extinguished. They had burned off almost all his clothes and his body was a mass of burns. Dr. Henry Watters was called and Cincotte was removed to the Newton Hospital. The flames were extinguished in the outbuilding before any appreciable damage was done.

Cincotte was 40 years old, and married. He lived on Boylston street, Thompsonville.

At a Probate Court holden at Cambridge in and for said County of Middlesex, on the fifth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen.

ON the petition of Michael Patrick Curley of Newton in said County, by Michael Curley his father, and next friend, praying that his name may be changed to that of Arthur Ryan Curley public notice having been given, according to the order of the Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reason given therefor is sufficient, and consistent with the public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made:

It is Decreed that his named be changed, as prayed for, to that of Arthur Ryan Curley which name he shall hereafter bear, and which shall be his legal name, and that he give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic a newspaper published in Newton and make return to this Court under oath that such notice has been given.

GEORGE F. LAWTON,
Judge of Probate Court.

Cured His Obesity.

Peter the Great was once traveling incognito in a part of Finland when he met a very fat man, who told him that he was going to St. Petersburg.

"What for?" asked the czar.

"To consult a doctor about being so fat, which has become very oppressive."

"Do you know any doctor there?"

"No."

"Then I will give you a line to my friend, Prince Menschikoff, and he will introduce you to one of the emperor's physicians."

The traveler went to the prince's house with a note. The answer was not delayed. The next day, tied hands and feet, the poor man was dragged off on a cart to the mines.

Two years after Peter the Great was visiting the mines. He had forgotten the incident of the fat man, when suddenly a miner threw down his pick, rushed up to him and fell at his feet, crying:

"Grace, grace, what is it I have done?"

Peter looked at him, astonished, until he remembered the story.

"Oh, so that is you!" he said. "I hope you are pleased with me. Stand up. How thin and slight you have become! Go, and remember that work is the best cure for your complaint!"

How Do You Laugh?

Refinement can be indicated as strongly by the manner in which a person laughs as by the tone of the speaking voice.

If some people could hear the tone they use while laughing they would doom themselves to perpetual sadness.

A real hearty laugh is like a tonic to the system. It not only does the person good who enjoys it, but it does every one good who hears it.

Of such a laugh there is no criticism. But there are people who do not enjoy laughing, but who laugh in a forced and artificial manner, and generally at the most impossible moment.

An affected laugh by either a man or a woman is a counterfeit of the true feelings. There is no necessity to laugh loudly, the heartiest laugh is the softest in tone.

Remember, when laughter is natural it is irresistible and beautiful, and when it is forced it falls like rasping brass upon refined ears.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Brazil's Name.

Long before the Portuguese colonized the coast of Brazil adventurous Bristol merchants had equipped expeditions in a vain search for the supposed island of Brasilie. Who gave Brazil her present name is unknown to fame—the early Portuguese called it Terra da Vera Cruz—but whoever baptized the country took the name from the East Indies. For many years before the discovery of Brazil merchants had brought from the east for the use of dyers a wood which yielded a beautiful red color—brasil or brasilly. The West Indies have trees of the same sort, but Brazil contains them in more abundance than any other country. So that Brazil wood is not called so after the country. The country is named so because of its red dye trees.—London Chronicle.

Travels of Roots.

Roots travel amazing distances in search of their requirements. A timber merchant, excavating for a sewer in England, found an elm root one and a quarter inches in diameter and sixty-three feet long, running through a bed of sawdust from the tree to the nearest water.

The aggregate length of root thrown out by some plants is almost incredible. A cucumber will, within its short life of about half a year, throw out from ten to fifteen miles of roots.

Clover roots will go straight down to a depth of six to nine feet in search of moisture, and cloverfoot, one of the most powerful and persistent of weeds, sends its suckers down to an even greater depth.—London Stray Stories.

Lost the Point.

The Teacher—Now, children, listen to this. Thomas Campbell, the famous poet, once walked six miles to a printing office to have a comma in one of his poems changed to a semicolon. Why did he take all that trouble? Bright Boy—"Cause he didn't have no telephone.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Publicity.

"It's a bad thing to talk about your neighbors."

"That's right," replied the man who is all business. "Publicity is worth something these days. I shouldn't think of talking about anybody except at advertising rates."—Washington Star.

Another Recipe.

Aspiring Novelist—Ah, sir, I am highly flattered. I'm sure, to hear that you take my book to bed with you and read it there! Acquaintance—Yes, I have been troubled with insomnia for a long time, and I find one of your pages much better than any medicine.

A Sore Point.

"The world will recognize me after I am dead," said the gloomy artist.

"I beg of you," exclaimed the distinguished Latin-American; "let us not start any more of these complicated arguments about recognition!"—Washington Star.

The Secret Incentive.

When I read history and am impressed with any great deed I feel as if I should like to see the woman who is concealed behind it as its secret incentive.—Heinrich Heine.

Good nature and common sense are required from all.

FREEDOM.

There is only one cure for evils which newly acquired freedom produces, and that cure is freedom. When a prisoner first leaves his cell he cannot bear the light of day; he is unable to discriminate colors or recognize faces. The remedy is to accustom him to the rays of the sun.

The blaze of truth and liberty may at first puzzle and bewilder nations which have become half blind in the house of bondage. But let them gaze on and they will soon be able to bear it. In a few years men learn to reason. The extreme violence of opinions subsides. Honest theories correct each other. The scattered elements of truth coalesce. And at length a system of justice and order is educed out of the chaos.

Many politicians of our time are in the habit of laying it down as a self evident proposition that no people ought to be free till they are fit to use their freedom. The maxim is worthy of the fool in the old story who resolved not to go into water till he had learned to swim. If men are to wait for liberty till they become wise and good in slavery they may indeed wait forever.—Macaulay.

ELECT MR. CARTER

William H. Carter of Needham is the Republican candidate for Congress against John Mitchell who won the special election when Captain Weeks was elected Senator. Mitchell has done effective campaigning with the aid of Uncle Sam's frank and garden seeds. If ability to do such routine and formal work is the measure of a congressman, Mitchell can make quite a showing. But this district is vitally interested in the tariff. Many large factories are located here and many residents of the district are financially interested or work in factories located elsewhere. It is an undeniable fact that the Democratic tariff ignored the interests of New England industries. It is common knowledge that many factories are on short time and that business generally was unfavorably affected by this tariff. And what did Mitchell and the other Democrats from New England do? They meekly walked into a Democratic caucus and agreed to vote as Mr. Underwood from Alabama and Mr. Kitchen from South Carolina and the other southern congressmen decided they should. That's good politics when one is playing for the favor of an important committee appointment. It remains to be seen whether it is good politics "back home" to play for one's own advantage and ignore the industrial interests of one's district. The tariff hasn't certainly made the cost of living any lower for the laborer. If the manufacturer says it is hurting him and the workmen know that they are not getting "full time," who wins? Perhaps some one across the water or perhaps the congressman himself. We'll join in any resolution declaring Congressman Mitchell a good fellow and we might truthfully say many nice things about him, but when it comes to analyzing his congressional career, we fail to see where his real record is entitled to more than a very ordinary rating. The fact that he is going on the Ways and Means Committee is notice to us in Massachusetts that his presence there is acceptable to the next chairman of the South Carolina who was the man who attacked New England so viciously in his tariff speeches.

In Mr. Carter the Republicans offer a man who has risen thro' hard labor in his factory to the head of a great business and to an honored place in his community. He knows the effect of the Underwood tariff for he has felt it in his business. Mr. Carter is not a great orator. He is not skilled in the tactics of politics. He opened his campaign for the nomination by going straight to the voters. After he had secured the support of enough voters, the so-called leaders of the party were asked to support him. One needs only to inquire about him through his business friends to learn that he is a plain, outspoken, straight, from-the-shoulder business man who would represent the business service of this district and who wouldn't know when he was "licked" if the interests of the district were attacked.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

A SIMPLE MEAL.

DINNER MENU.
Spinach Puree.
Cucumber Salad.
Scalloped Tomatoes.
Veal Goulash.
Apple Custard.
Coffee.

A SUBSTANTIAL yet inexpensive dinner is outlined above. Some suggestions for preparing it are given here.

A Novel Soup.
Spinach Puree.—Wash and boil until tender one pound of fresh spinach. Drain, chop fine and simmer in a saucepan in which one tablespoonful of butter has been melted. Take from stove, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of nutmeg and one tablespoonful of grated cheese. Heat one cupful each of milk and water. When boiling add the spinach and two beaten eggs, simmer for four minutes, then place, uncovered, on the top shelf of a very hot oven for five minutes. Serve with croutons.

Scalloped Tomatoes.—Season about a pint of sliced tomatoes with a teaspoonful of salt, a scant teaspoonful of pepper and onion juice. Add a cupful of finely minced celery. Butter a baking dish. First put in half of the tomatoes, then a layer of crackers. Sprinkle with two heaping tablespoonfuls of grated cheese; then add the tomatoes, sprinkle the top with cracker crumbs and bits of butter and bake twenty minutes.

A French Method.
Veal Goulash.—Take about one and one-half pounds of lean fillet or leg of veal. Remove skin and sinews and cut into fairly thick slices or cubes of even size. Peel and slice thinly a fairly large onion and fry in a pan with an ounce of lard to a pale color. Now put in the meat, season with salt, pepper and paprika and allow to cook. Next dredge the meat with about a tablespoonful of flour, mix well and moisten with one-half a pint of good stock and a small glass of claret, cover the pan and allow to cook slowly for about an hour. Have ready two or three potatoes, washed, peeled and cut into cubes; add these when the meat is half done. About ten minutes before serving mix a little sour cream with the stew. Serve hot.

Apple Custard.—Take a half dozen apples, pare and grate these with the rind of one lemon. Add the yolks of three eggs, sweeten to taste and bake ten to fifteen minutes in a quick oven. When done spread over the top a meringue made by beating the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, with a tablespoonful of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Put the custard in the oven to brown.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

WAYS OF USING POTATOES.

THE homely potato may be disguised in various appetizing ways. If you are looking for novel ways of serving potatoes consider these recipes:

Potato Custard.—Take six large white potatoes, boil and mash them and add two well beaten eggs, butter, pepper, salt and a cupful of hot milk. Beat until smooth and light, add a little sugar and a dash of nutmeg. Lightly fill greased custard cups and bake.

Foreign Recipes.
Potato Flanders.—Take four large potatoes, boil and slice them and add a tablespoonful of chopped onion, as much parsley, pepper and salt to taste and half a cupful of rich milk. Stir and pour into a baking dish, cover with the yolk of an egg mixed with half a cupful of breadcrumbs. Bake until brown.

Hollandaise Potatoes.—Cut boiled potatoes in quarters. If potatoes are large cut into eighths. Pour melted butter flavored with lemon juice over them. Season with salt and paprika and cook about ten minutes in the oven. Then sprinkle with parsley. Use one and a half cupfuls of potatoes to two tablespoonfuls of butter and half a teaspoonful of lemon juice.

A Tempting Salad.
Potato and Olive Salad.—Take four good sized boiled potatoes and cut into dice. Add fifteen stoned and chopped olives cut into good sized pieces and two hard boiled eggs, also cut up. Sprinkle with salt, olive oil and vinegar and fold together. Set on ice for an hour. Add half a cupful of stiff mayonnaise. Put rings of olives on top.

Curried Potatoes.—Take two large potatoes cut into cubes about an inch square, place in saucepan with a tablespoonful of melted butter. Season to taste with salt, cayenne pepper and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Stir thoroughly and then add a pint of hot water. Let cook till potatoes are well done, but not mushy. Leave enough liquid to form a gravy when they are served. If you like a milk sauce put an eighth of a cupful of milk in a bowl, add half a cupful of cold water and blend in two tablespoonfuls of flour. Pour this over the potatoes and cook till liquid is reduced one-half.

Japanese Furnishings Are For Milady's Afternoon Tea Table

EVERYTHING Japanese is now in order for the afternoon tea service. A charming set is illustrated here. It includes matching pieces from the little jardiniere for the plant to the lamp with its slender vase-like bowl. When tea is served from a set like this the hostess feels a subtle satisfaction that only a woman can understand. Japanese embroideries on the dollies and a Japanese shade on the lamp are touches of completeness. If the plant in the fancy bowl is a miniature cherry tree or other dwarfed Japanese plant the effect will be perfect.

Little tables fitted with rose jars, etc., as in the second picture, are considered smart drawing room furnishings.

In Paris and at Newport the popularity of all things Chinese and Japanese is reflected in the use of furnishings and bric-a-brac of this sort. Any one may have a few pieces of good quality. The modern ware is both dainty, attractive and comparatively inexpensive.

In tea carts there are offered some dainty wags.

AFTERNOON TEA SET.
ons better suited to boudoirs than drawing rooms. They are of rattan in the natural color, combined with another delicate tint. They can be secured in pale blue, pale pink, light green and pale yellow to match boudoirs decorated in such tints. The top has a glass tray effect, and on the lower shelf are three compartments for the cakes, crackers, etc., separated by rattan railings.

FOR THE DRAWING ROOM TABLE.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

There is a woman's industrial farm in Canada.

Queen Mary is conceded to be the best dancer among British royalty.

The majority of women workers in Great Britain earn less than $3 a week.

Mrs. Mortimer Slinger of London recently made a balloon flight of 200 miles.

The State university of Iowa offers speakers on social welfare to women's clubs.

The best constructive work done on the Transiberian railway was in charge of a woman.

Many Greenland women are bald on the sides of their heads, owing to their method of dressing the hair, which is pulled back tightly and held in place by a ribbon.

Three good laughs an hour, three square meals and three hours' work outdoors every day are prescribed by Mrs. Thomas Bennet of Brooklyn, N. Y., for long life. She is 102.

TOASTING BREAD.

Preparing It So That It May Be Easily Digested.

We toast bread not merely to brown it, but to take out all the moisture possible, that it may be more easily moistened with the saliva and thus easily digested; then we brown it to give it a better flavor.

If the slice be thick and carelessly exposed to a blazing fire the outside is blackened and made into charcoal before the heat can reach the inside. The moisture is then only heated, not evaporated, and makes the inside doughy or clammy. Butter when spread upon such bread cannot penetrate, but floats on the surface in the form of oil, and the result is one of the most indigestible compounds.

The correct way is to have the bread stale and cut into thin uniform slices and to dry it thoroughly before browning. Such toast moistened with water or milk may be easily and thoroughly acted upon by digestive fluids.

To Avoid Shelling Peas.

Instead of shelling peas, throw them, pods and all, into a saucepan of boiling water after washing and discard all spoiled ones. When they are done the pods will rise to the surface, while the peas will stay at the bottom of the saucepan. Peas cooked in this manner have a fine flavor.

Helpful Hints For Hostesses

Give a real welcome to each guest on his or her arrival.
See to it that the door is promptly opened when guests arrive.
Nothing takes the edge off a welcome more than having to wait rather a long time on the step.
Try to be equally nice to all your guests when you give a party.
It's so easy to leave some one out in the cold if one isn't careful.
If guests are to feel happy the hostess must really enjoy their company.
If you heave a sigh of relief as soon as visitors have left the chances are that they will be heaving sighs of relief to think that the visit is over.
A bored hostess is enough to throw a blight over any party.

FASHION'S FOIBLES.

The medic collar seems to have come to stay.

Long lines are a feature of all coats and suits.

Suits with flounces are now regarded with favor.

The best dancing petticoats are accordion plaited.

Velvet ribbons are used on the most picturesque hats.

Crocheted tango and maxixe necklaces are coming in.

It is said that petticoats are getting wider over the hips.

Fancy bolero jackets are seen in the latest cotton dresses.

Roman striped ribbons remain in high favor for girdles.

Bags are being made partly of beadwork and partly of silk.

Military collars appear on some of the new automobile coats.

Smaller shoe buckles are in favor. However, they are more elaborate.

LEAVES AND FERNS.

Simple Yet Charming Decorative Uses of Woodland Plants.

With autumn upon us we shall have an inexhaustible supply of gorgeous leaves, which may be renewed each day for weeks. A pretty idea is to scatter the brilliant leaves freshly gathered over the breakfast or luncheon table. They will last for only one meal, but quite repay the few minutes necessary for gathering. The bittersweet, gathered late in the fall, will last for several months.

Just before the freezing up of the streams and the laying of a snow mantle dig up some little evergreen ferns for your fern dish. They have a charm that the hothouse fern never seems to have. With suitable care these will tide you over until the pussy willows and other buds of February, which you may force several weeks ahead of nature by bringing them indoors.

Fancy Cracker Box.

You can buy at certain specialty shops a small tin cracker box charmingly covered with chintz. The only "finny" thing about it is the neat little clasp, but this insures snug covering. Such a box is a welcome addition to the furnishings of a hotel or boarding house bedroom, and its contents, always crisp and fresh, are often essential to the summer traveler.

of course, the risk after illness had withdrawn his attention was vastly increased.

In many cases where an outbreak of typhoid has been traced back to a dairy the owner was not deliberately careless. Typhoid fever is not always readily recognized as such, and not uncommonly passes simply as a fever or bowel complaint. For this reason every case of fever in a dairy farm should be regarded with suspicion and lead to very careful handling of the milk.

Members of households in which there are contagious or suspicious illnesses also have an important part to play in keeping the milk supply clean. They should never return empty milk bottles without first boiling them, and any family which takes a public milk bottle into a room where there is a contagious disease is really a party to a serious offense against public health. A milk dealer who learns of a case of sickness in a family should keep the bottles from that house separated from the others and make certain that they are very carefully sterilized before they are again used for milk.

Even when there is no sickness on a farm, the dairy farmer should use every effort to produce a high grade, clean milk from healthy cows. Sterilization of bottles and other milk vessels is essential.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.—No better example of remarkable stage-craft and ingenuity of construction has been demonstrated than in "Wanted $22,000," the new Cohan and Harris piece which, on next Monday matinee, begins the second week of its engagement at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. The producers chose to describe it as an unusual play. This sentence but mildly expounds its unique and novel idea. Not in a great many years has Boston witnessed such a remarkable play. Every class of theatre-goer will find genuine pleasure in witnessing it. Whether it be the lover of tragedy, comedy, farce or drama their appetite is sure to be whetted for all these elements have been cleverly fused into one. To quote the Boston Journal: "One moment the audience is on the verge of tears at the tragedy about to be enacted. The next instant they are screaming with laughter. Comedy, tragedy, or tragic comedy—whatever it appears from one moment to another—it is the cleverest, snappiest, most fascinating 'play' imaginable." The usual Thursday and Saturday matinees are given and remember that there will be an extra holiday matinee on Columbus Day.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.—B. A. Rolfe's "The Bride Shop," without question the best and prettiest musical comedy ever produced in vaudeville, will lead the big all-star programme the week of October 12th. Andy Tombs, a really clever comedian of the elongated type, has the principal role, and the cast includes Lola Wentworth, Claire Rochester, a dainty little Southern girl with a wonderful soprano baritone voice, will make her Boston debut. Nearly every act on the bill is new to Boston audiences. Vivian Ford and Fred Hewitt, late stars of "The Top O' The World," have a most unique burlesque on the modern dancing craze; Gobert Bellings' Animals is a wonderful group of trained performers; Moore and Yates have a specialty that is out of the ordinary; Charles Mack and his company of Irish dancers, singers and comedians will appear in the sketch, "Come Back to Erin," and Crouch and Welch and Emma Stephens will round out an exceptionally strong bill of novelties and newcomers.

WILBUR THEATRE.—William Hodge is in the fifth week of his big success at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, where "The Road to Happiness" is being traveled every night by a host of playgoers, who find that the play sends them away feeling better and life looking brighter. The Wednesday matinee is a popular one and on Monday, October 12, there will be a special Columbus Day matinee.

Some of the sentiments expressed by Jim Whitman, village youth and optimist, the new character impersonated by Hodge in this piece, bear the same element of homely thought as did the sayings of Daniel Voorhees Pike, the role Mr. Hodge made famous in "The Man from Home." The title of the play comes from the lines expressed by Mr. Hodge as the young optimist: "Courage and honesty and truth—these form the road to happiness. If you have not courage, borrow it." At one time in the play when Jim Whitman (the part that Hodge plays) complains that his girl throws him over every time her pa coughs, he says: "An' then I have to rectify Riley to yer fer and hour and propose all over again."

MERCHANT-WHIDDEN

The first wedding of the fall season in West Newton took place last evening at the Unitarian church, when Miss Rachel Whidden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Whidden, became the bride of Mr. Roy Richardson Merchant of West Newton.

The church was filled with the friends and relatives of the young couple and the ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by the pastor, Rev. Julian C. Jaynes.

The bride was attended by Miss Nellie J. Oleson of Boston as maid of honor and Miss Elizabeth Paul of Boston, a niece of the groom, as flower girl, and the best man was Mr. Thomas A. Whidden of West Newton.

Messrs. Norman N. Stevenson of Hingham, Wilfred Shrigley and Dr. Luther F. Paul of Boston, and Malcolm M. Whidden, William B. Whidden, Robert A. Whidden and G. Edwin Peters of West Newton were the ushers.

A largely attended reception followed at the home of the bride on Sterling street, Mr. and Mrs. Merchant being assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Whidden and Mr. Edward S. Merchant.

Mr. and Mrs. Merchant will reside at 31 Sewall street, West Newton, where they will be at home after December first.

POMBOY HOME

This Home for Orphan Girls at 24 Hovey street, Newton was established here in our city over 40 years ago by Miss Rebecca Pomroy, a former nurse in the Civil War and a friend of President Lincoln.

We have cared for a large number of homeless girls in these years and thus rendered a valuable service to the community.

The home has been generously supported by our citizens, our custom being to have solicitors from our religious societies obtain yearly contributions, not of large sums, but such as would enlist the larger number of our people in our enterprise.

These ladies are just entering upon their labors for the present season, and we bespeak for them the usual courteous reception.

There are however new comers constantly entering our city and to such we extend our cordial invitation to visit the Home and see what we are doing there.

Cast-off articles of household furniture and clothes for girls of all ages are quite acceptable, many of our residents thoughtfully remember us with vegetables and fruits from their gardens.

Our house is showing the ravages of time and we have been obliged to spend $400 this summer to make it habitable.

Contributions to this end would be quite acceptable. Thanking the citizens for their generous support in the past—with gratitude on our part for the privilege of lending a hand in the care of some of "His little ones."

C. A. HASKELL, President.
O. M. Fisher, Treas.

POLICE NOTES

Carl Bush of 62 Pleasant street, Watertown, who was arrested Saturday night by patrolmen Dow and Enegess in Nonantum square, charged with carrying a loaded revolver was fined $50 by Judge Kennedy in the Police Court Monday morning.

It is alleged that the young man during an argument with his father in Watertown Saturday night fired the revolver at him, the bullet entering the ceiling of his home, but his father refused to press the charge.

On Tuesday morning Julius Beulque, aged 38, of 3 Bridge place, Nonantum, against whom a charge of assault and battery was preferred, was sentenced to four months in the House of Correction. Carl Hannes of Boston was arraigned on a larceny charge and was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. It was alleged that he entered a building under construction on Upland avenue last week and stole tools valued at $40.

The property of Fred O. Hurd, and pawned them for $6 in Boston. A charge of driving his automobile at unreasonable speed on Commonwealth avenue, against Dr. James P. Lewis of Waltham, was placed on file.

ENJOYABLE RECEPTION

The reception given by the School committee to the new superintendent of schools, Mr. U. G. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler, on Wednesday evening was a most enjoyable affair.

The reception took place in the library of the Technical High School, which was most attractively decorated with masses of autumn foliage. In the receiving line were Mr. William H. Rice, chairman of the school committee, and Mrs. Rice, Mr. U. G. Wheeler and Mayor and Mrs. Edwin O. Childs. The masters of the various high and grammar schools served as ushers and nearly five hundred persons were present, including the school teachers of the city and members of the city government. An orchestra composed of High school graduates rendered music throughout the evening under the direction of Mr. Horace M. Walton, the director of music.

MINISTER'S RECEPTION

The Channing Branch of The Women's Alliance gave an enjoyable reception to the pastor of Channing Church, Rev. Harry Lutz and Mrs. Lutz, on Tuesday evening in Channing church parlors and a large number of parishioners were present. Mr. and Mrs. Lutz were assisted in receiving by the president of the Alliance, Mrs. Alvin R. Bailey and Mr. Bailey and the ushers were Messrs. Kenneth and Willett Howard and Albert Palmer.

During the evening vocal and instrumental music was rendered by the church quartet, Miss Helen Crane, Miss Leah Bailey, Miss Irene Kimball, Miss Florence Bacon, Miss Helen Jewett and Miss Winifred Kimball and Mrs. Harry Stebbins, accompanist. The Social Committee were in charge of the collation which followed.

ELECT OFFICERS

The annual election of officers of Newton Council, K. of C., was held Tuesday evening in the Denison Hall, Newtonville. The following officers were elected: James P. Gallagher, G. K.; J. M. Fitzgerald, D. G.; D. A. Toomey, C.; A. S. Hargadon, R.; J. J. Hickey, W.; J. F. Hogan, F. S.; J. F. Gallagher, T.; J. C. Condrin, A.; P. F. Butler, I. G.; J. A. Eggleston, O. G.; William Cahill, J.; Thomas Hession, delegate to Boston Chapter; J. P. Gallagher, V. A. Sprout, delegates to State convention, and J. F. Gallagher and W. H. Mague, alternates. A committee was also appointed at the meeting to make arrangements for the annual entertainment, which will be presented early in November. This year the council will present "The Great Umbrella Case," under the direction of James R. Condrin.

MR. WILLISON INJURED

Mr. Elmer C. Willison, a former resident of Clark street, Newton Centre, and who now resides in Belmont, was considerably injured in an automobile accident, which took place Sunday afternoon at Portsmouth, N. H. Mr. Willison was returning from a hunting trip near Harrison, Me., and when he turned to reach something in the rear of the car, he lost control and the car ran into a pole. Mr. Willison was thrown against the steering gear and injured in the chest as well as numerous cuts and bruises. He was taken to the Portsmouth Hospital.

Dogs For Draft Work.

The use of dogs for draft work was prohibited in London in 1830, but remained legal in the provinces for another fifteen years. Sir Walter Gilbey, in his "Recollections of Seventy Years," notes as a feature of his boyhood at Bishop Stortford the numbers of dog carriages and carts on the Essex lanes and highroads. "All sorts and conditions of men used dog carriages, from small tradesmen to poorer people who could not afford a pony. Dog draft was abolished because certain people agitated against it as cruel, but I think that generally the dogs were neither ill treated nor overworked. There are probably many people living who can remember when the tugging propensity of the dog was utilized in England. Workingmen had their 'dogcarts,' in which they made Sunday and holiday excursions. The dogs employed were, as a rule, heavy half bred bull mastiffs with a touch of the lurcher in them. They thought nothing of drawing their masters fifty or sixty miles in a day."—London Sphere.

Do You Suffer From Tired Eyes?

If you suffer from tired eyes—and who does not at times?—you may be glad to try a French author's accidentally discovered remedy. It is a simple method of restoring the vision to freshness. One night when engaged in writing an article his eyes gave out before he could finish and he was compelled to stop. So, turning from his unfinished manuscript, his eyes fell upon some scraps of colored silk that his wife had been using for patchwork. These gay colors had a peculiar attraction for wearied optics. On resuming his work after gazing at them for several minutes he found them quite fresh. After several experiments he surrounded his inkstand with brilliantly colored striped silk material that his eyes must rest on every time he dips his pen into the ink. This brings instant relief.

How Perfectly French!

There is a prefect in the south of France who has a mania for his wife's hands, which are particularly beautiful. So that he may always have the object of his adoration under his eyes a model in bronze of one of the hands has been made and the prefect keeps it on his desk at his office.

An official in this prefect's district, anxious to secure his influence for political preferment, has devised a delightful way of paying him a delicate compliment. Every time he enters the great man's office he walks silently to his desk, takes up the bronze hand and kisses it respectfully.

The prefect is so much impressed by this act of gallantry that the tactful young man has already secured lucrative promotion.—London Mirror.

Rice Throwing at Weddings.

The origin of rice throwing at weddings is accounted for by a quaint Chinese legend. A great sorcerer, Chao, became jealous of another sorcerer, a woman, Peach Blossom, and thereby conceived a plan to destroy her. He persuaded her parent to give her in marriage to his supposed son and craftily chose the most unlucky day for the wedding—the day when the "golden pheasant" was in the ascendant—so that when the bride entered the red chair the spirit bird would kill her with his beak. Peach Blossom, however, prudently gave directions for rice to be scattered at the door, and thus she passed out unscathed, while the spirit bird was busy eating the meal she had provided for it.

To Set a Razor.

When a razor begins to "pull" and drag the hair instead of cutting it there is no need to send it to the barber to be set. There is a perfectly simple method by which any one can put it in trim. All that is necessary is to turn an ordinary sharp table knife edge upward and lay the razor flat on the edge of the knife. Then draw the razor along downward, pressing lightly all the while from heel to toe, as in stropping, turning and repeating the operation half a dozen times. If the razor is then stropped the keenness of its edge will be surprising.—Pearson's Weekly.

Gigantic Gas Tank.

The largest of the many huge gas holders in existence is one completed in 1910 for the Newtown Gas company, borough of Queens, New York city. The holder is 251 feet in diameter and 275 feet high. Such is the height of this vast cylinder that it is a familiar landmark for many miles around New York city.

Youthful Paradox.

Dorothy and her papa had only a short distance to go, and the latter said:

"Dorothy, shall we walk or take the bus?"

"Well, papa," replied the little girl, "I'll walk if you'll carry me."—London Standard.

Cutting It Short.

"Why are you fooling so long with that clock, Hortense?"

"I'm cleaning its hands, madam."

"Well, just wipe 'em. You needn't manœuvre 'em."—Judge.

THE DAY OF PRAYER

A little girl was much distressed because her brother persisted in setting traps for the birds. At last she confided to her Sunday school teacher that she had made the traps a subject of prayer, and that she was sure no more birds would be caught in them. "What did you say in your prayer?" asked the teacher. "First, I asked the Lord to let the birds get caught in the traps," answered the little girl. "Then I asked the Lord to destroy the traps; and then I went and kicked the traps all to pieces!"

We should work with all our might to make it impossible for people hereafter to be caught in the terrible trap of international war, into which the nations of Europe have suddenly fallen, and into which our own country may yet be plunged some day before we know it. And, as one measure that will help to promote "peace on earth, good will to men," let us work harder than ever before to secure for the mothers of the race a voice in the decision of public affairs.

The Cleveland Press says that a man on the crowded platform of a street car remarked the other day, "It's all up with woman suffrage in Ohio this fall!"

"How do you figure that out?" demanded a bystander.

"With this war in Europe, do you suppose there's a man in this State who doesn't see how ridiculous it would be for women to have a vote. Why should anyone have a vote who can't fight for the country if need be?"

"That's the argument this war is knocking dead by a door nail," answered his more clear-sighted neighbor.

"Women don't go on the battlefield and fight, but they do stay at home and wage a battle against poverty, suffering and bitter grief. They harvest the crops and care for the children who later must fill the places of the men mowed down in battle. I suppose it is your idea that it's all right for men who have a vote to force a war in which women and children suffer most. But I don't think so. A big peace movement is under way now. The world is getting ready to melt up its armaments. The votes of the women are going to help us do it, and you can bet your life I'm going to give them the ballot to do it with!"

THE MOTHERS' REST

The annual meeting of the Mothers' Rest Association will be held in the chapel of the Unitarian Society of Newton Centre on Thursday, October fifteenth at half past three o'clock P. M.

There will be the reading of the annual reports by the chairmen of the various committees, the report of the matron and the nurse at the "Rest" and the election of officers and members of the Board of Managers for the coming year.

The Rev. Mr. James P. Carlson, pastor of the Methodist Church at Upper Falls will sing. Notices of the meeting have been sent to all active members of the association and the public is most cordially invited to attend.

FOR THE BELGIAN REFUGEES IN ENGLAND

A very urgent appeal is being made for all sorts of old clothes for the Belgian Refugees in England. Many of the people fled from their homes and country, leaving all they possessed behind them. With the advent of cold weather the situation is becoming pitiable. Any clothing that is wearable will be much appreciated. First shipment leaves October 18th.

THE DeMERITTE SCHOOL

For earnestness of purpose, thorough work and the character of its pupils, is attracting the attention of thoughtful parents, who wish their sons to accomplish something definite in life, and do it in a manly way. The same careful training is given to all boys, whether preparing for college or the Mass. Institute of Technology.

THE AIM OF THE SCHOOL IS, not how many pupils, but how well they do its work of developing MEN.

SMART GLOVES FOR AUTUMN

Long Ones Are Likely to Be a la Mode Until Winter Garments Are Donned--White Expected to Be Popular With Limited Favor For Colors.

THE present vogue of long gloves will continue during the early fall months, gradually giving way to short gloves, says the Dry Goods Economist. After Dec. 1 fully 90 per cent of the gloves sold will be of the wrist length.

Tailor made suits are to be largely worn. Even the dresses, with the exception of those for evening wear, will have full length sleeves and will be semifitted.

Separate waists, too, which are cut on tailored or semifitted lines will have full length sleeves, so that these as well as the suits and the dresses will require short gloves.

With tailored effects prominent in garments it is clear that gloves of mannish appearance will be in request during the new season.

Piques, which have been gradually growing in favor during the last two years, ought to do exceptionally well throughout the fall and winter. Cape gloves should again become widely popular, and moccasins, notwithstanding their higher cost, will sell more freely.

Confidence in the future of embroidered backs appears to be strong. Not a few glove departments anticipate that close to 50 per cent of their leather glove business during the next season will be in embroidered backs.

Quite a variety of novelty effects have been brought out in embroidered goods, and many more fancy backs are yet to arrive.

Under the head of colors it is a safe prediction that white will again strongly dominate the situation. The usual proportion of black will be distributed, and there will be a limited amount of business done in browns, dark tans, taupe, navy blue and dark green.

Saving the Kitchen Table.

The housewife who does her own cooking will find it the greatest saver of labor to keep a bit of board on the end of her kitchen table, on which to cut vegetables, slice bread, set hot saucers or anything of the sort. Instead of directly on the nice white oil-cloth, with which the neat woman covers her kitchen table. Oilcloth is commended because it is so easily kept clean, always looks nice and makes a kitchen appear like what it should be, the most enticing room in the whole house.

Pocket Medicine Case.

A small medicine and accident case of some sort is a convenience. One that is useful contains scissors, bandages of various sorts, antiseptics and some screw top bottles in which medicines or remedies of any sort may be packed.

Autumn Flowers Look Charming In the New Basket Receptacles

BASKETS make charming receptacles for the autumn flowers and grasses that now make the woods and fields so gay. The illustration shows two useful forms, one the vase shape with the overarching handle, the other the wide open shape. Probably the most popular of the new baskets are the reed and burnt bamboo ones that come in every conceivable shape and form. Some of the prettiest of these are made long and slender with long handles by which they may be hung on the porch or at the windows. However, many prefer to use them just as any other ordinary vase or flower holder, a bit of vine or sunball being twined around the handle.

One dainty and inexpensive basket was filled with delicate pink sweet peas and asparagus fern, the handle tied with a bow of pale blue satin ribbon. Another, a little round flat one of the reddish brown burnt bamboo, was filled with orange and scarlet nasturtiums.

All the baskets that are used for table or room decoration are fitted with tin or glass containers for water. For the large flowers that look best in big loose bunches there are a number of large baskets made in the same shapes as the beautiful earthenware and pottery jars that are used so much. One of these in the burnt bamboo was filled with a huge bunch of hollyhocks, purple and white and pink; another, a tall slender shape, contained long stemmed American Beauties.

Some of these baskets are made in the shape of fern dishes, but as they are quite deep they would make a charming receptacle for short stemmed flowers that must be picked in order to make sure of a continuous bloom, but are too short to fit into the ordinary vase or basket. The low arrangement of flowers is always preferable, too, for the table, for it is annoying to have to dodge around a spray of blossoms, no matter how attractive, in order to talk to one's neighbor across the table.

In addition to the bamboo baskets, there are a number of gilded and enameled wicker that are very attractive. One particularly pretty little basket was of a soft gray enamel. It was round and squat in shape and was filled with the bluest of blue cornflowers. Some of these enameled and gilded baskets are very elaborate, being trimmed with festoons of flowers and ribbons, but the simpler ones are preferable, as the flowers are sufficiently decorative in themselves.

BASQUE GIRDLE FOR RENOVATING GOWNS.

NEW SATIN GIRDLE

Often an old gown may be made chic and up to date by the addition of some trifling accessory. It may be a collar or some touch at the waist like the little girdle illustrated here. Any simple frock may be changed into a basque costume by the addition of this fitted and boned basque girdle of black satin which closes under the row of buttons with snap fasteners.

DIET AND HEALTH.

Turnip tops are too often despised, but when cooked until tender and prepared in the same way as the more expensive spinach their delicious flavor may be appreciated to the full.

Cooling and blood purifying. It is a false economy to ignore the many cheap salads, vegetables and fruits provided for us in the field of nature.

Fish is very digestible and can often be taken when meat would nauseate a person who is "below par" or just recovering from an illness.

A dish common in France, but rare in this country, is cooked watercress. It should be treated in the same manner as spinach and is far more digestible than when eaten raw.

An excellent health giver is the orange, but to obtain the best results the juice only should be taken, and this first thing in the morning before breakfast. Being so blood purifying, it is invaluable as a clearer of the skin.

The KITCHEN GUPBOARD

SALADS OF THE SEASON.

EDDIVE can be used in a salad, but it is much stronger than lettuce and should not be combined with so many other vegetables. When making the successful salad sometimes one dressing, sometimes another, sometimes one garnish and sometimes one flavor is wanted. The same dressing, garnish and flavor cannot be used with every summer salad.

Novelty Salad.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.—Scoop out the centers of even, firm and not very large ripe tomatoes. Leave the top cut off for a cover. Dice the firm pulp, removing some of the seeds, and mix it with chopped olives and mayonnaise dressing. Put a tablespoonful of the mixture in each tomato and replace the covers. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Egg Salad.—This is made with hard boiled eggs—six of them—cut in quarters and arranged on lettuce leaves. Sprinkle these with French dressing and garnish with parsley. Boil hard two more eggs, chop the whites and rub the yolks through a sieve. Sprinkle this egg garnish over the whole salad. A little onion juice can be added to the French dressing if onion flavor is desired.

A Delicious Combination.

Cauliflower and Asparagus Salad.—Cauliflower and asparagus can be used for salad. Both vegetables should be cooked tender and should be very cold. Separate the cauliflower into little heads. Arrange the asparagus tips in the center of a salad bowl carefully, so that they are not broken, and surround them with the cauliflower heads. Sprinkle chopped parsley and French dressing over all and set in the refrigerator to become chilled through before serving. This salad depends for its delicacy on the daintiness of the vegetables and in having them chilled.

Cheese Ball Salad.—Press balls of cream cheese between English walnuts, and serve three or four of these balls on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

For another chop large olives and mix with cream cheese, moisten with French dressing, mold into balls and serve on lettuce.

For still another, make balls of the cheese, roll them in minced parsley and serve them, with toasted walnuts, on plain lettuce dressed with French dressing.

On account of the holiday the Newton Highlands Monday Club meets on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. G. W. Barker of Duncklee street, being hostess.

The Abundant Woman's Club, which was organized in May, will hold its first regular meeting on Tuesday in the Congregational Chapel when Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, president of the Newtonville Guild, will give an address. The membership has increased to over 350, and much interest is shown in the plans for the year, which include lectures, musicales, recitals, receptions and teas. A class in the study and practice of parliamentary law has just completed a course under the direction of Mr. R. L. Bridgman. Other classes in aesthetic dancing, basketry, needlework, and French have been arranged, excellent teachers having been secured. One in current events will be formed, and probably in other subjects as soon as sufficient applications warrant it. A successful year is predicted for this new club.

Local Happenings
Mrs. F. T. Walsh of Valentine street, West Newton, entertained the Newton Mothers' Club for its meeting last Monday afternoon. After a short business meeting Mrs. H. L. W. Darling gave an interesting and instructive talk upon "The Feeding of Young Children." The customary social hour closed a profitable afternoon.

Seasonable Vegetables.
Parsnip Fritters.—To make the fritters cook parsnips forty-five minutes in boiling salted water and then drain, plunge into cold water, when skins will be found to slip off easily. Mash, season with butter, salt and pepper, shape into small flat cakes, roll in flour and saute in butter.
Boiled Green Corn.—Remove the outer husk which incloses the corn and put the cobs into a large saucepan of boiling unsalted water. Cover and boil. When tender drain, sprinkle with salt and serve with melted butter. If desired when removed from the pan the corn may be sliced from the cob with a sharp knife and reheated with a little butter, milk, pepper and salt.
Quickly Fried.
Sirloin Steak With Gravy.—Take sirloin steaks one-fourth of an inch thick, season with salt and pepper and fry in butter over a quick fire on each side just for a minute. Make a pan gravy with beef extract and chopped parsley. Serve with diced French fried potatoes.
Lettuce and Deviled Cheese Salad.—Beat a cream cheese to a cream, adding cream if necessary to accomplish this. Season with one tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, a few drops of onion juice, a little salt and a teaspoonful of paprika. Mix well and let stand where it will get cold and hard. Make into little balls and serve on lettuce leaves with or without a garnishing of sliced cucumbers or radishes. Serve with French dressing.
A Cooling Dessert.
Frozen Custard.—One quart of milk, three eggs, one tablespoonful of cornstarch, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and flavoring to taste. Put the milk in top of double boiler. Beat the eggs, sugar and salt together, add to the boiling milk slowly, stirring all the time (do not let it boil). Remove from the fire. When cold add the flavoring, put into freezer, pack with ice and salt. Freeze same as ice cream.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Miss Grace M. Burr, Editor.

The Domestic Science and Pure Food Exposition, in which the Massachusetts State Federation is co-operating with the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, opened at Mechanics Hall on Monday. The club women have entire charge of the second floor and many interesting exhibits are to be found there. The Home Economics department has an especially valuable one consisting of suggestions for a model kitchen and many new labor-saving devices are there for inspection. At the opening exercises on Monday afternoon in Paul Revere Hall Mrs. George W. Perkins, president of the Federation, was one of the speakers telling of the work which the Federation stands for. All through the month different clubs will serve tea.

White House Coffee

The Encyclopedia Britannica speaks of coffee as an "important and valuable article of food used since 875 A.D." Also, "Coffee is exhilarating, lightens the sense of fatigue, and sustains strength under prolonged and severe exertion." What better tribute could be paid to coffee than the above from this world-famous authority?

It describes White House Coffee to the letter. We would only add that "White House" has a flavor never approached by any other coffee; its dependable quality and excellence is secured by expert blending of selections from the Mountain Districts of the Coffee World whence come the sweetest coffees, and the White House Brand is prepared for market and delivered to you just as we pack it in a thoroughly up-to-date coffee establishment, where all the weighing and handling is done by automatic machinery, in rooms continuously supplied with fresh air and flooded with sunlight. 1, 2 and 5-lb. sea of cans only. Never in bulk. All leading grocers.

If you have not tried "White House," you have missed one of the joys of living.

Let us take a comparison of our present federal form of government with an organization like the Pennsylvania railroad. Suppose the stockholders took it into their minds to elect an auditor, an attorney, a treasurer, another board to look after station grounds and buildings, and another board to look after their filing system and keeping of records. Do you suppose the present president of the Pennsylvania railroad would remain in the position? Would not the directors resign? Could you get a competent man to take charge of the railroad company with such an organization around him? You cannot select men trained in the particular functions of government through the ballot. It would be as reasonable to expect a large manufacturing plant, in the case of a vacancy, to go out and ask neighbors to elect some one whom they might suggest to fill the vacancy. We shall not have efficient governments until we are able to select from the point of efficiency.

This is where the commission form of government has proved inadequate. The voters have not been able to select the trained men to take care of the particular functions of government. It is usually customary for the commissioners, after election, to divide the various functions of government among themselves. Under the federal form, whenever there is a political overthrow, the old organization is usually entirely wiped out and a new one put in. Could any private business stand such an operation?

The condition of affairs has built up political machines, run by centralized power, and we ourselves have allowed it. We have not in our governmental organizations allowed for any centralized power, and as we know in our own business that centralization is essential, the political parties themselves have centralized around a boss, and we have allowed our cities to be governed by two parties, one party in power and entrenched, and the other party on the outside waiting for an opportunity to become entrenched. Our idea of municipal reform has been to throw out one party and put in the other. We have allowed these party organizations, one in and one out, to be molded under very hardening strokes. In organization, and the centralized power, or boss, holds his organization together with the idea that "to the victor belong the spoils." We often hear that the city manager is nothing more than a boss, or centralized power. This may be true, but the conditions are not comparable, as under the form of bossism the boss was unassailable—he was unofficial. Under the city-manager form the "boss" is assailable because he is official, and under our particular charter in Dayton, the city manager is subject to recall.

The commission-manager form of government does away with the conditions which have in the past hampered and made impossible efficiency under the old forms of government. You have a commission elected on a non-partisan ballot, which becomes the board of directors or the legislative body. They select the administrative officer who is directly responsible for the carrying out of the administrative functions. His success depends upon his fitness and general capability. He selects men who have been specially trained for the work to be done, and in this selection he is not hampered by political promises. I cannot tell you today the political faith of any of the men I have appointed since I have been in Dayton. Party and politics are simply left out of the reckoning.

The general awakening of the American republic to our municipal affairs is, to my mind, one of the best signs we have had, because it means that we are going to start at the bottom and work up. In foreign cities, the municipal governments were the original governments which spread into provinces, and the provinces into nations. In this country it has been the reverse. It started with our national government and worked into states, and then cities. Now we are proceeding to build up our municipal governments.

There is such an awakening in this country at the present time on the question of municipal government that we fear that too many will be rushing into improved forms before the people are ready. Dayton was well prepared for the change. Over two years ago there was started, through public subscription, the Bureau of Municipal Research. It made impartial investigations into each department of the city, and worked up a wonderful fund of data and caused many beneficial changes; it was constructive in its attitude, not destructive. This is the same procedure that is carried on in business corporations, but which has never been generally followed in our municipal governments.

The people of a community must be educated up to a change. A few people cannot rise in their wrath and make it alone. A municipal bureau of research is absolutely necessary to our mind for three reasons; first, it compiles data which shows the people the necessity of a change; second, after the change has occurred, the information and experience of the bureau are necessary for the installation of the new government; third, the information which the bureau has gathered together is necessary as a basis of comparison, after the new government has been established, so that the new can be compared with the old.

There is a general idea through the country that Dayton did not start the campaign for the change of government until after the high water. This is not true. This research had been started a year before, and a committee was organized in January to determine upon the method of procedure. Undoubtedly the high water caused the people to be drawn closer together, and aided in the rapid developments which have taken place in the change of government since the flood. We have one organization in Dayton (the Greater Dayton Association) which comprises about 7000 people—this out of a population of 125,000—and it is heart and soul behind the new chart. In addition to that, during the campaign there was built up from a regular ward and precinct organization a citizen's committee, which is used as an educational organization to get information to the people. This educational matter was gotten up by the bureau of municipal research. This same organization got the people to the polls.

From this it is evident that there is considerable work necessary before any change in government is attempted. Finally, I should like to emphasize the following very important point—one I think the American people have lost sight of, but that they are now beginning to grasp. No matter what form of government a city may have, if the people themselves are not interested in it and participate in it, that government will never be a success.

A CITY'S CREED

It's a fine thing for a city to have a creed. Churches have one, fraternal societies have one, many men have one, a city may well adopt one that makes it stand for something for its own people and the outside world.

Here is the creed of the city of Scranton, Penn., about which much has been printed in the Record of late: "A city must think progress; must be guided by its optimists; must approve of enterprise; must value constructive men more than destructive ones; must have a clear idea of the demands of future city growth and must live up to its ideals." It reads well, means something, it is worthy of notice and worthy of copying.

A city must think progress, not the progress of any one individual in it, but the progress that comes from collective thought and energy. A man can progress, and in his progress indirectly bring an advantage to the city in which he does business, but he does not reach the fullest development of his progress unless he stands with others of his kind in bringing the city and all its people along with him. No individual can stand alone in a community and insist that what he does for good or ill does not have a bearing upon the lives of his fellow citizens.

A city must be guided by optimists. Not by the man who is forced into a forward movement because it is fashionable or because the other fellow is in it, but by the men who really believe the city has a future, who can see where that future lies and who will work for it.

A city must approve of enterprise. Not all cities do this, strange as it may seem, and this weakness is more to be noted here in the East than in the West. New England is too conservative. We have too many jealousies here. Let a man get a little bit of success, and too often others stand off and criticize him, doubt his methods, predict his failure and refuse to give him credit for his enterprise and far-sightedness. Too often success is a crime in our New England cities. Fortunately we are getting over that, and the sooner the disposition entirely disappears the better it will be for our communities.

A city must value its constructive men rather than its destructive ones, a rule that has an important bearing upon the growth of any community. You can find men all the time trying to tear down the municipal structure. Honest criticism is to be welcomed in any community, but not dishonest criticism founded upon malice and selfishness, and when you have this latter form of criticism coupled with the aspersions of motives of leading men, of manufacturers who are building the city up, of men who are giving of their time, influence and money for the public good, you have condition that is working against the best interests of a city all the time, an influence which will interfere with even the best efforts of any organization whose object it is to aid the city.

The Lynn News comments the creed of the Scranton Board of Trade to the people of Lynn. The Record comments it to the people of Haverhill, every one of whom it hopes is interested in the good name of the city and the development of its trade and industries.—Haverhill Record.

ARCHERY NOTES

The weather last Saturday afternoon was ideal for archery, and a goodly number of The Newton Archers took part in the weekly contest at the Archery Range at the Newton Centre Playgrounds. Both the men and women competed in the same events, a team round consisting of 96 arrows at 60 yards, and an American Round consisting of 30 arrows at each of the distances 60, 50 and 40 yards being shot.

National champion, Mrs. B. P. Gray, won the Team Round, while the American Round was won easily by L. C. Smith.

The Newton Archers plan to hold their Fall Tournament on Monday, October 12th. There will be shooting all day, commencing at 10 o'clock, and there will be events for both men and women.

MILK CONTEST AWARD

The awards of the Milk Contest at the Brockton Fair have just been announced by W. P. B. Lockwood, Professor of Dairying at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

This contest was held under the supervision of the college authorities. The highest score of any milk was won by H. P. Hood & Sons of Boston and scored 99.2 points out of a possible 100. The milk was scored on bacteria, flavor, dirt and acidity.

tion for Nov. 3, the city election, Dec. 8, the city primary Nov. 17 and establishing polling places for the state and city election and the city primary. The ordinance amending the Building Code was adopted after a brief explanation by Alderman Bartlett that it was intended to improve fire conditions in tenement and apartment houses.

Alderman Jarvis presented an amendment to the Building Code to increase the distance of wooden buildings from the property line from five to ten feet and to increase the distance between wooden buildings from ten to twenty feet. Mr. Jarvis said his amendment was necessary because on land on Tremont street, it was said that 32 houses were to be erected on lots of about 4000 feet each. He believed this would prove a great fire menace to the city. The amendment was referred to the Rules Committee with instructions to grant a public hearing on the matter.

The report of leave to withdraw on claim of Mrs. D. C. Heath for reimbursement on account of the laying out of Lowell avenue many years ago, was recommitted to the Claims committee after Aldermen Bartlett and Richardson had explained the matter at length, but without really touching on the right of the city to pay such a claim. Mr. Bartlett said that Mrs. Heath had gone to considerable expense and labor to obtain the releases, land and money for the widening of what is now Lowell avenue and had advanced $1000 of her own money to secure certain property necessary for the widening. This she had done without authority from the city officials and she has no legal claim against the city. Alderman Richardson thought Mrs. Heath ought to have an opportunity to be heard before the committee with counsel and the matter was then sent back.

John J. Cronin was granted a license for four bowling alleys in Nomanum square and the board at 8.58 P. M. adjourned.

GRAND OPERA

An excellent repertoire has been arranged for next week. There will be a special matinee on Monday, Columbus Day, Oct. 12, when that supreme favorite "Trovatore" will be sung with Kathryn Lynbrook as Leonora, Blanche Hamilton Fox as Azucena, Luigi Mainiero as Manrico and Pietro Gallazzi as Count di Luna. On Monday evening "Otello" will be offered with Mmes. Kristoffy and Renis and the MM. Corradetti, Tricario and di Biasi. The same opera will be repeated on Wednesday matinee. On Tuesday and Friday evenings, "Rigoletto" will be the offering with Miriam Ardini as Gilda. The other principal artists will include Alice Gentile as Maddalena, Millo Picco as Rigoletto, Joseph Florian as Sparafucile and Umberto Sacchetti as the Duke di Mantova. On Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee the first double bill will be presented in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" with Blanche Hamilton Fox, Cara Sapin, Pietro Gallazzi and Umberto Sacchetti as the principal artists in the first mentioned and Dora de Philippo, David Silva, Guglielmo Guilianni, Millo Picco and Giuseppe Opezzo as the leading artists. For Thursday and Saturday evenings, "The Barber of Seville" will be sung. No matter what the opera or who the star, the popular scale of prices will always remain the same.

Tickets for admission to the Kingdom of Heaven are seldom found on sale in a ballot box office.

THE CHRISTIAN FORUM

Holds the First Meeting For the Season At Eliot Church

Dr. Arthur Judson Brown of New York, Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, was the speaker at the first meeting of the Christian Forum held Sunday evening in Eliot Church. His topic was "The Effect of the European War upon World-wide Christian Work." A portion of his remarks followed: "I committed myself to this subject before preparation and I have since repented. Dealing with the effects of war upon Christian work, I had supposed it would be easy to talk about it. I now feel the difficulty of the subject and can only mention the facts which directly concern this Christian work. The first manifestation we experienced was economical, the effect of the war being felt by a number from whom we were accustomed to receive large gifts. One large supporter has turned us down with a remark that he is a dealer in flax and 90 per cent of this product comes from Belgium and Russia. Another can not help us because he is a manufacturer of wall paper and 90 per cent of his dyes come from Germany. With this war we begin to realize the importance of our international trade. We import into this country in a year goods to the value of eighteen billions of dollars, one-half of this importation comes from these warring nations of Europe and 7-8ths of the ships used owned by the belligerent nations. Few of us realize the extent of our dependence on other nations, how many things we eat and wear and use are made in some other country. What are the effects of the war upon other foreign fields? From India we have received a telegram, 'Exchange prohibited. Find some way of getting money to us.' From Persia comes the same cry. From Columbia, South America, 'Banks closed, business paralyzed, prices are up 100 per cent.' From Chile, where the wealth of the country depends entirely upon its international trade, we hear that business is at a stand still. And so we realize that when the great money centres of the world, London and Paris and Berlin are paralyzed, it paralyzes business everywhere.

"Imagine the effect upon our Christian work in other countries where the half civilized peoples, who are the objects of our Christian work, are being brought forward to fight the white man. Recently a group of natives from India were refused admittance to Canada, where they came seeking work, but they were most joyfully welcome when they landed in France to fight against the German nation. Think of the effect this will have upon the work we have been striving to accomplish for over one hundred years.

"There are now at least eight nations in the conquest representing at least two-thirds of the population of the globe.

"Then we begin to realize that there is an effect from this struggle much deeper than the economical effect and that is the moral effect. Our young people read of this conquest in the daily papers where one issue contradicts another and it familiarizes them with the loss of life and the thoughts of this bloody horror. Is it not true that war develops in man the greatest passion of hatred revenge. It demoralizes the highest type of Christian belief and faith in religion and the rights of man, that highest level which has been prominent in England, Germany and the United States. It will lead to a terrible disaster in our faith in one another. It is difficult to see how one of these nations is to keep from being permanently crippled. It should be an enormous loss if Germany should be captured by autocratic and semi-barbarous Russia. One thousand years from now the effects of this war will still be felt.

"Men are saying 'Does this mean the break down of the church?' I do not know whether they are asking this question in Boston, but I do know that it is being asked in New York. They have said, 'What is Christianity good for if these nations operating under it so long are to suddenly go to war? What we need is more Christian work in our business.'

"There is a lot of talk about the events which led up to this war. We are told of the assassination of the Arch Duke of Austria and other violations against the weaker nations. Now all these things are only immediate causes of the war rather than the final causes, merely sparks to ignite the powder magazines. Everyone of the warring nations has broken treaty. Everyone has violated the neutrality of the weaker nations in the last few years. Germany has seized colonies in a dozen parts of the world as well as France. Great Britain has absorbed large territories and now rules one-fifth of the globe. Russia extended her domains through Siberia and tried to take Korea. We are also told that militarism was a cause of the war. Long before the war we were told that Germany had 800,000 regulars ready for instant service and over 4,000,000 counting her reserves, France an army of 727,000 and an army of 3,151,000 counting reserves, almost as large as Germany. Russia had 4,788,000 men. Great Britain not as large an army but the largest navy in the world. Belgium was armed to the teeth. At this moment Holland has 312,000 men under arms and little Switzerland has 500,000 men ready to preserve neutrality. They are all cursed with militarism and each one protesting but compelled to carry on the armament because afraid of the other. The real causes are not found in these things nor in the immediate events which preceded the war, but rather in the suspicions, jealousies, feelings and hatreds of long standing. Two years ago a German said to me that he feared that war between his nation and Great Britain was surely coming because England was to attack Germany. The French have had the Statue of Strasbourg in mourning for 40 years. Each nation has had a feeling of hatred for the other. The Archbishop of Canterbury has said, 'This is not a work of God, but the work of the devil.'

"The world is fighting because it is not accepting the law of God as a rule of life. Somehow these men do not regard each other as brethren. It is true that Christianity must begin with the individual.

"If we would only use a Christian spirit in our business I believe it would help to stop some of our suffering. A Christian spirit has not been used in our great corporations in America. If it were true that they had it is certain that they would not have been proven guilty by the Courts of the land. An elder of the Presbyterian Church has said, 'Business is War.' He is a good Christian on Sundays, a good father in his home, kind and generous, but says that in business if he can crush his competitor he is going to do so every time. There are business men who have tried to carry Christianity into their work but the majority have proven failures. Politics is non-Christian, rarely Christian. The only help for business, politics and government is a firm belief in the Christian Church."

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews will be at home after November 16 at New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mrs. Andrews is the younger daughter of the late President E. H. Capen of Tufts College.

A WORTHY OBJECT

An Appeal For Funds For the Stearns School Centre

An appeal for funds for the Stearns School Centre has been recently sent out by the Nonantum Day Nursery Association to the people of Newton and Newtonville who are not already upon the subscription list of that Association.

It is hoped there will be a hearty response to this appeal as it means much to those who are earnestly striving to carry on a work that is much needed that is much appreciated by those who receive its benefits, and a work which has proved its worth by its growth.

HENDERSON—KING

The wedding of Miss Ruth King, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. King of Newton Highlands and Mr. John Steele Henderson, Jr., the son of Hon. John S. Henderson of Salisbury, North Carolina, took place last Saturday evening at the home of the bride on Lake avenue, the ceremony being performed at seven o'clock by Rev. George T. Smart, D. D., pastor of the Newton Highlands Congregational Church. Miss E. Mildred Hooper of Wilmington, Del., was maid of honor, Miss Mary F. Henderson of Salisbury, N. C., was the bridesmaid and Mrs. Henry B. Pirant of Brookline was matron of honor. Mr. Arthur Gray of New York was the best man and Messrs. S. Fred King of Newton Highlands and Mr. H. B. Pirant of Brookline were the ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony until ten o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Henderson being assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. King and Hon. and Mrs. John S. Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will reside at 300 Barnes street, Wilkesburg, Penn.

LUCY JACKSON CHAPTER, D. A. R.

Recollections of Its Organization and Its First Regent Miss Fanny B. Allen

The following paper was read at the meeting of the Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A. R., on Monday, by Miss Mary Anne Greene, Honorary State Regent of Rhode Island.

The father of the Misses Allen, so well-known in this community, as well as in many other countries, as a teacher of youth, a reformer, a philanthropist, and a patriotic citizen, Mr. Nathaniel Topliff Allen, had always taken a just pride in the Revolutionary service of his grandfather, Phineas Allen of Medfield, and was, by right of descent from him, a member of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution. He distinctly remembered this grandfather, and drew his early lessons in patriotism from him. Phineas Allen was a boy soldier, enlisting in 1780, at the age of sixteen. He served till mustered out at the close of the war, when, without money, because Congress had none to pay the troops, he walked all the way from New Jersey, where he had suffered much privation in the campaigns, to Medfield, arriving ragged and footsore, but spared to live to a good old age, a useful citizen in the town, and a deacon in the Unitarian Church.

Mr. Allen was, on the mother's side, descended from Elder Brewster of Plymouth, and his daughter Fanny was a member of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, by virtue of this line of ancestry.

Mr. Allen himself was not only proud of the past, but was a patriot of the highest type, warmly advocating and working for every good measure to elevate the standard of the community.

With such heredity and training, added to her own high character and desire to do good as she had opportunity, it is no wonder that the founder of the Lucy Jackson Chapter, Fanny Bassett Allen, the eldest daughter of Nathaniel Topliff and Caroline Bassett Allen, and her sisters, also women of high ideals, took a deep interest in the objects of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, seeing in it a means of added good to individuals and to society in its best sense. They wanted therefore, to have a chapter established in Newton, one that should be of the finest and strongest type, with the most elevated purpose and ideals.

It now becomes necessary for me to speak of the part and privilege I had in helping to open the way for the founding of this chapter. Fanny Allen and I were intimate friends from the days when in early girlhood, we were classmates in her father's school. We shared each other's hopes, plans, joys, sorrows, life-purposes and experiences. When I became, in 1895, State Regent for Rhode Island of the D. A. R., and undertook the organization of four new chapters in my State, she was of course much interested, and began to discuss with me the possibility of having a chapter in Newton. During a visit I made that summer at the Allen's summer home in Linekin, Maine, she and I, with her two sisters, Sarah, about to become Mrs. Cooney, and Mary Allen, talked much of the matter, and they learned of the necessary steps to be taken.

The result was, that in the following summer, of 1896, I furnished to the three Allen sisters, and to Mrs. Ella Ledyard Sargent, who became the first Corresponding Secretary of the Lucy Jackson Chapter, the application blanks, and, if I remember rightly, I endorsed the papers of all four of these first charter members. I know I did those of Fanny Allen and Mrs. Sargent. (My diary of July 23, 1896 states that I had that day forwarded "the Allen and Sargent" D. A. R. papers.)

By November, 1896, the necessary twelve members had been secured, largely by the personal invitation and solicitation of the Allen sisters, notably of her who was to be honored by the Regency.

On November 27, 1896, these twelve ladies met in the parlors of the Allen residence on Webster street, having as their guests, Mme. von Rydingsvard, State Regent of Massachusetts, and myself, whom you christened on that day as the Chapter's godmother, a highly prized relationship. After addresses by the two State Regents, and asking of questions, and discussion, it was voted to organize a chapter and apply to the National Society for a charter. Officers were elected, and by unanimous choice, she who had first furnished the inspiration and had done the preliminary work was chosen as Regent, an office which she held for nine years, and might have held still longer, had she so chosen. It was at this first meeting, as appears from my diary, for the date, that the name "Lucy Jackson" was chosen. (Continued on Page 8)

Newton Republicans should cast a large vote at the coming state election for the party ticket. Our candidate for governor, Hon. Samuel W.
McCall, has the respect and confidence of a large constituency and his admirable record in Congress proves him to be a man of independence and ability. His speeches in the present campaign are on a high plane and he discusses state issues with confidence and intelligence.

Mr. Carter, the Republican candidate for Congress, should also have the vote of every Republican and every independent who realize how the Democratic administration at Washington is affecting the prosperity of the country. Elect Republican House of Representatives and check, to some degree
the extravagance and the mal-administration which are probable during the next two years.

DEATH OF MR. LEEDS

Mr. Frederick Augustus Leeds, a resident of this city for many years, died Tuesday at his home on Linder terrace, Newton, after a long illness on his fifty-eighth birthday. Mr.
Leeds was born in Cambridge and for many years was associated with the advertising department of the Youth's Companion, as a member of the Perry Mason Corporation. He was a valued member of Immanuel Baptist Church and was highly respected by a large number of friends. He is survived by a widow, one son, Mr. F.
Chester Leeds, and one daughter, Miss Marian Leeds of this city.

The funeral services, which were held yesterday afternoon, from his late residence, were attended by a large number of friends and business associates. The Youth's Companion offices being closed for the afternoon in respect to his memory. Rev. Harrie R. Chamberlin, pastor of the Immanuel Church, officiated, and the bearers were Messrs. Peter C. Ross, John G.
King, Willard E. Keyes and Herbert F. Sylvester. The body was placed in a vault at Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

RECEPTION

Mrs. William C. Safford was the hostess at a charming reception on Wednesday afternoon at her residence on Chestnut street, West Newton. The occasion was complimentary to Mrs.
Winchester and Miss Dennison.

The ladies received from 4 until 6 in the drawing-room, which was very effectively decorated with a combination of white and yellow chrysanthemums. The scheme for the decorations in the dining-room was also white and yellow, and the ladies who poured were Mrs. Charles I. Travell and Mrs. Sumner Robinson. There were about 100 guests present from the Newtons.

COLLISION

William Keating of Langley road, Newton Centre, a driver in the employ of Flangelio Gasparri, a Newton Centre expressman, was injured about the head and body yesterday morning on Commonwealth avenue, near Chestnut terrace, when an automobile owned and operated by Edward S. Purshow of Boston, came in collision with the team. The shafts on the wagon were broken and the front lights on the auto were damaged. Keating was thrown out, and was taken to the Newton Hospital in the automobile of Wallace

BAD LEGISLATION

Senator Weeks Speech Opposing the Clayton Anti-Trust Bill

Mr. President, the legislative situation existing in Washington is well illustrated, I think, by the attention which has been given to the masterly speech which the Senator from Idaho
(Mr. Borah) has just concluded. I do not believe there is a living man who can successfully controvert the statements which he has advanced relating to the results which are sure to come from this legislation which is now pending. Nobody knows what is going to happen. The best lawyers of this body and of the House of Representatives are in entire disagreement as to what the effect of this bill will be.

I have been listening to the debate on this subject off and on for several weeks, and I have come to the conclusion that there is not a Member of the Senate who really knows what the result of this legislation is going to be, either from a legal standpoint or from the standpoint of the great industrial operations of this country. Neither do those who frame the bill know what motives are behind this legislation.

I am not going to discuss in detail the various phases of this bill. If I were to do so and were able to do so, I should do it along the lines followed by the Senator from Idaho (Mr.
Borah). I believe it is bad legislation, and legislation that is going to cause serious trouble in this country. There might be some excuse for experimenting along these lines if business conditions were normal; but everybody knows that business conditions are abnormal, due to various causes, and especially to the great war which is being fought in Europe. It is no time to be imposing on business a new form of straitjacket, the effect of which will have to be determined by long-continued litigation, in the case of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

I am one of those who believe that those engaged in large business, generally speaking, have been honestly trying to carry out the provisions of that law. They have employed the best legal talent, not to be told how to avoid the provisions of the law, but to be told what they can and cannot do.
Neither the courts nor their attorneys have known how far they could go; and it has only been as a result of long court procedure and the decisions of the court of last resort that there has been finally given to business men a fairly clear course which they may follow and keep within the provisions of the law.

When the Trade Commission bill was under discussion I referred to an opinion given by Senator Hoar to what was known as the Wire Pool very soon after the passage of the Sherman Antitrust Act. Those people, engaged in manufacturing wire, asked Senator Hoar, who had had very much to do with it, was not a dominating factor in drawing that bill, if they could,
within the provisions of this act, continue the methods of business which they were then following; the Senator gave a very long and comprehensive opinion on the subject. He was a great lawyer, and it may be assumed that he was as intimate with the terms and provisions of the act as any man in the Senate or any man in the United States at that time. The men who asked for the opinion followed with the business has finally come to a reasonably sound conclusion, as far as the Sherman Antitrust Act is applicable.

It will take as many years of doubt to determine what this law means, multiplied by the increased number of cases which will be covered by the provisions of this law as compared with those which are affected by the Sherman Antitrust Act. There are 300,000 corporations in the United States which would come under the jurisdiction of this commission; and anyone who has followed the course of the courts in the case of the Sherman Antitrust Act must be convinced that it will be many, many years before there will be even a reasonable course outlined by the courts themselves to indicate where business men may go, how far they may go, and where they must stop. All the time they will be employing expensive counsel to advise them what they may do, and the advice of counsel in many cases will be wrong, as it was in the case of Senator Hoar, to which I have referred.

There is one provision in this act
to which I wish to refer particularly,
and that is the one in section 8 relating to directorships in banks. We follow a directly contrary course in this country regarding directorships from that which has been evolved as a result of the experience of the rest of the world. In foreign countries where there are great industrial and business enterprises involved, it is the intent and the purpose of those who are interested in corporations or large business enterprises to obtain as directors those men whose previous experience and whose knowledge of the current conduct of business will make them safe and wise advisers. There are practically professional directors
in those countries, and there is no limitation to the number of boards or the character of the boards on which such men may serve. Even the great national banks of Europe are directed by men who are almost without exception directors in other large corporations, banks and directors of State banks at the same time. There could not be a greater piece of folly, from the standpoint of sound business, than to put any such provision as that in this law.

I regret that the Senate conferees did not stand by the bill as it passed the Senate; but, in any case, to limit directorships in a national bank to men who are not directors in a State bank under such conditions is going to be demoralizing and prejudicial to the best conduct of banking business in every one of the 28 states which will come within the provisions of that paragraph.

Mr. CHILTON. The Senator has noticed, I presume, that the provision to which he refers does not go into effect for two years?

Mr. WEEKS. Yes; but the provision is fundamentally wrong. It is not a question of when it goes into effect.
It is a question of whether it is wise
and sound, or unwise and unsound;
and I contend that it is the latter.

State banks and trust companies in many respects conduct an entirely different kind of business from that conducted by national banks in such respects. They are supplementary to national banks. They do a trust business, a mortgage business, and various other things which are prohibited by the national banking act, so they are supplementary to national banks. But there is another and even sounder reason.

Mr. OVERMAN. There is a proviso here allowing any bank to have one trust company at the same place, which can do the very thing the Senator is talking about.

Mr. WEEKS. Yes; but if the Senator will read the provision I think he will find that in that case the trust company must be entirely owned by the stockholders of the bank.

Mr. OVERMAN. Exactly; and it can do that kind of work. Another thing to which I wish to call the Senator's attention is that while a person can be a director in only one bank in one of these cities, outside of the city he can be a director in as many banks as he pleases. It applies only to banks located in the same city.

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. President, I think
I know the reason why this legislation has taken this form. There were cases, in one of the great cities of this country, especially where certain men became directors of considerable number of banks. I want to say frankly that I think it was carried too far,
and that a provision which would prevent any such condition would be wise and salutary. If, however, the trust company or the State bank does perform the same general kind or banking which is conducted by the national bank, it is of man's advantage to have a director of a State bank also eligible for a directorship in a national bank.

If there is any value in the examination of banks by examiners or inspectors—and I believe there is—that value is negated by the fact that the same inspectors or examiners who examine the national bank never see the inside of the State bank. If, however, there is a man on the board of directors of the national bank who is at the same time a member of the board of directors of the State bank, so that he may give to the officers of the national bank the information which comes from his experience as a director of the State bank, then he is a more valuable director than any other that can be obtained.

You are taking that possibility away from hundreds of banks in the cities to which this legislation refers. It is injunctive and unwise, in my judgment, and I regret, as I said before,
that the conferees of the Senate did not insist on leaving this provision out of the bill. It is a provision which would have covered the instance which I have given would have met my approval.

Mr. President, what I particularly want to refer to in connection with this legislation is the bogey man which has been set up by almost all those who have discussed it, in the shape of the company known as the United Shoe Machinery Co. I know that in this saturnal of criminality and re-criminality and denunciation which goes on against large business combinations, large corporations called trusts, it is unusual for anybody to venture to say a word in defense of what he believes has been the building up of a great industry, which has been beneficial to all the people of this country and other countries. Yet I cannot believe that in relation to this particular enterprise Senators or Representatives or the country at large have sufficient knowledge of its operations to warrant their indulging in the denunciation which has been indulged in, and in using it as a basis—as this has been done in many cases, in my judgment—for legislation.

It is true that the United Shoe Machinery Co. is now being proceeded against by the Government, which has asked for a dissolution of the company. That in itself should be sufficient reason, I think, why legislation should not be passed which is going to affect the operations of that company.
The trial of the case has not been completed; the evidence has been submitted; the arguments have been made.
Incidentally, I want to say that all the evidence which has been retained in one form or another, before the Senate and House committees, and before the Senate itself, has been submitted to the United States courts in Boston. All of it has been passed on and much of it has been thrown out of court, and it is now in the hands of three judges who are writing the decision.

Under the circumstances I think Congress might well refrain from legislating in a way which is intended to affect directly that great industry until the courts have determined what course should be taken.

Not only that, but we have pending in the House legislation which very largely relates to this industry. It is a revision of the patent laws, which,
in effect, is exactly what we are doing in this bill. A report has been made, and the bill is now on the House calendar dealing with this subject. I suppose, under the procedure we are now following, that some day this bill will be taken up in the Senate. When it is, it should be as thoroughly discussed as any legislation that ever has come before this body, because we have excelled in many of our industrial and business operations in this country because of our patent legislation; and before anything is done to destroy the effects of that legislation, the change should be given the utmost scrutiny.

I notice in the report which has been made on that bill, House bill 15893—a report which is astounding in its lack of accuracy—a paragraph which I want to read:

"A monopoly of 98 or 99 per cent of the shoe-manufacturing machinery business of the United States brought about by acquisition of ownership of between seven and twelve thousand patents completely covering the shoe industry exists in the United States to-day. There is not a single shoe manufacturer in the United States able to continue in business against the pleasure of the owner of these patents, because of the power to enforce the tying and restrictive clauses based on these patents and the use of these contracts. This monopoly compels every shoe manufacturer in the United States using its machinery, and there are no others, to buy from it only at its arbitrarily fixed price all nails, wire, wax, and other necessities of the industry, under penalty of having his machinery ripped from his factory without notice or redress. Nobody can buy shoe-manufacturing machinery from this monopoly at any price,
and because of the tying and restrictive clauses based on patents inserted in its lease contracts a monopoly of the manufacture of shoemaking machinery has been built up until to-day only 1 or 2 per cent of the shoe machinery in the United States is made by itself and as a result control of the shoe industry is in the hands of a few companies, and the shoe machines made by these companies are not covered by patents and which can not be manufactured at a very great profit."

The Shoe Machinery Trust, by virtue of tying and restrictive clauses based on patents, under no circumstances permits its lessees to install shoe machines obtained from a source other than itself, and as a result control of practically all of the shoe machinery in operation in the United States is retained in the patentee manufacturers. Machinery may be obtained from this monopoly by lease only. The company will not sell its machines, and its monopoly in its field is complete."

President, substantially every statement made in that report is untrue. Some of them are so far from the truth that it would seem as if the writer could not have given any investigation whatever to the facts. The entire record of the evidence of the trial of the Shoe Machinery Co., in Boston, which is now before the court, would substantiate the correctness of the statement which I have just made.
But I want to refer particularly to some of the statements.

First, this record shows that even the United States abandoned the claim that the United Co. monopolizes shoe machinery generally, and claimed only that the company had a monopoly of the bottoms for preparing and attaching the sole to the uppers of boots and shoes, eyeletting machines, and clicking machines. In all other respects it abandoned the contention that there was a monopoly in shoe machinery.

I may well say at this point, Mr.
President, that when the United Shoe Machinery Co. was formed it was a combination of two fundamental machines—the Goodyear shoe machine, and the McKay shoe machine. The McKay shoe machine, which is now in the hands of the United Shoe Machinery Co., does not furnish the machinery which is used in making the uppers of shoes. Much of that machinery is made by the Singer Sewing Machine Co., which puts out many machines a day where the United Shoe Machinery Co. puts out one for use in the shoe-manufacturing business.

It takes more than 60 different machines to make a shoe. In some shoes as many as 185 operations are gone through, 28 of which are by hand, even in these days of machinery making. Some of that handwork has been obviated very recently by the United Shoe Machinery, which has spent a million dollars in developing what is called the pulling-over machine, which simply means pulling the leather over the last and tacking or fastening the leather to the sole of the shoe. It leaves those machines to manufacturers on a royalty basis of threeeighths of a cent a pair.

Now, if it were necessary to buy such machinery at a cost of $3,000 or $3,500, in addition to the machinery of other machines which are necessary in making a shoe, it would be impossible for the smaller shoe manufacturers to purchase sufficient equipment to conduct their business. More than half of the 1,300 shoe manufacturers in the United States manufacture less than 700 pairs of shoes a day. They conduct a small business, but are able to undertake the business because they can lease machinery of the United Co.

Mr. OVERMAN. I feel curiosity on one point, to know what would be the cost of making one pair of shoes in royalty paid for the use of these machines.

Mr. WEEKS. The highest possible machinery cost in making shoes is less than 6 cents a pair. The average is 2-3 cents a pair. There are some grades of shoes where the cost is less than 1 cent a pair. On all the McKay shoes, not Goodyear shoes, manufactured in this country the machinery cost averages 1-2 cents a pair. It is the only element entering into the manufacture of shoes which has not increased in cost since the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Co. in 1899.

Mr. BORAH. The Senator from North Carolina asked the Senator what would be the royalty derived for making a pair of shoes by those who own the machines. I think that the way the Senator understood the question?

Mr. WEEKS. I understand that it is less than 6 cents a pair.

Mr. LIPPITT. If the Senator will yield to me a moment, does he mean by machinery cost the royalty cost?

Mr. WEEKS. The royalty cost.
Mr. LIPPITT. The price of the royalty?

Mr. WEEKS. The price of the roy-
alty.

Mr. WEST. I thought the Senator said it was a cent and a half.

Mr. WEEKS. I said the highest possible cost is less than 6 cents a pair,
and that in the McKay shoe the average machinery cost is 1-2 cents a pair, and of all the shoes made by machinery in this country, 300,000,000 pairs, the average machinery cost is 2-3 cents a pair.

Mr. MARTINE of New Jersey. I should like to ask the Senator how the other cost for a pair of shoes is made up. In material—

Mr. WEEKS. The other cost is made up in material, overhead cost, labor cost. The labor cost of making a pair of shoes is 22 per cent of the total cost.

Mr. MARTINE of New Jersey. But the machine takes the place of the former individual labor.

Mr. WEEKS. Oh, no; the Senator has not investigated the subject. The actual labor cost of making shoes is 22 per cent to-day. It is 22 per cent of the cost of the shoe, in addition to which the machinery cost may be from two-thirds of a cent a pair to 6 cents a pair.

Mr. MARTINE of New Jersey. Even admitting that fact, it would seem that we are paying somebody an inordinate price for shoes.

Mr. WEEKS. The average profit made by shoe manufacturers in the United States on all shoes sold is less than 7 cents a pair. Take shoes like those the Senator is probably wearing now. I presume that he paid $5, the retail price.

The cost of those shoes was about $3 a pair to the manufacturer—probably $2.75, but call it $3 a pair. Of that cost 66 cents, or 22 per cent, went to labor; and of that cost not over 4-1-2, probably not over 4, cents a pair was machinery cost.

Mr. MARTINE of New Jersey. I know this fact. I have come in contact with a good many of the unfortunate and lowly in my walks in life, and I have come in contact with many of those who are making shoes and who have a pegging machine, a lasting machine, or whatever else. I have talked with a number of them, and they all of them rebel that they can not own machines. I can not recall an instance where they have not rebelled, but I think the thought that they had to hire the machines, I recall a German who said in his broken tongue that he felt when he had really to pay his money that he should have the right to own his machine and not be restricted to buy his thread, his wax,
his pegs, and God knows what—all that went into a shoe—from the company that leased these machines. I heard his tale.

Then I have heard the tale of a very distinguished and delightful gentleman whose name is Barbour, of the Barbour flax thread that enters into shoes.
I happen to know Mr. Barbour, who is a multimillionaire, a fine type of a fellow, who had an ambition to run for Congress once in New Jersey. He lost to Patterson. But he was annihilated in the contest for votes. It was Mr. Barbour's idea that it was a great blessing for the shoe man that he could not buy his machines, that he had to lease them; and, by the way, he is largely in the Shoe Machinery Co.

Now, there were two sides: one was the devil who was using the machine, the other was the millionaire who was getting a profit out of it.
They viewed it through a different lens. It does seem to me that there ought to be some way to get together.
I do not know that it is unfortunate to be a shoemaker, but they work hard and long and get but little compensation. It does seem to me that there should be some way whereby the man who owns these privileges and patent rights should be reasonably satisfied and that the fellow who sits bending over his last at the tiresome task of making shoes the day long should have the right to own that which he was quite willing to pay for.
I think it is an awful evil.

I happen to know this gentleman,
Mr. Barbour, that I speak of. He is a multimillionaire, as I said, a fine, genial gentleman, a very good, loyal friend; and I know other poor men with whom I come in contact, and a very often ask myself, in God's name, is there not some way by which these two ends may be reasonably and yet fairly satisfied?

Mr. WEEKS. I do not know anyone who could make a more fearful plea for the manufacturer than the Senator has just made, but if he will take the trouble to examine the record of the hearings before the Judiciary Committee of the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate, he will not find a single word from a manufacturer of shoes who manufactures less than 10,000 a pair of shoes protesting against this process which he is now criticizing, and I will say to the Senator, if this legislation takes effect, instead of having 1,300 shoe manufacturers in the United States, some of them—the little fellows he is speaking of—will be eliminated, so that we will have a monopoly in the shoe-manufacturing business, something that would be a thousand times worse than that complained of in the case of machinery.
Attempts are being made now—and I intend to show, before I get through, the animus of this attack on the United Shoe Machinery Co.—for attempts are being made by those who manufacture on a large scale to break down this system so that they may get their machines on different terms from those made to the smaller men, so that they may control the manufacture of shoes
in this country.

Mr. MARTINE of New Jersey. As I said, the gentleman whose name I mentioned I know very well. He is a most competent, sensible and delightful citizen. But I speak from the humanitarian side. My sympathies are very closely and very easily reached. Perhaps some of my fellows here have discovered it. My heart has ached under the present situation. It has seemed to me that with the wonders of our progress and our intelligence and our ingenuity we should devise a plan somehow soon, whereby both these men might meet on fair ground, with ample and reasonable compensation and justice to both.

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. President, the Senator's heart will not ache for the particular individuals to whom he is referring if this legislation goes into effect, because they will be out of business. They could not continue business if they had to buy the more than 60 machines that are used in manufacturing shoes. Some of those machines cost a thousand dollars apiece.
I referred to the pulling-over machine which would have to be sold at $3,500 apiece. The very fact that these machines are leased on a fair basis, I think, enables the smallest man to start a shoe-manufacturing business,
and that is the reason why the industry is so thoroughly distributed in the United States to-day. As I have said, more than half the manufacturers manufacture less than 700 pairs a day.

Mr. OVERMAN. The Senator from Missouri (Mr. Reed) contends that the teeth have been extracted from this measure. I understand the Senator from Massachusetts to say if it goes into effect there will be a monopoly of shoe machinery.

Mr. WEEKS. I wish to frankly say that I do not expect to influence anyone by what I am saying. The United Machinery Co. is a Massachusetts corporation. It employs something like 4,000 men. It pays them the highest average pay paid to any similar number of employees in any industry in the United States or in the world. I am interested that such an enterprise shall be fairly represented on the floor of the Senate, and it is for that reason that I am trying to put in the record what the United Shoe Machinery Co. is, and what it is doing, and I am trying to point out that it is not the reprehensible corporation which it has been held to be in the discussions which have taken place.

Mr. WEST. Before the Senator from Massachusetts drifts away from that part of the subject in reference to the making of shoes, he said a few minutes ago that it took 6 cents to pay for the labor, and there was a payment of 4 cents on the machinery.

Mr. WEEKS. I said for such a shoe
as would retail at $5.

Mr. WEST. I wear a pair of shoes bought in this city for which I paid $6. I am curious to know where the balance of that $6 goes; 70 cents goes to the machinery and the labor; where the other 50 cents goes, I am curious to know. Of course there is some part of the cost in the material.

Mr. LIPPITT. Before answering that question perhaps the Senator will state what the wholesale price is of the shoe that retails at $6.

Mr. WEEKS. I will. Of course I am not attempting to give accurate figures, because they will vary with varying cases; but the labor cost is about, as I said, 22 per cent of the cost. The other costs of the manufacturer are the cost of his material, the overhead charges, and all the expenses that go to make up the cost in any manufacturing establishment; but in the case of a shoe that would sell at four dollars and a half, we will say,
the cost of manufacture would be about two dollars and a half, possibly two dollars and seventy-five cents.

The wholesaler would make, perhaps,
5 cents a pair, certainly not over 10 cents, and probably, ordinarily, not over 5 cents. It costs about 33 per cent of the selling price of shoes to retail them. Therefore, if you take a shoe selling at $4.50, 33 per cent of that would be $1.50, which would be the cost of retailing. The retailer may make 10, 15, or 20 cents a pair profit.
The wholesaler may make 5 cents a pair on shoes costing the manufacturer $2.70 a pair. The average profit which the manufacturer makes on all the shoes made in the United States, as I said before, is about 7 cents a pair.

Mr. REED. The royalty collected by this shoe machinery company may run as high as 6 cents a pair.

Mr. WEEKS. It may run as high as
6 cents a pair.

Mr. REED. So the royalty collected by this one company may be almost equivalent to the profits of the manufacturer who has taken all the chances of the business and who has done all the work of producing the shoe.

"DE SHEEPFOL"

De massa ob de sheepfol
Dat guards de sheepfol bin,
Look out in de gloomerin' meadows
Wha'r de long night rain begin.
So he call to de fardel sheepfol,
"Is my sheep—is dey all come in?"

Oh, den says de biddin' sheepfol:
"Dey's some, dey's black and thin,
And some dey's p'p'le wedda's,
But de res' dey's all bring in,
But de res' dey's all bring in."

Den de massa ob de sheepfol
Dat guards de sheepfol bin,
Goes down in de gloomerin' meadows,
Wha'r de long night rain begin.
So he le' down de ba's ob the sheepfol, Callin' sof, "Come in, come in!"
Callin' sof, "Come in, come in!"

Den up t'ro' de gloomerin' meadows,
T'ro' de col' night rain and win',
And up t'ro' de gloomerin' rain-pat

Wha'r de sleet fa' p'le'cin' thin,
De po' los' sheep ob de sheepfol
Dey all comes gadderin' in;
De po' los' sheep ob de sheepfol
Dey all comes gadderin' in!

CONTRASTS.

The rose and the thorn, sorrow and gladness, are linked together.—Saadi.

Nature hath meal and bran, contempt and grace.—"Cymbeline." Shakespeare.

Those that are good manners at the court are as ridiculous in the country as the behavior of the country is most mockable at court.—Shakespeare.

The little may contrast with the great in painting, but cannot be said to be contrary to it. Oppositions of colors contrast, but there are also colors contrary to each other—that is, which produce an ill effect because they shock the eye when brought very near it.—Voltaire.

INDIVIDUAL GROWTH.

It cannot be too often repeated that the ends of society are not realized when there are great aggregate results, magnificent public works, great accumulations of wealth and of the means of sensual and sensitive enjoyment, with the degradation or without the growth of individuals, and that all changes in the form of institutions and the directions of active industry must be futile which do not originate in or draw after them an improvement in the character of individuals. But it is self evident that society can furnish a free arena for individual growth only as the principles of justice and benevolence are recognized.

—Mark Hopkins.

THE MIND.

Every mind was made for growth, for knowledge, and its nature is sinned against when it is doomed to ignorance.—Channing.

Nobody, I believe, will deny that we are to form our judgment of the true nature of the human mind not from sloth and stupidity of the most degenerate and vilest of men, but from the sentiments and fervent desires of the best and wisest of the species.—Archbishop Leighton.

EMPIRE BUILDERS.

For all are empire builders here whose hearts are true to heaven and home

And, year by slow revolving year,
Fulfill the duties as they come.
So simple seems the task, and yet
Many for this are crucified,
Aye, and their brother men forget

The simple wounds in palm and side.
But he that to his home is true,
Where'er the tides of power may flow,
Has built a kingdom great and new
Which time nor fate shall overthrow.

These are the empire builders; these Annex where none shall say
Beyond the world's uncharted seas,
Realms that can never pass away.

A. O. H. CONVENTION

The biennial county convention of Middlesex County A. O. H. was held at Mague Hall, West Newton on Sunday last.

There were 250 delegates present from all parts of the county. County President James J. Harold presided and introduced Thomas J. Lyons to deliver the address of welcome to the delegates and Rev. Fr. Rioran of Newton Centre offered prayer. A committee from the local division entertained the committee which included Brothers M. J. Kenny of Newton, David Kerr of West Newton, John Fleming of Lower Falls and Daniel Hannigan of Newton Centre.

President Harold was re-elected by acclamation, so was Charles J. Gibbs of Somerville for County Recording Secretary, and F. H. Brennan of Framingham for Treasurer.

There was a spirited contest for the position of County Vice-President and County Financial Secretary. John P. McCarthy of Cambridge being elected Vice-President and Timothy O'Connell of Newton as Financial Secretary.

Something Worth Trying.

Anybody who has ever tried, for five minutes, a big motive, ever tried working a little happiness for other people into what he is doing for himself, for instance, if he stopped to think about it and how it worked and how happy it made him himself, would never do anything in any other way all his life. It is the big motives that are efficient.—Crowds.

UNION RESCUE MISSION

Next Sunday evening the Baptist, Elliot and Methodist churches in Newton unite in a union service in the Methodist Church. This is to be in the interests of the Union Rescue Mission located at 64A Dover street, Boston.

For over 25 years this light house has stood in one of the darkest sections of Boston for the purpose of aiding men and women to a better life and thousands of "derelicts" have been changed by the power of the Gospel in this mission. Several men will tell the thrilling story of their lives Sunday night and little Evelyn Allen, the soloist at the Mission, will sing. Mr. Call the superintendent, will give a brief account of the work and Mr. Frank P. Davidson, the president, will preside. This will be a most interesting service and if you care to know how the "other half" lives, come to this service.

GRAND OPERA
The Boston Theatre Opera Company has firmly established itself as a company of distinctly high class. On Monday and Friday evenings next week "Un Ballo in Maschera" will be the offering with Mmes. Blanche Hamilton Fox, Miriam Ardin, Kathryn Lynbrook and the MM. Giuseppe Tricardi, Ferruccio Corradetti, Pietro di Biasi and Joseph Florian. On Tuesday evening that ever popular double bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" will be sung with the Mmes. Gentile and Sapin and the MM. Sacchetti and Gallazzi in the first named and the Mme. de Philippe and the MM. Pico, Opezzo and Giuliani in the last mentioned. For Wednesday matinee "Rigoletto" is the selected opera with another attractive list of artists including the Mmes. Gentile and Ardin and the MM. di Crescenzo, Blanchard, di Biasi and Florian. On Wednesday and Saturday evenings, Puccini's supreme triumph "La Boheme" will be sung with the Mmes. Johanna Kristoff and Erminda Blanchard. The list of principal artists will introduce Guido Ciccolini as Rodolfo and T. Corradetti, Gallazzi, di Biasi and Corradetti. For Thursday evening, "The Barber of Seville" with the Mmes. Ardin and Sapin and the MM. di Crescenzo, Corradetti, Pico and di Biasi will be sung. On Saturday matinee, "Carmen" will be repeated with Alice Gentile in the title role. The series of Sunday night operatic concerts which was inaugurated with big success last Sunday night will be continued and another excellent array of the principal artists of the company will appear on next Sunday night.

Monday's matinee of d'Annunzio's massive dramatic spectacle, "Cabrila," marked the beginning of the fifth week at Tremont Temple of this remarkable exhibition of motion photography. It also marks the beginning of the end for "Cabrila," on account of other bookings in New England, can only remain in Boston a few more weeks. The crowds that have witnessed the unfolding of the famous author's beautiful story of the little child Cabrila, and the ever changing panorama of the world's most intensely interesting story, have nearly filled the enormous capacity of Tremont Temple at every performance. The famous picture, orchestra and chorus are heard and seen twice daily, at 2 and 8 P. M.

POLITICAL NOTES

Considerable enthusiasm was displayed at the Democratic rally Monday evening in Nonantum Hall, Newton, under the auspices of the Newton Democratic Club. Pres. T. D. Murphy presided, and the various speakers, which included Lieut. Gov. Edward P. Barry, Frederick W. Mansfield, State Treasurer, Frank H. Pope, State Auditor; Congressman John J. Mitchell, Martin T. Hall, Democratic candidate for Senator, and the three candidates for Representatives, Justin A. McCarthy, James A. Waters and John P. Tierney.

And later in that letter Mr. Coolidge says, speaking of an opinion by him to Charles H. Jones, his client. In this published opinion he assured Mr. Jones—this is the quotation:

"The leases being invalid, you can not be liable for failure to perform. Mr. REED, I wish to ask, after the Massachusetts Legislature passed the bill which restricted the right to make leases of this character, whether the Senator knows who it was who devised the plan to escape the effect of that law, the plan being to simply add a clause giving a right to terminate the lease—the clause, indeed, that I read a moment ago, and under which the proprietor of the machinery or lessor of the machinery can go into a man's factory the moment he puts in a machine that he did not make and take out all the machines there are there and close down his business and ruin him? I wish to ask if the Senator knows whether Mr. Brandeis devised that means of meeting the statute of Massachusetts?"

Mr. WEEKS. No, Mr. President; I have not any information on that subject.

Mr. REED. I want to ask the Senator, if I am not too much trespassing upon his time, if he knows who it was who first introduced into the House of Representatives a bill containing what is now substantially section 5 of the Trade Commission bill, section 5 being the provision that "all unfair competition is hereby declared to be unlawful?"

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. President, I do not recall who introduced it. Mr. REED. I will say to the Senator that that bill was introduced by Representative Stevens of New Hampshire. Representative Stevens of New Hampshire also introduced at about the same time House bill 13305, entitled "A bill to prevent discrimination in prices and to provide for publicity of prices to dealers and to the public," a clause which read as follows:

"That in any contract for the sale of articles of commerce to any dealer, wholesaler or retailer, by any producer, grower, manufacturer, or owner thereof, under trade-mark, or special brand, hereinafter referred to as the 'vendor,' it shall be lawful for such vendor, whenever the contract constitutes a transaction of commerce among the several States . . . to prescribe the sole uniform price at which each article covered by such contract may be resold."

Then follow some qualifying provisions.

I want to ask the Senator from Massachusetts if he does not know that that bill was introduced at the request of the American Fair Trade League, and that Mr. Ingersoll, the president of the Ingersoll Watch Co., is the president of the American Fair Trade League; and if he does not also know that Mr. Brandeis is his attorney?

Mr. WEEKS. I have not any information on that subject.

Mr. REED. Well, evidently I have gotten into a field that the Senator from Massachusetts has not been over. Mr. WEEKS. I have no information at all on the subject.

Mr. REED. The Senator from Massachusetts has stated that Mr. Brandeis drew the contracts of the Shoe Machinery Trust. Does the Senator know at what time Mr. Brandeis severed his connection with that concern as attorney or officer?

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. President, in that particular I have quoted what is a part of the public record in relation to Mr. Brandeis's association with the organization. As an attorney for the United Shoe Co. in 1906 he did appear for the company before the legislature. Since that time he has been employed by others than the Shoe Machinery Co., and he has publicly attacked the laws which he is supposed to have had a very potent hand in drawing.

Mr. REED. Does the Senator from Massachusetts know whether Mr. Brandeis had anything to do with investigating the litigation that is now pending and furnishing information?

Mr. WEEKS. I have no definite details, Mr. President, but Mr. Brandeis has represented those who have been very active in attacking the Shoe Machinery Co., particularly Mr. Charles H. Jones of the Commonwealth Shoe Co. of Massachusetts.

Some time ago, Mr. President, I was referring to a report which had been made by the Committee on Patents relating to this subject, and I indicated that, in my judgment, there was no statement in that report which was accurate; that some of the statements were very far from having any basis; and that the records of the United States court in Boston would bear out the truth of my contention. Now I am going on to read some of the replies to the statements made in the report from which I have read:

"The record shows— That is, the record of the United States court—

"Without contradiction, that of the 1,300 to 1,500 shoe manufacturers of the United States the United Co. leases machines to not more than 1,033, and to many of these it leases only one or two machines of the hundreds which they use."

Incidentally, and perhaps properly to be referred to at this time, one of those who have attacked the United Shoe Machinery Co. for years is Mr. Richard H. Long of Framingham, Mass., a shoe-machinery manufacturer and a shoe manufacturer. Mr. Long manufactures what is known as the Waldorf shoe, a shoe well known in the trade, which he sells through his own stores. Mr. Long has not to-day, and he has not for years, a single machine in his factory put out by the United Shoe Machinery Co. If all of his machines are machines of his own manufacture or of the manufacture of some other than the United Shoe Machinery Co.

The reason why manufacturers use the machinery of the United Shoe Machinery Co. is because it is the best machinery; it is a test of efficiency, pure and simple; it is not a question of a lease or of a tying clause or of a sale or of anything of that kind.

The United Shoe Machinery Co. puts out something like 300 different machines. Most of those machines may be purchased or leased, at the option of the user. It is only the three fundamental machines relating to those parts of the shoe to which I have previously referred which are leased, and only leased.

I want to say now, for fear that I may be misunderstood, that not only these machines but every manufacturer in the United States, large and small, East and West, North and South, on exactly the same terms, but they are leased to every manufacturer in Europe who uses the machines on exactly the same terms. The United Shoe Machinery Co. manufactures machines in England, in France, and in Germany, and it leases to the foreign manufacturer those machines which are manufactured where the labor cost is hardly more than one-third of what is the labor cost in the United States on exactly the same terms the lease is made in this country.

I think I ought to say here that one reason why we dominate—and it is the main reason—the shoe-manufacturing business not only of this country, but of the world, is because of the perfection of the machinery which has been developed by this company. I have any amount of testimony here from manufacturers—and Senators can find it in the reports to which I have referred—relative to the excellence of this machinery. We not only provide ourselves with shoes in this country, but we are exporting them to a very unusual thing for us to do under the tariff conditions which obtain—because we make them in this country to fit the foot. We have developed the last and machinery to such perfection that we are able to furnish any shaped foot with a shoe. Senators will recall that 20 years ago when they bought a ready-made shoe they almost invariably had to break it in at considerable pain and trouble. Now you can go into any 1 of 20 stores down here on Pennsylvania avenue and the salesman will fit your foot with a shoe, so that you walk off with as much comfort as if you had worn it for a month. That is due not only to the perfection of the lasts, which we have developed in this country, but to the perfection of the machinery in making the shoe, and very largely to the Goodyear welt, which is the best form of shoe we have developed and of which there are made in this country probably twenty times as many as there were when the United Shoe Machinery Co. was formed 15 years ago.

Now, to proceed with the answers to the statement in this report of the House Committee on Patents:

"Second. The record shows without contradiction that of the 1,300 to 1,500 shoe manufacturers of the United States the United Co. leases machines to not more than 1,033, and to many of these it leases only one or two machines of the hundreds which they use."

"Third. The record shows that the United Co. offers to all manufacturers leases of its leased machines without any tying clauses whatever. The tying clauses are used at the option of the shoe manufacturer in connection with wholesale and cheaper methods of obtaining the use of the company's machines. Where he takes the leases with the tying clauses in them, he does so because he prefers those leases."

"Fourth. The company requires manufacturers to buy nails or wire or eyelets of it only when they lease machines, the entire payment for the use of which is composed in the price charged for the nails or wire or eyelets. The company does not require wax or any other necessities of the industry to be bought of it, either 'under penalty of having machinery ripped from the factory without notice or any other penalty.'"

There is a reason for buying nails and wire of a standard quality. A machine works well when the material with which it has to work is of the highest standard, but it may work badly if the material furnished for that purpose is of low standard. Knowing the standard of this product, in order to assure that the machines of this company will work satisfactorily, as they should work and do work, it has been considered advisable and desirable that the manufacturers using the machines should buy the nails and wire of this company at the price at which they would be purchased in the open market.

"Fifth. The record shows that the company sells outright to all customers at uniform prices 170 different types of machines, of considerably more than half of the various kinds it manufactures."

"Sixth. The record abounds in testimony from shoe manufacturers that the company has never interfered with their obtaining machines of other manufacturers and using them side by side with machines obtained from the United Co."

I would like the Senators to remember that I am reading from the record of the trial of this case in the United States court in Boston. I read further:

"All the machines for stitching the uppers of shoes in every factory in the United States are obtained from manufacturers other than the United Co. Even the United States made no claim that the United Co. had a monopoly of machines for stitching the uppers of shoes."

"It is unnecessary in detail to further refute the assertions made. The record in the case mentioned is a complete answer to them. The files of the Commerce Department of the United States show by the reports of its consuls and other agents that the United States leads the world in the variety and excellence of its shoe machinery, and this result has been accomplished by the efforts of the United Co."

There probably has not been a year since the organization of that company that at least $500,000 has not been expended in developing machinery, and when the United Shoe Machinery Co. develops a new machine or an improvement on an old machine, it takes out the old machine and puts in the new one without any cost to the manufacturer, so that the manufacturer has the benefit of up-to-date machinery all the time. If Senators could go back to the time when the Government, instead of throwing about beneficent companies of this character a protecting arm, warding it from abuse, suits, and legal entanglements which it now places in its path, that its energies be allowed to develop and be conserved for larger and more highly efficient industry.

as modern and up-to-date machinery as can be obtained. He would buy a machine which seemed to be all right which was thoroughly tested, and as a result it would break. It was necessary for the manufacturer to keep at hand a skilled mechanic all the time to make the necessary renewals and repairs. Under these conditions frequently such machines had to be taken out after they had done an amount of poor work, which would affect adversely the business of the manufacturer in addition to the actual loss involved.

The machines of the United Shoe Machinery Co. are thoroughly tried out before they are put in, and the Shoe Machinery Co. employs men, available at all times, to keep the machines in order, without any cost to the manufacturer except the cost of spare parts where new parts are needed. That policy is not only a benefit to the manufacturer, but it is of special benefit to the shoe workmen.

I have myself talked time and again with the employees of shoe factories in Massachusetts about the results obtained from this manner of conducting the business, and I never have seen a man who has not stated to me, "We get better results under the conditions to-day than we did in the old days when the machines were breaking down." "Why?" "Because frequently a machine would break down under those old conditions and the manufacturer would have to send for an expert to repair the machine and we would be laid off for half a day, sometimes for a day, before the machine would be ready to go on with its work. Now in 20 minutes, an expert from the manufacturing center, an expert can be obtained who makes the machine workable, so that the workmen can complete a day's work each day without reasonable hours."

Now, let me point out to you how it is the benefit to the small manufacturer. The tract which I will read is only one of hundreds of such from small manufacturers relating to this industry. It is written by Mr. R. O. Green, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, in which he refers to the advantages in very definite terms and denies the truth of many statements that have been made concerning the Shoe Machinery Co. Mr. Green says:

"I have any presumed extortion from the consuming public. What would be the result if we were operating under old conditions? Several different machines for doing the same operations would be on the market, some good, some bad, and some quite indifferent, but none of them with the efficiency of the machines in operation now, because the United Shoe Machinery Co. do not put out machines until they have been thoroughly tested and found absolutely perfect in their operation."

"This is necessary from every point of economy, because their revenue depends upon the perfect and constant working of the machines, as most of the royalty is paid so much per pair. The shoe manufacturer is not a socialist. When, under old conditions, he bought a machine he had to buy it outright and take his chances on its doing the work as represented by the company selling, and also take his chances on an improvement being made at any time which would make his machinery worthless. He would have to employ an expert machinist, competent to take care of all his machines, which would hardly be done, for the United Shoe Machinery Co. people find they have to do and employ separate machinists for each system of machines. If such a machinist could be employed, he would be a very high-priced man, and the ordinary manufacturer could not afford to pay the price, and if they did they would have to add the extra cost to the cost of the shoe. So, taking the expense incurred by depreciating machinery, which would be constantly occurring in large degree, other than ordinary wear and tear on account of continual supposed improvement, together with the large expense of employing a high-salaried expert machinist to take care of and keep in repair the machines, the cost per pair over what it now costs would conservatively amount to four or five times as much as the present royalty system involves. What would be the result? Every small concern, and in fact, every concern except the very largest, would be forced out of business, because they would not have capital enough to keep up their machinery account and employ the high-priced experts to take care of it and we would have a shoe manufacturers' trust far more formidable and costly to the consumers than under present conditions. The fact is that under the admirable organization of the United Shoe Machinery Co. the industry of shoe manufacturing is stimulated, so that any energetic, capable person with a little money can go into the shoe-manufacturing business."

I will not quote further, but there is much more to the same general purport in the letter.

I have here a statement made by Hon. James M. Curley, the present Democratic mayor of Boston. I presume Mr. Curley, before he had investigated, might have had in his own mind some doubt about the value of the policy which was being carried on by this company, but it seems that last summer he made an investigation, and I quote from a statement which he made which was published in the Boston papers. Mr. Curley said:

"I sincerely wish that it were possible that every public man, especially our State and National officials, visit this industrial institution that they might grasp at first hand the grand work that the United Shoe Machinery Co. is striving to do, that the benefits it affords its home community, the State, and eventually the Nation might be comprehended. The policy of the State and National Governments would no longer persevere in the channels recently chosen, secondhand information would no longer be accepted in substitution for facts, bitter and unfounded attacks would be constituted a crime. The Government instead would throw about beneficent companies of this character a protecting arm, warding it from abuse, suits, and legal entanglements which it now places in its path, that its energies be allowed to develop and be conserved for larger and more highly efficient industry."

I am simply giving this information because I want Senators to have clearly in their minds some of the animus behind this attack on the Shoe Machinery Co.

NEWTON DEFEATED

Edmund Enwright, Boston Latin's left end, drop-kicked his team to a 3 to 0 victory over Newton High on Claffin Field, Newtonville Monday morning. The only score of the contest was made possible when Jack O'Dowd, Latin halfback, intercepted a forward pass and ran to Newton's 15-yard line. Three line plunges resulted in no gain and time for the first period was called. At the start of the second quarter Enwright dropped back to the 28-yard line and kicked a field goal. In the second period Newton attempted a field goal but it was short of the cross-bar.

William Wellman, Newton quarterback, made a thirty-yard run in the final quarter, to Latin's five-yard line and it looked as though the Orange and Black team would be able to score. But the Purple line held fast for three rushes, yielding a scant two yards. A drop-kick was called for, but Harris was unable to drop the ball between the bars and Newton's last chance to score had passed.

practical for the United States to disarm entirely?

No, I do not, because I believe we should have an army to act in sort of the same way as our Police forces, in order to preserve peace and unity among our peoples.

Do you believe in President Wilson's policy towards Mexico?

I find that among the men of other nations our President and Secretary are much lauded for their good work in preserving peace between the United States and Mexico.

Do you think Christianity has had a fair trial?

No, I do not, because we have not sufficiently exemplified Christianity.

Are you not unjust in calling attention to these other countries which have seized territory without regarding the wishes of the people. What about Cuba in 1898?

We did not take Cuba, we merely installed a system of government which we agreed to withdraw as soon as the people showed themselves capable of governing their country, and we carried out our promise. We did not even take the Philippines, they were purchased from Spain, and I think for the best interests of the country.

In your opinion is this the last great war?

Nobody knows.

D. A. R. MEETS

The first meeting of the Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A. R. of Newton, for the season of 1914-1915 was held at the Newton Club House on the afternoon of October 12th with the Regent, Mrs. Fessenden presiding and a full attendance.

The report of the annual meeting was read by the recording secretary, Mrs. Edith D. Jones. Mrs. F. W. Pray, registrar, read the annual report stating that the chapter has 104 members and a waiting list.

Mrs. Fessenden read a letter from Mrs. Story, President General of D. A. R., containing a personal communication from President Wilson, advising that funds, raised for sufferers by the war in Europe, be sent to the Red Cross.

Mrs. G. R. Pulsifer in charge of the music introduced Miss Edith Spinaola, a pupil of the West Newton Music School, who played most acceptably a Nocturne by Chopin, receiving graciously to a hearty encore.

The topic for the afternoon was "Chapter Reminiscences." Miss Mary A. Greene, Honorary State Regent of R. I. gave a most interesting account of the organization of the Chapter, with a most beautiful and touching tribute to its first Regent, Miss Fanny Bassett Allen, which is printed in full in another column. Mr. Arthur Hosmer read a paper on "Lucy Jackson and the Jackson Homes," and Mrs. A. P. Friend gave a resume of "Chapter Activities," a record creditable to any chapter.

After singing America a social hour was enjoyed when refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Edward S. Benedict and Mrs. Alexander Bennett.

GARDEN CITY YOUNG PEOPLE'S BRANCH ANNIVERSARY

The Garden City Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U. observed their first anniversary Wednesday evening at the Newtonville Methodist Church. Rev. Harrie Chamberlin of Newton opened the meeting with devotional exercises. The president, Mr. Arthur Hartford greeted the visitors, and responses were given by representatives from the West Newton and Newton Unions, and the branches from Roslindale, Needham Heights, Tremont Temple and South Boston.

Miss Secord of Newton, Miss Soden of Newtonville rendered vocal solos, the Newtonville Methodist Glee Club rendered two selections and Misses Lenz and Man of West Roxbury played a piano duet.

Alderman Jarvis gave a very interesting address on conditions in Newton regarding the transportation of liquor since the abolishing of pony licenses, and urged all present to work for a large "No" vote at the coming city election.

Miss Mary F. W. Anderson, the general state secretary, spoke on the work of the young people in the state and at the close installed the following officers:

President, Mr. Arthur Hartford; vice-president, Mr. Benjamin Messer; secretary, Miss Caroline Miller; treasurer, Miss Edith Melvin; superintendent of soldiers and sailors work, Mr. William Flood; superintendent of work for lumbermen, Mr. Robert McGreor; superintendent of work for Frances Willard Settlement, Miss Lucie Pillman; superintendent of medal contests, Miss Bertha Johnson.

Miss Edith Melvin was presented with the "Life of Frances Willard" in recognition of her collection of temperance clippings through the year.

Mr. Whitefield, president of Roslindale branch presented Miss Anderson with a purse from the Branches of Massachusetts. Garden City Branch challenged South Boston and Charlestown branches in a membership contest. We want all the young people with us this year. Meetings are the second Wednesday evening of each month at the Newtonville Methodist Church.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Four Newton persons were injured Monday afternoon when a touring car in which they were riding struck a Boston & Worcester trolley car at the corner of Worcester and Oakland streets.

The front of the automobile, owned by Frank T. Knight of 971 Boylston street, Newton Highlands, was demolished. The chauffeur, Dennis Horrigan of 839 Boylston street, drove the car out of Oakland street into Worcester.

He saw the trolley coming down the hill, and attempted to swing out of the way, but did not have time. The fender of the car was crumpled.

All of the occupants were thrown out. The wife Mrs. E. T. Knight, her mother, Mrs. Mary Kissell; her daughter, Miss Geraldine, aged 9, and Miss Anna Kolb, aged 12.

Mrs. Kissell sustained a fractured right hand; while Mrs. Knight was severely lacerated by flying glass from the wind-shield. Geraldine Knight was bruised. Horrigan probably suffered internal injuries.

WEDDING RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Edwin Fekwes, who were recently married, held their wedding reception on Saturday evening from eight to ten o'clock, at their home on Hyde street, Newton Highlands. The house was attractively decorated with palms, ferns and asters in the spacious hall, palms, Killarney roses and asparagus fern in the reception room and large yellow chrysanthemums and asparagus fern in the dining room, where the table was particularly handsome with chrysanthemums and yellow candles.

Mrs. Fekwes wore her wedding gown of white satin trimmed with duchess lace and pearl parasol, and carried a bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern. Her sister, Miss Hardwick, who assisted her in receiving, was in pink satin and lace with forget-me-nots. The attendants were Mrs. Coykendal of Orange, N. J., Mrs. Ross and the Misses Morse, Hurd and Morley of Newton Highlands. The ushers were Mr. Coykendal of Orange, N. J., Mr. Cottle of New York and Mr. Morse of Newton Highlands. About 200 were present.

MIDNIGHT FIRE

The barking of two dogs at 11.30 Wednesday night awakened Stephen B. Hughes in time for the family to escape without injury from a fire at 181 Cabot street, Newtonville, that did damage amounting to several hundred dollars. The fire is said to have been caused by sparks from an open fireplace.

Mr. Hughes was awakened by the barking of the dogs and the house was then filled with smoke. He awakened his wife and children. Joseph, aged 18; Leo, aged 15; Loretta, aged 12, and Rose, aged six, and the servant, Margaret Malone, and all got to the street clad only in their night-clothes.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE — Next week is "Panama Week" at the well known South End playhouse with Rex Beach's "Ne'er do Well"; another famous book turned into a no less famous play. The discussion made it a dramatic event. Mr. Edith Cortland will be played by Miss Mary Young, with the part of the "Ne'er do Well" in the hands of Mr. William P. Carleton.

ANOTHER HISTORY VISIT

Miss Margaret Williamson, a former resident of West Newton, and whose "history visits" to England and Scotland were so much enjoyed, has just published another volume in this interesting series.

John and Betty travel thru Ireland in the new book and with Philip and Barbara as companions, and Mrs. Pitt, the intelligent mother of these English children as chaperon, they revel in the beauties of the Emerald Isle, while recalling the heroic and romantic past. True Irish wit and many a pleasing fairy tale enliven the pages. Every reader will be surprised to find how much he has learned about Ireland, past and present, while being charmingly entertained.

The book is profusely and handsomely illustrated and is appropriately bound in green cloth. It is published by Lothrop, Lee and Shepard at $1.25.

THE DeMERITTE SCHOOL

For earnestness of purpose, thorough work and the character of its pupils, is attracting the attention of thoughtful parents, who wish their sons to accomplish something definite in life, and do it in a manly way. The same careful training is given to all boys, whether preparing for college or the Mass. Institute of Technology.

THE AIM OF THE SCHOOL IS, not how many pupils, but how well they do its work of developing MEN.

State Federation

Mrs. J. W. McIntyre, president of the Newton Federation, has been elected a member of the executive board of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, to complete the term of Mrs. Charles A. Collins of Lynn, who has resigned. Mrs. Lella C. Pennock of Somerville has been chosen general federation secretary. Mrs. Frederick H. Ripley has resigned as chairman of the education department, to become chairman of the general federation education department.

A conference will be held November 13 in North Adams, December 7 in Bridgewater and Feb. 19 in Roxbury. A literature conference will be held at Jamaica Plain, December 18, and one conference on social and industrial conditions in Boston, by invitation of the Council of Jewish Women January 18. A public health conference is announced for Boston January 14.

The annual fall meeting of the federation will be held, by invitation of the Norwood Woman's Club, in that town November 4. The morning session will be devoted to reports of the biennial and "Prison Reform" will be the subject of the afternoon.

Local Announcements

The quarterly meeting of the executive board of the Newton Federation will be held on Monday, October 19, at 10:15 A. M. in the New Church parlor, Newtonville.

On October 19, the Newton Highlands Monday Club will meet with Mrs. C. S. Luitweiler of Duncklee street.

The C. L. S. C. of Newton Highlands meets at the home of Mrs. Darius Cobb of Boylston street on Monday afternoon.

On Monday, October 19, the Bright-helmstone Club meets in the club house and the program is in charge of the Home committee.

The Newtonville Woman's Guild will open its season by a reception for its three hundred and twenty members and guests, to be held at the home of Mrs. G. A. Clapp, 503 Walnut street on Tuesday, October 20th, at three o'clock. The guest of honor is Mrs. John Martin, a charter member and for twenty-five years an invaluable officer, whose eightieth birthday the Club recently honored by a gift of gold. It is hoped that all Guild members will avail themselves of Mrs. Clapp's hospitality, the new Chairman of the Social Committee, Mrs. A. E. Vose, being in charge of the arrangements.

The first regular meeting of the Guild will occur Tuesday, November 3rd, when the President, Mrs. Palmer, will give her annual address, based on the inspiration derived from her attendance as delegate to the Chicago Biennial. Special music will, as usual, be an additional feature. The year book is about completed for distribution with complete program for the year's events.

Local Happenings

The first meeting of the Bright-helmstone Club was held in the club house, Allston, Monday, October 5th. A large attendance listened to words of welcome from the president, Mrs. William Henry Mitchell. Referring to the American flag which was draped about her chair she offered this tribute: "May this flag which hangs in our midst to-day, prove a factor in restoring such peace as the world has never known." The members then sang and sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Reports from the various committees having charge of the big Country Fair held last June, showed that a sum of over $3,200 had been realized, also, that $75 had been sent to the Salem sufferers.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. McDonald have kindly offered the club, their new theatre at Allston for a "Benefit Night" in aid of District Nurse work. The club also voted to set aside $150 for this work.

The reading of "Lady Windemere's Fan" by Mrs. Christabel W. Kidder was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Music was rendered between the acts. At the close of the afternoon's program a social half hour was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served by the hospitality committee.

The club served tea this afternoon at the Pure Food Exposition now being held in Mechanics Hall.

The first meeting of the Auburndale Woman's Club was held on Tuesday afternoon, at the Congregational chapel, nearly 300 being present. The president, Mrs. Charles A. Brown opened the meeting with a few words of greeting, thanking the members for the interest and loyalty shown in the organization of the club and in the plans for the year's work. Several clauses have been formed and others will be arranged there. The registrations to warrant them. The course in parliamentary law has been completed, the basketry and needlework begin soon, also the classes in French and aesthetic dancing. These are open to all club members and to others if the classes are not full. A class in current events will be arranged within a few weeks, under the direction of Miss Rand of Lasell. After the business meeting two duets were sung by Mrs. Spaulding and Mrs. Gore, Mrs. McNutt at the piano, Mrs. Irving O. Palmer gave, in her usual charming manner, a talk on "Woman's Opportunity," with an account of the Biennial at Chicago, and told many delightful incidents relating to that great convention. At the close of the address refreshments were served under the direction of the hospitality committee assisted by about twenty of the members of the club, Mrs. George Butters, Mrs. E. Harold Ashenden and Mrs. Edward Almy presided at the tables.

Much good cheer prevailed and everyone present seemed to feel that the success of the club as a social and educational organization in Auburndale, is assured.

At the meeting of the Monday Club of Newton Highlands held on October 13 at the home of Mrs. G. W. Barker the study of South American countries was begun. Mrs. C. S. Luitweiler read the paper prepared by Mrs. E. H. Greenwood on "Venezuela," and Mrs. H. J. Fewkes treated "Ecuador." A most interesting feature of the program was the letters descriptive of life in Colombia written by Mrs. Donald D. McKay, who is living in that country, and read by her mother, Mrs. Seward W. Jones.

On Tuesday afternoon the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. studied the "Legendary History of Ireland" under the direction of Mrs. Boyd. She began with the first traditional date, B. C. 2000, mentioned the Milesians, who belong to the period beginning B. C. 1700. She told the story of Emain of Maca coming in the period from B. C. 450 to A. D. 50. With A. D. 50 begins the political growth and among the personages mentioned were King Cormac Ossian, Cocullen and Con of the Hundred Battles. Among the curiosities of the country dating from these early times are wonderful pyramids similar to those of Egypt, though on a smaller scale, and the crumiecks, huge stones weighing tons. These are found along the northern coast of Africa and up the coast of Spain and Portugal to Ireland and no where else in the world.

The first meeting of the Travel Class of the West Newton Women's Educational Club was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Sydney Sargent, Perkins street. A comprehensive paper descriptive of the land of Egypt, was given by Miss McLean. Most interesting was the story of the Nile, "The Artery of Egypt," by Mrs. Wells. Mrs. Newers gave a complete description of the inhabitants of the country and Mrs. Southwick described very fully the agriculture and vegetation, concluding with the beautiful poem, "The Rose of Fayum," by Professor Clinton Scollard.

The presidents of two of the Newton Clubs, Mrs. Mary Cushing Palmer of the Newtonville Woman's Guild, and Mrs. Laura B. Drake of the Social Science Club, contributed to the program of the opening meeting of the New Century Club of Needham, both telling of the methods of their respective clubs.

Newtonville

The annual reception of the Newtonville Woman's Guild will be held Tuesday afternoon from 3 until 5 at the residence of Mrs. George A. Clapp on Walnut street.

Mr. Edward Page of Newtonville is the guest of Captain Monteta, at the grand ball given Friday evening at the Charlestown Navy Yard for the officers of the N. S. Argentine.

Mrs. Levi Cole Wadleigh, Jr., of Newtonville avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Evelyn Wadleigh, to Mr. Barton Easby Brooke of Washington, D. C. and Boston.

Mr. Ralph Proctor and son, who have been guests during the summer season, of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Proctor of Trowbridge avenue returned Friday to their home in Baltimore, Md.

The ladies of the First Universalist Church will hold a rummage sale at 855 Washington street on October 28 and 29. Any one wishing to send contributions may notify Mrs. F. E. Proctor, Tel. 1620 Newton North.

Mrs. Harriet L. Bradshaw, the wife of Mr. Elbridge Bradshaw, for many years a resident of this village, died last Sunday at her home in Dorchester at the age of 88 years. She is survived by her husband. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the home of her nephew in charge of Mr. W. S. Adams of the Christian Science Church. The burial was in Duxbury.

West Newton

Mr. Fred C. Gammons has leased his new house on Adella avenue to Mr. Douglas Sloane of Boston.

Mrs. Charles H. Ames of Montclair, N. J. was a guest this week of Mrs. W. B. H. Dowse and Mrs. J. W. Weeks.

Mr. John A. Gardner will speak at noon on Sunday at the Congregational Church upon "The Ethical Value of Labor Organizations." A full discussion is invited.

Mrs. Otto Task Urban and daughter who have been visiting Mrs. George D. Dix of Fuller street during the summer season, return Tuesday to their home in Savannah, Georgia.

Next Friday evening, October 23rd, at 7:45 Rev. J. Edgar Park will speak at the Congregational Church upon "Nietzsche, the great Sermon exponent of the doctrine of might and the great opponent of Christianity." All are welcome.

Mr. George C. Kelley of River street died yesterday morning at the Newton Hospital from a shock suffered a week ago. He was 45 years of age and leaves his wife and two children. Funeral services will be held at St. Bernard's Church tomorrow morning, with requiem high mass at 9 o'clock.

The West Newton W. C. T. U. will meet Monday evening with Mrs. C. P. Earley, Elliot avenue off Watertown street. The Union will be addressed by Rev. Blue of the Seaman's Friend Society. Among the departments taken up by the Union and receiving much interest and help is the Work for Sailors.

There was a large attendance at the annual reception given to Rev. and Mrs. Julian C. Jaynes at the parsonage of the Unitarian Church last Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Jaynes were assisted in receiving by Mr. Charles A. Royce, chairman of the Standing Committee and Miss Royce, and music was furnished by Handley's orchestra. Mrs. A. C. Dunmore, chairman of the Hospitality Committee was in charge and the pourers were Mrs. A. Stuart Pratt, Mrs. Ellery Peabody, Mrs. David W. Wells and Mrs. Arthur G. Hosmer.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

THE DINNER ECONOMICAL.

DINNER MENU.
Cream of Carrot Soup.
Pot Roast with Brown Potatoes.
Creamed Carrots.
Combination Salad.
Apple Fritters.
Drop Cakes.

POT ROAST may be made with one of the cheaper cuts of meat and allows the housewife to economize now that meat is so high.

Cream of Carrot Soup.—Take two cupsful cut carrots, three cupsful milk, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful finely cut onion, one tablespoonful flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-fourth teaspoonful white pepper and one tablespoonful chopped parsley. Wash, scrape and cut the carrots, cover with boiling water, add one-half teaspoonful salt and boil thirty or forty minutes, or until tender. Drain and mash. Put two cupsful milk and one cupful stock (in which the carrots were cooked) on top of double boiler. As soon as it boils add the carrots. Put the butter and onion in frying pan, cook one minute, then add the flour and one cupful milk slowly. Stir until smooth and creamy, then add to the milk. Add the salt and pepper; strain and add the chopped parsley.

Made With Chuck.
Pot Roast Beef With Brown Potatoes.—Take a one and one-half pound chuck roast and wipe with wet cloth, put into iron boiler or Dutch oven and sear on both sides. If you do not have an iron boiler or Dutch oven sear in frying pan. When seared put into boiler and add one onion, cut small; one tablespoonful salt, one-fourth teaspoonful white pepper and two cupsful boiling water. Boil one and one-half hours; then add one quart potatoes, which have been washed and pared. Boil twenty minutes, or until the potatoes are done, adding water as it is needed. You must have two cupsful of gravy by the time it is done. Mix one tablespoonful flour with cold water and add to the gravy; then add one tablespoonful caramel.

Apples Are Cheap.
Apple Fritters.—Take one cupful flour, one teaspoonful baking powder, a little salt and yolks of two eggs, beaten light, with cupful of milk. Grate in three medium sized apples, beat well and fold in stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and fry until nicely browned. Drain on brown paper and serve with maple syrup.

Drop Cakes.—Take one egg, beat the white separately, add one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter or lard, two cupsful of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat the butter and sugar to a cream. Bake in small pans.

VEGETABLE OMELETS.
FANCY omelets are no more difficult to make than plain ones. Almost any fruits or vegetables may be used in varying them. Some excellent recipes for the omelets are the following:

Served With Tomatoes.
Omelet With Tomato Sauce.—Take four eggs and beat until light and foamy. Then add two-thirds of a cupful of milk into which has been mixed a teaspoonful of flour, a third of a teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Beat all together well and cook in a buttered frying pan in a hot oven.

Potato Omelet.—Take six eggs, two ripe tomatoes, three ounces of butter, a piece of shallot and seasoning of salt and pepper. Skin the tomatoes and cut into small pieces. Add the shallot, chopped fine. Separate the eggs and beat both yolks and whites up light. Mix the tomato, shallot, salt and pepper with the yolks. Put the butter into the frying pan and make quite hot; then stir the whipped whites carefully into the yolks and turn the mixture into the pan and cook, stirring all the time.

Use For Cold Vegetables.
Potato Omelet.—Take a cupful of mashed potatoes, three eggs, with yolks and whites beaten separately, a scant teaspoonful of salt, a dash of white pepper, half a cupful of sweet milk and a heaping teaspoonful of flour. Heat and grease a large saucepan or frying pan and pour the mixture into it. Keep on top of stove at moderate heat till set and browned on the under side. Then set on the rack in the oven to brown on top.

Asparagus Omelet.—Break the yolks and whites of four eggs into separate dishes, beat the yolks till thick, add four tablespoonfuls of milk and salt and pepper. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Melt a little butter in an omelet pan, and when it is hot turn in the eggs. Brown well and then set in the oven one minute. Have asparagus tips cooked and seasoned. Spread on the omelet, fold the latter and turn on a hot platter and garnish with parsley.

UNITARIAN CLUB

Owing to illness Rev. Albert Lazenby was unable to be present at the meeting of the Unitarian Club last evening. Rev. Charles W. Wendte, D. D., in his discussion of "Germany and the War" gave a careful and appreciative delineation of the German character, and a wonderful analysis of Germany's contribution to the world's culture. He described its remarkable development geographically, politically and industrially, which has gone on within his own lifetime. He is himself of German parentage and has some twenty-one relatives now serving in the German army.

NEEDS BOOKS

The West Newton Music School is in great need of books and magazines for use in the library, which is being made a social center for pupils of the School, with attendants always in charge. Such contributions may be sent to the Headquarters at Police School, Chestnut street, West Newton, on Thursday afternoons or on Saturday mornings. The Music School is open to pupils from any part of Newton.

"COFFEE WEEK"

Some Interesting Facts About Our Popular National Beverage

For the purpose of informing the people of the country of the growth and importance of the coffee industry, the National Coffee Roasters Association have suggested that next week be known as Coffee Week and as much information as possible be given the public in the way of making coffee a purer, healthier and more enjoyable drink than ever before.

Some idea of the consumption of coffee in the country can be gathered from the figures in the U. S. department of Commerce, showing that the increase has been from 2.98 pounds per capita in 1880 to 10 pounds per capita in 1914.

The following facts regarding coffee may be of interest:

Coffee, or "Gift of Heaven," as the wise men of the East declare it, is of the botanical strain of "Rubiaceae," a family of beautiful and useful fruits, flowers and shrubs. The lovely gardenia is a member of the same family, fragrances and beauties of form and color, as well as practical human benefit, are the treasures which this family of many graces bestows upon man.

The coffee tree or shrub grows from seed into a small plant, which is transplanted, developing into a bush or tree from about seven to sixteen feet high, and producing a crop in about four or five years from the planting of the seed.

The leaves resemble laurel in form, and the beautiful starlike blossoms suggestive of jasmine, fill the air with fragrance in alluring promise of the fruit to come. Almost like "snow-flakes in the sun" the blossoms disappear a few days. Then follow clusters of green cherries which color bright red as they ripen and become bouquets of ripe fruit in about six months from the time of flowering. The cherries each contain two berries or "coffee beans," and shrivel and dry as the time for picking approaches.

The functions of the whole coffee roaster are among the most vital of coffee processes.

It is in the roaster's offices that coffee is put on trial for its ultimate value—drinking quality.

Previously judged in the green "by appearances," here, on the revolving round tables, it passes through the "fire and water" judgment of critical cup testers for its merit in beverage form for the consumer's table—its final testing.

In the roasting process the berries swell up by the liberation of gases within their substance. The aromatic oils contained in the cells are sufficiently developed or "cooked," and made ready for instantaneous solution with boiling water, when the cells are thoroughly opened by grinding.

The drinking quality is largely dependent upon the experienced knowledge of the coffee roaster and his scientific methods and modern machinery, by which the coffee is not only roasted, but cleaned, milled and completely manufactured to a high point of perfection.

The true strength and flavor of roasted coffee is ground out, not boiled out. The finer coffee is ground, the more thoroughly are the cells opened, the surfaces multiplied, and the aromatic oils made ready for separation from the husks.

The finer the grind, the better and greater the yield. With pulverized coffee (fine as corn meal) the fully released aromatic oils are instantaneously soluble with boiling water.

In ground coffee the oils are standing in "open packages," escaping into the air and absorbing moisture, etc., necessitating quick use or confinement in air proof and moisture proof protection.

Correct brewing is not "cooking." It is a process of extraction of the already cooked aromatic oils from the surrounding fibrous tissue, which has no drinkable value. Boiling or stewing in water, which should be wholly discarded as dregs, and damages the flavor and purity of the liquid. Boiling coffee and water together is ruin and waste.

The aromatic oils, constituting the whole true flavor, are extracted instantly by boiling water when the cells are thoroughly opened by fine grinding. The undesirable elements, being less quickly soluble, are left in the grounds in a quick contact of water and coffee. The coarser the grind the less accessible are the oils to the water, thus the inability to get out the strength from coffee not finely enough ground.

Too long contact of water and coffee causes twang and bitterness, and the finer the grind the less the contact should be. The infusion, when brewed, is injured by being boiled or overheated. It is also damaged by being chilled, which breaks the fusion of oils and water. It should be served immediately, or kept hot, as in a double boiler.

Tests show that water under the boiling point, 212 degrees, is inefficient for coffee brewing, and does not extract the aromatic oils. Used under this temperature, it is a sure cause of weak and insipid flavor. The effort to make up this deficiency by longer contact of coffee and water, or repeated pouring through, results in no extraction of the oils, but draws out undesirable elements, such as coffee-tannin, which is soluble in water at any temperature and is governed by the time of contact.

Brewing is the final manufacturing process of coffee. All previous perfection is dependent upon it. Like food products which lose nutritive value by bad cooking, coffee loses its best values by wrong brewing. Brewed by the very simple correct methods, it is an unflatteringly clear, fragrant, taste-charming beverage, universally loved and scientifically approved.

ter, and for the intellectual benefit and pleasure of Chapter and community. As a community generally takes but little interest in entertainments of this nature, it proved very hard to sell the tickets, and many came back upon the Regent's hands. But by dint of hard, persevering house to house and hand to hand work on the part of Miss Allen and her sister, the tickets were at last sold, and the course was a success. Persistent perseverance to accomplish her ends was a striking characteristic of Fanny Allen, and it almost always won its reward.

After the history course she tried literature, Mr. Henry Clapp being engaged to speak upon Shakespeare. And she tried music, with a lecture by Louis C. Elson, for none but the very best, experts in their several lines, would satisfy her ambitions for her Chapter.

For addresses at Chapter meetings, she secured such leaders of thought as Edwin D. Mead and Julia Ward Howe. Never once, in planning the Chapter work, did she lose sight of the special mission and objects of the D. A. R.

As to the projection of the Chapter's influence into the future, a plan that lay very near her heart was work among boys and girls for their social uplift, as the coming citizens. Years before the Playground Associations were organized, she was anxious to have a public playground in West Newton, to keep the children off the streets, and to give them properly supervised play. She hoped to have her Chapter inaugurate both of these works. When she realized that the work would have to be done on a scale far beyond the Chapter's resources, though it might be glad to do it if it could, she turned to various influential persons in the city, and in every right way, constantly used her influence, and kept stirring the matter up, and keeping interest alive, to have the social services undertaken. So it is largely due to her advocacy that both these things are in successful operation today, a playground and clubs for boys and girls. It was a pleasure to her to see the old ball-field of her father's school, at the corner of Elm and Webster streets, in use, as it now is, for such a playground.

It is idle for me to attempt to express to you, who also knew and loved her, what she was;—beautiful, refined, graceful, intellectual, devoting all her talents and energies to the best things of life. Shall we ever forget that day in May, 1905, when, at the close of her nine years of regency, the Chapter paid her the most beautiful tribute of affection it could devise, by the charming luncheon at the Brae-Burn club, with the spoken and unspoken words of appreciation of her long, useful and self-sacrificing service;—a crowning tribute to her work and her worth. And when she no longer held official position, she continued to be a cherished adviser, and also a loyal worker in the ranks. She was a natural leader, but she had that rare quality in such a leader, of being willing also to be led, and was ever most modest as to her abilities.

She was true to the high traditions of her family;—service for home, for church, for community. Treasuring the lessons of the past, she actively lived in the present, and ever looked toward the future, to be created by the ideals, actively lived, of the Past and the Present.

She would approve a recent sentiment of a French writer (M. Emile Faguet, in the preface to M. Gaston Riou's Aux Ecoutes de la France qui Vient) "Above all, be good citizens. The good citizen is first of all a traditionalist, for the surest way to destroy one's Country (La Patrie) is to cut the communications between the present generation and the preceding generations;—a Country being the succession of generations and the continuity of their sentiments and their thoughts. To put it in a single word, a Country is a Past."

That is the true message of the Deputies of the American Revolution to the times. Conservation of the Past, to make us good citizens in the Present, inspired to pass on the highest ideals for the forward march of the Future, from generation to generation.

Finally, as to our dear friend, passed on before, the prayer of her father is again fulfilled, as it was in that other beautiful life of service, that of her sister, Sarah Allen Cooney. "God grant that our children may become good women, who, by their lives, shall leave the world better for their having lived in it."

ARCHERY NOTES

The Fall Tournament of the Newton Archers which was held, Monday, Columbus Day, on the Newton Country playground, was the most successful which has ever been held, both in point of numbers of entries and of good scores made.

The weather was very nearly perfect for archery and the number competing taxed the capacity of the Archery Range to its limit.

One of the features of the tournament was the shooting of Mrs. B. P. Gray who is at present the lady champion of the United States. She shot 240 arrows in the various events in which she contested and only missed thirteen of this number. All of the other 227 arrows being placed in the target.

In the morning the long distance rounds were shot, these being the York Round for the men and the National Round for the women. The afternoon was devoted to the short distance rounds, these being the American Round and gentlemen's Team Round for the men and the Columbia Round and ladies' team round for the ladies.

NEW BUILDING REGULATIONS

Aldermen Want More Consideration Given To Two Important Amendments To Building Code

There were quite a number of interesting features at the meeting of the aldermen on Monday evening, some of which were rather informal in character. President Blakemore was in the chair and Aldermen Pratt, Jamieson, Webb and Malcolm were absent. No one appeared at the hearings on the keeping of gasoline by Charles Gardner of Highland avenue, Newton, and George Walker of Montvale road, Newton Centre, and they were both granted. Alderman Murphy who fathered the opposition for curbing on Adams street was the first speaker when the hearing on that subject was announced and said he advised people in favor of the project not to appear. No person had studied the matter and would cover the entire subject. That person could not be present that evening and Mr. Murphy spoke in his place. He said that Adams street was in great need of resurfacing and had been recommended three years ago by the Street Commissioner, and Mr. Murphy believed the work stood some prospect of being done next year. The sidewalk should be fixed first, for in some places it was level with the street. It would be a waste of money. Mr. Murphy's opinion, to build the sidewalk grade level with loam borders, for rain and children would kill grass within 24 hours. The street is a main thoroughfare between Washington and Waterdown streets, with 3000 people attending the Church at the corner each Sunday and frequently during the week, and 1000 children attending the school located on Adams street. Mr. Murphy suggested that the city had saved from $30,000 to $40,000 each year for the past 15 years by reason of this school and that should be a consideration in giving the district a good sidewalk to use. The cost of a concrete curb was about 70 cents per foot and granite about $1.25. Dr. L. J. Maskill spoke in opposition saying his estate had 400 feet frontage and the assessment would be considerable. He suggested that just now as hardy a good time to levy additional burdens on the tax-payers, and asked that the matter be postponed. Mr. Thomas Maguire appeared for a widowed sister and said that she now paid about half her income for taxes and the proposed improvement could be of no benefit to her. The hearing was then closed. Mayor Childs sent in the reappointment of Mr. George R. Pulsifer as a member of the Board of Appeals for three years, and communications from the Street Commissioner for money for resurfacing of Waterdown street and Beacon street from Ward et al relative to interest on sewer assessments on Ward street, from the Water Commissioner relative to purchase of an automobile, from Pitt F. Drew in regard to court costs of $35.49 and from M. Rumery to lease part of Jackson school building for $25. per month. The Street Commissioner reported the completion of Hobart road at a cost of $864.98 and of Monadnock road, at a cost of $1,071.98. Betterments assessed on George E. Gerrio and Paul Champagne on Faxon street and on A. B. Potter on Aberdeen street were apportioned, the auction license of Edward M. Rumery was renewed and the Telephone Co. granted attachments on Lake avenue. Petitions were also received from the Edison Co. for attachments on Lake avenue, from the Telephone Co. for attachments on Jackson street, Washington street, Churchill avenue, and Eddy street, A. H. Waitt for laying out of Blackstone terrace, Masten Wells, the National Fireworks Co., and J. B. Van Doren for permission to manufacture fireworks, and notice was received from Helen A. Freeman and Kate E. Harrison that award for land damages on Grove street was not accepted. Alderman Bartlett wanted to know why the License committee would not favor taxi cab licenses to Fred MacIsaac and Emmanuel DeFazio and Alderman Rice said that the present service at Newtonville was satisfactory and the committee did not favor granting any additional licenses there. Alderman Bartlett said he had not been able to get service when he had used the Newtonville station and demanded what right the board had to create a monopoly in this business. Alderman Cabot said that the Newtonville carriage service was satisfactory as could be expected in a suburban village and said that on many days the proprietor did not make expenses. The present licensee had, at the request of his patrons, bought out two formerly competing concerns and the present petitions were evidently intended to work the same game again. Mr. Cabot said there was not business enough for more than one concern. The board then gave these petitions leave to withdraw and took the same action on petition of the Telephone Co. for poles on Cross street. On recommendation of committees licenses were granted to J. V. Green for an intelligence office at Newton, Fred Barbat for pool tables on Adams street, attachments were granted the Edison Co. on Eddy street and Bowden street, the Telephone Co. was granted attachments on Waldorf road, poles on Wiswall street and permission to remove poles on Washington street, Newton. The Edison Co. and the Mid-dlesex & Boston Co. were granted joint poles on Elliot street. Leave to withdraw on abatement of sewer assessment on Rockledge road desired by A. T. Robinson, to E. H. Alexander for abatement, street sprinkling assessment on Greenough street and to T. W. White for laying out of Bacon place. It was deemed inexpedient to sell the land where the old armory now stands but the mayor was authorized to dispose of the building. A hearing was assigned on November 2 on the widening of a part of Rowe street. A sewer was ordered laid in Washington street near the Woodland Park hotel. The mayor and Aldermen Early, Alley and Barker were appointed a committee to confer with other officials in regard to a new bridge over Charles river near Norumbega park. $18,768.15 was granted for city expenses in November, $78.19 authorized to pay a pension to Timothy Meade, $1553 was transferred for resurfacing of Waterdown street, Newtonville and $1200 for Beacon street, Waban, the claim of Mrs. Annie B. Collette on account of Waban Hill road was settled by accepting one half of the betterment assessed, and $35.49 was ordered paid to Pitt F. Drew on account of court costs. A proposed ordinance requiring incombustible roof covering on all houses hereafter erected in this city was the subject of some debate before it was sent back to the Rules committee. Alderman Murphy wanted it laid over until a hearing could be given and Alderman Bemis thought it too radical a change to take effect at once, as it would work a hardship on persons who were contemplating building and who could not afford a more expensive roof than shingles. He introduced an amendment making December 31 the time the ordinance should take effect. Alderman Rice (Continued on Page 8)

50 YEARS OLD

Newton Methodist Church Celebrates A Half Century Anniversary

The Newton Methodist Church is observing its Fiftieth anniversary this week with meetings and services last night, tonight and next Sunday morning and evening. The celebration began last evening with an enjoyable banquet in the church parlors, at which about 275 were present. Rev. Dr. Dillon Bronson, superintendent of the Boston district, and a former pastor, presided and many reminiscences of the church history were given by Rev. Dr. A. A. Wright, Rev. Dr. J. M. Leonard, Rev. Fayette Nichols, Rev. Dr. George S. Butters and Rev. J. Edwin Lacombe, all former pastors of the church. There were addresses by Mayor Edwin O. Childs, Rev. Dr. Charles F. Rice and Rev. George H. Parkinson of the Newton Centre Branch. Mrs. J. Wesley Barber gave an historical address which will be printed in full next week. Enjoyable music was furnished during the evening by the church orchestra under the direction of Mr. Charles G. Whitcomb and there was a cornet solo by Mr. Arthur Whitcomb. This evening there will be a Communion service, the sermon being preached by a former pastor, Rev. George S. Butters, D. D., of Auburn-dale, with prayer by another former pastor, Rev. Fayette Nichols and a contralto solo by Mrs. Bertha Carter Flinn. The anniversary service will take place Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock the sermon being given by Bishop John W. Hamilton, D. D., LL.D., the prayer by Rev. William E. Huntington, D. D., LL.D., and the Scripture lesson by Rev. Arthur A. Wright, D. D., both of whom were former pastors of the church. The church quartet will be assisted by Miss Florence Ferguson, violin, and Mrs. Gladys Barber Walley, pianist. In the evening at 7.30 o'clock there will be a Fellowship service in which Rev. George H. Parkinson of the Newton Centre Methodist Church, Rev. Laurens MacLure, rector of Grace Church, Rev. H. Grant Person, of Elliot Church, and Mr. Allan C. Emery and Mr. H. W. Bascom, president and secretary of the Newton Y. M. C. A., will take part. Mr. Walter Kidder, baritone, will be the soloist. The committee in charge of the celebration consists of Hon. A. R. Weed, Miss Eva B. Warren, Messrs. Wm. H. Bliss, George W. Barber, Henry J. Woods and Rev. G. Charles Gray, the pastor.

NEWTON MAN HONORED

Mr. Albert Farwell Bemis of Old Orchard road, Chestnut Hill, has been elected a life member of the Corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to succeed the late Governor Eben S. Draper. Mr. Bemis is now serving his fourth year as an alderman of this city. He is past president of the M. I. T. Alumni Association and a trustee of Colorado College. He has been a member of the First Corps of Cadets and in the management of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. He has always been greatly interested in Tech and has been very active in the establishment of the summer engineering camp at East Machias, and is in fact a member of the committee which secured and developed the location.

NEW GARAGE LAW

Many Restrictions Placed On Automobile Owners

Public garages must be of fireproof construction inside and outside. Second, third and fourth class garages shall be outside fire limits. Private garages must have concrete floor, be located 20 feet from nearest building or 50 feet from any building more than three stories high. No building may be converted into a garage unless of fireproof construction. No building may be used for housing automobiles and horses unless provided with non-connecting fire-proof walls and provided with separate exits. Automatic sprinklers may be ordered in such a building. Garages may be heated by steam or hot water only. Heating plant to be separate from garage. Garages may be lighted by electricity only. Sand buckets, fire pails and scoops must be installed in each garage. Chemical fire extinguisher required in every garage. Unless radical changes are made in the new garage regulations in charge of the state police, Newton, as well as the cities and towns all over the state having motor fire apparatus or other automobile apparatus as well as scores of individuals who own either private or public garages, will find themselves placed at heavy expense to obey the law and escape the heavy fine imposed on violators. These regulations have been placed in charge of the chief of the fire department to enforce, he acting as agent for the district police. All of the regulations passed by the fire hazard commission are already effective excepting Chapter 4, which is one of the most important and which was to have become effective October 1st. It is now understood, however, that Commissioner O'Keefe, who has supervision over the provisions of the law, will give a hearing on the proposed matter sometime this month. It is understood that the law as adopted will not be altered excepting in some minor details, so that, as it stands, the present law is in force. The law is especially aimed at preventing people living in the same building where automobiles are housed excepting under the most stringent rules. As firemen are housed in the various fire stations, these will have to undergo alterations that will result in an expenditure of thousands of dollars to the city. Under the new law any building in which a motor vehicle is kept is a garage excepting in cases where the part of the building where such vehicle is kept shall be separated from the rest of the building by unpierced fire-proof walls and ceilings, with all metal construction or wood covered with metal and with wireglass windows. With such stringent regulations regarding the use of buildings containing motor vehicles, horses and people, the expense to the fire department to conform with the law will be seen. The fire stations must be equipped with (Continued on Page 5.)

THE MOTHERS REST

Interesting Report of Its Work During the Past Season

The annual meeting of the Mother's Rest Association was held last week Thursday afternoon in the chapel of the Unitarian Church, Newton Centre. Interesting reports were received from the various committees and from the matron. 126 mothers and 160 children have been entertained at the Rest the past season. Rev. James T. Carlyon of the Upper Falls Methodist Church sang several solos which were much enjoyed. These officers were elected: president, Mrs. Everett D. Burr; first vice-president, Mrs. Samuel Ward; second vice-president, Mrs. C. M. Goddard; secretary, Mrs. H. H. Kendall; treasurer, Mrs. F. S. Risteen; auditor, Mrs. William E. Shedd; directors, Mrs. C. T. Bartlett, Mrs. E. R. Benton, Mrs. S. P. Meineny, Miss Rodith Gammons, Mrs. W. H. Breed, Mrs. L. R. Spore. The report of the matron is given below in full.— Thinking of the past season's work, we seem to see a long procession of one hundred and twenty-six (126) women, and one hundred and sixty (160) children who have been guests at the "Rest" this summer; white and colored, Catholic and Protestant, each with their own personality, no two with the same ideas or aims; some lame, some stunted, others thin, most of them pale and sorrow from living in shut-in city tenements where very little sunshine or fresh air could ever come. It is really wonderful what a change two weeks, mostly out of doors, with plenty of good food, and fresh air and clean rooms will make in the appearance of those who come. Even the conductors on the railroad trains notice the difference. One mother told me her six months' old baby had only been out of doors four times in his life. As she lived on the fourth floor of a block and had five other children she could not get time to go out with him. We were obliged to have an extra shade over his carriage for some days as the light and sun troubled his eyes, but after that how he did grow and enjoy himself! Some of this procession had been our guests in other years and knew to what grand things they were coming but others had no idea what the Rest was like or was meant to be. We have adopted the plan of telling each party, as they gathered in the Recreation Room, how the "Rest" came into being, by whom it is now supported, and the expense of a season's work. We have found the guests appreciate what is done for them much more than before they knew these facts. We try to teach a spirit of helpfulness to one another and have been much pleased to see how quickly it was practised by most of the mothers. The different nationalities (of which there have been twelve) have lived together in harmony for the most part. The Sunday services and evening prayer have been enjoyed, and a source of help to some tired and sick in soul, as well as body. (Continued on Page 4.)

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Moore Receive Many Congratulations On their 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Moore celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday afternoon and evening at their residence on Oakleigh road, Newton and were greeted and congratulated by several hundred of their many friends and neighbors who had received the following unique invitation in a fac simile of Mr. Moore's writing.— Dear friends, as you these lines peruse Take heed thereof and note the news On this October, nineteenth day, We wish to see you come our way. From four to six or eight to ten, We hope to meet you in our den. The special reason for this date Is this, which I will now relate. The years are fifty since we stood And told each other we'd be good. So after all our lengthened way We've reached our Golden Wedding Day. We want to meet our loyal friends And thank the Lord for all He sends. Please bring no presents, but your love; 'Tis that we prize all else above. So come—our latch-string hangs outside And greet the Golden Wedding bride. Mr. and Mrs. Moore received informally and were assisted by their sons and daughters, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. S. Wallace Moore, and by Mrs. Moore's sister, Miss Harriet Goulding, Mrs. Charlotte French, Mrs. George F. Hickmott, Mrs. Fred N. March and Mrs. E. O. Schermerhorn poured. Mr. and Mrs. Moore received many beautiful flowers and the members of the Immanuel Baptist Church presented them with a handsome hall clock. One of the interesting incidents of their anniversary was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Moore at the Sunday School service of Immanuel Church on Sunday, of fifty yellow chrysanthemums by fifty children of the primary department, who formed in line, with four of Mr. Moore's grandchildren at the head, each child giving them a flower as they passed before them. Mr. and Mrs. Moore were married in Natick and lived for some time in South Sudbury, removing to Newton 36 years ago. They have two sons and three daughters living, Mr. Leslie R. Moore of Concord, Mr. Clarence V. Moore of Newton, Mrs. Arthur J. Ball of Bloomfield, N. J., Mrs. Leslie H. Naylor of Newton and Miss Edith H. Moore, professor of Art at Mt. Holyoke College. There are nine grandchildren. Mr. Moore is president of the Leatherold Manufacturing Co. and treasurer of the National Fibre Board Co. Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore are deeply interested in the Immanuel Baptist Church, where Mr. Moore has been a deacon for many years and where he served as superintendent of the Sunday School for a long period. Mr. Moore founded the Massachusetts Baptist Sunday School Association about 25 years ago and has served continuously as its president. He was also a founder of the Baptist Social Union and is interested in many charitable organizations. Mr. Moore has written several volumes of poems and has been a frequent contributor to religious papers and magazines.

FACTS TO REMEMBER

Four facts to remember about the special deficit tax of $100,000,000 the Democratic Congress is about to levy on us: 1. The falling off in revenues is not due to the reason given by the Democrats for levying the tax—the war in Europe—but to the failure of the Underwood tariff law to produce income. 2. The extravagance of the Democratic Congress has plunged the country into an expense that cannot be paid unless special measures are taken. 3. President Wilson has never suggested to Congress the necessity of economy in the expenditure of the people's money. 4. There has been no systematic attempt on the part of either Congress or the Administration to observe an economy which would have made the deficit tax unnecessary.

CITY HALL

Alderman Barker, Street Commissioner Stuart, City Engineer Rogers and City Clerk Grant represented the city in the perambulation of the Newton-Waltham boundary line yesterday morning. Public Buildings Commissioner Forbush states that his office has issued 302 building permits to date, with an estimated cost of $1,038,873, of which 171 were for dwellings to cost $998,403. There were 88 garages authorized to cost $32,455. In the quality and price of our Hot Water Bottles and that last one you bought elsewhere. Let Us Prove It. Our $2.00 guaranteed Maximum is a winner. F. A. Hubbard, Pharmacist 425 Centre St. NEWTON

EDITORIAL

During the next week each voter will receive from the City Clerk a circular in regard to the four referendums which will be on the state ballot on November 2, and earnest and thoughtful consideration should be given each of them.

The first instructing our Representatives to support the initiative and referendum should be emphatically rejected on the ground that it is not at all necessary with our present wide open system of handling legislation. When any citizen can present a petition to the Legislature on any conceivable subject and be granted a hearing on the same, no reason can possibly exist for placing initiatory legislation on the ballot for ill-considered action by all the people. The mere fact that there are four referendums on the state ballot, this fall, is conclusive proof that compulsory referendum legislation is unnecessary.

The second and third matters are both labor propositions and will undoubtedly be blindly accepted by the unthinking voter. The act relative to two weeks' vacation of all city laborers is a fine example of half baked legislation. It provides for a vacation for laborers "regularly employed for more than one year." With 90 per cent of all city labor dependent on the weather conditions, the amount of work on hand and the limit of cost fixed by appropriations, it will take all the lawyers in the Commonwealth to determine just whom would be qualified to receive this gratuity from the taxpayers. It could probably be settled by giving a vacation to every person who ever worked for the city, a day or a week. The expense to Newton on this theory would amount to ten or twelve thousand dollars.

The Saturday half holiday for all laborers engaged on work for the Commonwealth is only an indirect tax to the people of this city, altho it is certain to increase the cost of all work done by the state and thereby affect the state tax, already too high.

The most important referendum, however, is that which would abolish party enrollment at primary elections. Here, again, there is undoubtedly a strong popular sentiment in favor of this remarkable proposition to allow persons, who ordinarily vote for candidates of one party to use their votes at the primary to help nominate candidates of the opposition. The measure should be entitled "An act to allow a majority party to dictate the candidates of opposing parties and to ensure to themselves permanent possession of the government."

The proposed ordinances requiring the use of incombustible roof materials on all new houses hereafter erected or undergoing substantial repairs in this city and that requiring a greater amount of space between wooden buildings, are both in the line of better fire protection and should be approved in a general fashion.

The requirement regarding roofing material will probably cause the greater hardship, particularly to those who are trying to erect a home for themselves on a limited income, and in this respect the suggestion of Alderman Bemis to have the proposed changes take effect at some future date is in the right direction.

This country is far behind foreign nations in regard to fire prevention and the figures as published by the fire insurance companies are a standing disgrace to Americans. Let us hope that the proposed changes in our Building Code will be a long step in correcting the evil.

Boston Transcript
Saturday, Oct. 24, 1914

It is a trifle singular that while a successor to President Weston, who changed his residence from ward 7 to ward 3, while a member of the board of aldermen, was elected by the people at the regular city election, legal objections have been raised to acting in a similar fashion, when President Blakemore creates a similar situation in moving from ward 1 to ward 7. As the same provisions of the city charter existed five years ago as at present, either the election of Alderman Barker was illegal, five years ago, or the present ruling is altogether too narrow. The city charter was amended some ten years ago to relieve the city from the expense of a special election when the became necessary. The coming vacancy has been known for some months and with a distinct provision that the board of aldermen is the sole judge of the election and qualification of its members, it would seem as if the board should have provided for filling the vacancy, without apparently straining at the gnat the legal profession are placing in the path of such a sensible course.

The city is distinctly honored by the selection of Alderman Albert F. Bemis of Chestnut hill by the Corporation of the M. I. T. as a life member to succeed so distinguished a gentleman as the late Governor Draper.

Congratulations to Water Commissioner Whitney, who is the first city official to recognize the wishes of the board of aldermen in the use of a cheaper grade of automobiles.

Let us hope that the seeming apathy towards our state politics is but the calm, dispassionate sizing up of the entire situation by the great army of voters.

WHY THE NEW TAX?

Since the United States is not engaged in war the American people will scrutinize closely the war taxes which are about to be imposed by Congress. There is no chance that the taxes will be approved by the people in a cloud of patriotism. Marching troops will not distract the attention of the voters. Bands will not be present to drown the protests of those who are pinched by the taxes.

The people will want to know why they are being taxed. They will want to know whether such taxes are necessary, and whether they might not have been avoided by the practice of a little economy since the Democratic party came into power.

If there were any real issues which influenced the election of the Democrats, aside from the war taxes, there is no chance that the taxes will be approved by the people in a cloud of patriotism. Marching troops will not distract the attention of the voters. Bands will not be present to drown the protests of those who are pinched by the taxes.

The tariff for revenue only has proved a failure from a revenue-producing standpoint. Before the war began, imports had increased amazingly, but the revenue had fallen off.

If the new tariff cannot be defended as a revenue producer, its acceptance by any portion of the public is doubtful. Certainly it cannot be shown to have reduced the cost of living. Its effect on business and employment is already an issue in the congressional campaign.

By bringing forward a plan for war taxes, at a time when the United States is at war, the Democratic party deliberately focuses attention upon extravagance and the failure of the tariff for revenue only. It suggests an inquiry as to the reason why economics have not been practiced, and why the tariff for revenue only has not produced the revenue.

Many of these issues might have been overlooked by the public if they had been left as abstract problems, but with a large proportion of the public feeling the pinch in the pocket-book some original thinking will be done at the polls.—Washington Post.

POOR "JOE" WALKER

The Republican newspaper writers are "rubbing it into" the aesthetic "Joe" Walker, and why shouldn't they. As a writer in Truth says:

"Poor Joe Walker! How his chickens are coming home to roost! Two short years ago Sam McCall was the apple of the eye of the public. Today the same Sam is unregenerate reactionary. Two years ago Joe was the Republican candidate for Governor against Bird, the Progressive candidate. Now they are in the Progressive nest together, and each must go out and tell the voters that what he said about his opponent in the campaign of 1912 was pure political buncombe and not to be considered in the light of subsequent events!

"If Joe Walker wants people to think he's in earnest when he says the Progressives are going to be first in Massachusetts this year, he had better have a heart to heart talk with his running mate on the ticket. Mr. Alameda says Democratic victory this year is inevitable, because the Progressives are going to split the Republican vote. A little more teamwork, please.

Voters this year can get their best campaign arguments right at home. Are wages higher? Are times better? Are money conditions easier? Is the cost of living lower? Are bankers more ready to lend money?

These are questions that can be answered without the assistance of campaign orators, or campaign text-books. The voter has only to ask himself and some of his friends these questions and others like them and then decide for himself whether he is going to vote to continue the conditions which now surround him.

CITY PRIMARY NOMINATION PAPERS

Notice is hereby given that nomination papers of candidates at City Primaries on Nov. 17th must be filed with the Registrars of Voters on or before 5 o'clock, P. M., Saturday October 31st.

Where Beans Are Valuable.

Great interest is shown by the natives of Manchuria in the crops of the common soy, or soy bean. Mr. Clarence Poe, the author of "Where Half the World is Waking Up," says:

"Bankers, merchants, farmers, even the ladies one meets in drawing rooms in the foreign concessions, not only 'know beans,' but can talk beans too. If the present rate of progress is maintained it will not be long until no one will enumerate the world's great crops—wheat, corn, rice, cotton, etc.—without including beans. In a very great measure the beans have the same properties as cotton seed, for an oil is extracted that is used for much the same purposes as cottonseed oil, and the residue, called 'bean cake,' is about the equivalent of cottonseed meal. My first acquaintance with the bean cake was in Japan, where I found it enriching the earth for vegetable growing. Japan imports an average of half a million tons a year to put under its crops. Manchuria also uses not a little for the same purpose."

Colors and Moods.

People to whom certain colors represent sounds or emotions have long been laughed at, but scientific work on the sun's rays is proving them to have justification for their theories.

Red, it appears, is the most exciting and stimulating of all colors and has a special effect on the activity of the brain. Blue, which so many people in an age of great nervous strain and tension find soothing, is so in reality. Unless you are in a depressed and melancholy state sea blue curtains at your bedroom windows have a beneficial effect, especially if you face south and get the morning sun.

Color indeed, especially in flowers, has an extraordinary effect on the mental condition. The sight of crimson, pink and amethyst rhododendrons growing in the open air has a curiously uplifting and joyous effect.—New York Sun.

A Day Will Come.

A day will come when the only battlefield will be the market open to commerce and the mind opening to new ideas. A day will come when bullets and bombshells will be replaced by votes, by the universal suffrage of nations, by the venerable arbitration of a great sovereign senate, which will be to Europe what the parliament is to England, what the diet is to Germany, what the legislative assembly is to France. A day will come when a cannon will be exhibited in public museums, just as an instrument of torture is now, and people will be astonished how such a thing could have been. A day will come when these two immense groups, the United States of America and the United States of Europe, shall be seen placed in presence of each other, extending the hand of fellowship across the ocean.—Victor Hugo.

A Costly Dramatic Lesson.

Probably the most prominent manager in the United States was rehearsing an actor in one of his companies at the New Amsterdam theater. The particular line which the actor was trying to speak to the satisfaction of the manager was the familiar, "I love you!" But, although he spoke it fervently again and again, the manager was not pleased.

"No, no, no," said he. "That's not right. Now say it the way I say it," and the manager, suiting the action to the word in a voice almost tremulous with sentiment, repeated, "I love you!"

"Say it like that," he said. "It cost me $1,000,000 to learn to say it like that, while I'm actually paying you $200 a week to say it. I hope you can appreciate the difference"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"A Splendid Charge."

There will be the full complement of backs broken in two, of arms twisted wholly off, of men impaled upon their bayonets, of legs smashed up like bits of firewood, of heads sliced open like apples, of other heads crunched into soft jelly by the iron hoofs of horses, of faces trampled out of all likeness to anything human. This is what skulls behind "a splendid charge."—Charles Dickens.

Balked.

"I saw her one time when she couldn't talk."

"How was that?"

"The dentist had a napkin in her mouth; also a wad of putty, a mirror, a roll of cotton and an electric drill. She couldn't talk, but she tried to."—London Telegraph.

The Brandywine River.

The Brandywine river was first named the Fishkill. Bunce says that the stream was renamed by the Dutch to commemorate the loss at its mouth of a vessel loaded with brandy. Another authority says the name was given on account of a famous distillery on its banks.—Exchange.

The Sole Factor.

"That fellow is hopeless. There is one person, and only one, who will ever have an uplifting influence on him."

"Who is that?"

"The elevator boy."—Baltimore American.

Very Kind.

"There goes a kind man. The last time I went to him I didn't have a cent, and he gave me all he could."

"What was that?"

"Thirty days."—Exchange.

It requires greater virtues to bear good fortune than bad.—Le Rochefoucauld.

CITY HALL

Mayor Childs was one of the speakers Monday evening at the dedication of the building of the Brockton Y. M. C. A.

City Clerk Grant has been elected a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts City Clerks' Association.

About fifty persons attended the public hearing given last night by the Committee on Rules on the proposed amendments to the Building Code regarding distances between wooden buildings and on the matter of incombustible roof covering.

Messrs. George H. Pulsifer and Lewis H. Bacon of the Board of Appeals spoke in favor of the restriction of ten feet from the lot line but it was vigorously opposed by Messrs. John T. Burns, Adams D. Cladin, F. B. Fletcher, ex alderman Willard S. Higgins, J. D. Harding and C. D. Burnham. Nearly every person present was opposed to the proposed restriction. The roofing ordinance on the contrary was favored by a large number.

Papers for nomination at the coming city primary must be filed by next week Saturday and there is the usual indifference to the situation. So far as surface indications go, it appears that the contest will be between Mr. Charles E. Rees, a former Progressive, while Alderman Murphy will probably have both party nominations for ward alderman. In ward 2, Alderman George F. Malcolm will be given the two year term and Alderman Cabot the one year term, reversing the present arrangement. In ward 3, Alderman Cox will retire and while Alderman Alley is at present undecided, it is hoped to persuade him to accept a renomination for the two year term. In ward 4, Alderman Early will be again a candidate for the two year term and Alderman Wagner is being urged by many residents to accept a renomination as ward alderman. In ward 5, Alderman Bartlett will run again as ward alderman, and while Alderman Richardson says he will not return, it is hoped that he will reconsider the matter. In ward 6, Alderman Clark will be renominated as ward alderman and Chestnut Hill residents are hunting for an acceptable candidate to succeed Alderman Bemis who retires after four years of valuable service. In ward 7, Alderman Barker, one of the most valuable men on the board retires and will be succeeded by Mr. Henry I. Harriman, while Alderman Jarvis will return as the ward alderman. Three vacancies will take place in the school committee. Mr. Fred W. Stone, of Ward 1 will be returned, while Mrs. Davidson of Auburndale and Mr. Mitchell Wing will retire.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Emma A. Jacobs to the Weymouth Savings Bank, dated January 5, 1911 and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, book 3575, page 273, for breach in the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction on Monday, the sixteenth day of November, 1914, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on the premises, all and singular the premises described and conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:—

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in the City of Newton, in that part called Auburndale, being lot numbered thirty (30) on a plan of houselots in Auburndale, belonging to W. W. Low and others, made by Wallace C. Stevens, Surveyor, dated March, 1895, and recorded with Middlesex South District Registry of Deeds, Plan book 92, plan 36, bounded and described as follows, viz:—Southeasterly by Auburndale avenue 68.59 feet; Southerly by a curved line, being the intersection of Washburn avenue and Auburndale avenue 29.40 feet; Southwesterly by Washburn avenue 104.26 feet; Northwesterly by lot numbered 31 on said plan 53.18 feet, and Northwesterly by lot numbered 29 on said plan 129.40 feet, and containing 8714 square feet. Being the same premises conveyed to said Emma A. Jacobs by the Melrose Co-operative Bank by deed dated Aug. 15, 1901, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, book 2913, page 42, and by a confirmatory deed from said Bank recorded book 3144, page 326, and modified by any change of street lines resulting by the taking by the City of Newton recorded with said Deeds book 3388, page 12.

And said premises are sold subject to all unpaid taxes and assessments. Terms, $100, in cash at sale and the balance within ten days thereafter.

Fallers Called Mental Defectives.

According to a Brooklyn physician, most accidents, as well as divorces and crimes, are in reality due to defective mentality. When a person gets caught in a maze of traffic and does not know whether it is better to go backward or forward he is, according to this doctor, a target for everything coming his way.

The indecision or lack of judgment leads to frequent accidents with the same individual. Of 112 persons who were questioned in four semiprivate hospitals forty-six had had previous accidents and thirty-two more than one such accident. Out of about 50,000 examinations of defectives there was scarcely a case that did not show many scars. Inquiry among eight automobile owners showed that the opinion commonly held of reckless chauffeurs among their fellows was that the reckless ones were not quite normal, or, as they phrased it, were "crazy."—New York World.

The World's Strange University.

Founded in the year 972 A. D., the Mohammedan university of El-Azhar ("The Luminous") is one of the oldest existing and strangest universities in the world.

El-Azhar is the Oxford of the Moslem world and is at present attended by upward of 10,000 students of all ages and from every eastern country from the Caucasus to Somaliland. Board and lodging is free. The teaching consists chiefly of Mohammedan dogma, which is laboriously committed to memory from sacred books.

The students squat in groups on the floor of the immense building with their boots—which have to be taken off on entering—and their daily rations beside them and accompany the droning repetition of their lessons with a rhythmic swaying of the body. Writing is done on tin slates.

Girls are allowed to attend the lectures, but only as listeners; they may not speak.

Eaten the Canary.

An Italian street peddler was making mechanical canaries warble and carol when a coal wagon lumbered by driven by an old dorky. The driver heard the song and, pursuing up his lips, imitated it perfectly. Amazed, the peddler walked across the street and regarded the old man long and hard.

"You needn't be lookin' fo' dat bird," Uncle Andy assured him, "cuz Ah's done swallowed him. Ah's done kept him down dar fo' twenty year an' Ah ain't gwine let him go now!"

And a crowd gathered, as is customary in New York.—New York Post.

The Last Word.

"By gosh," a henpecked husband said, "I hear some chaps kicking because their wives always have the last word. Now, for my part, to give my wife the last word never bothers me a bit."

"It doesn't?"

"No, on the contrary. I always feel thankful when she gets to it."—Exchange.

The Screech Owl.

The screech owl feeds on small mammals, birds, reptiles, fish, spiders, crawfish, scorpions, earthworms, grasshoppers, crickets, ground dwelling beetles and caterpillars. Screech owls should be encouraged to stay near barns and outhouses, as they will keep in check house and wood mice.

Bulgarian Wives.

The wife of a Bulgarian rarely goes out without her husband, does not receive callers in her husband's absence, seldom appears in a restaurant, a cafe or a place of public amusement and never goes to any such place unless her husband accompanies her.—London Telegraph.

Just Like a Man.

"I don't understand George," said the bride.

"How so?"

"He told me to sweeten his coffee with a smile, which I did. And then he went and put in two lumps of sugar, anyhow."—Pittsburgh Post.

Wide Awake.

Fuddle—You know Stocks, don't you? Doctor—Yes, indeed. He is now a patient of mine. Fuddle—Pretty wide awake man, isn't he? Doctor—I should say so. I'm treating him for insomnia.

Funeral services were held at the Newton Cemetery, Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. J. T. Carlyon officiating.

—Wednesday evening a very successful entertainment was given by Kennington Lodge, No. 500, Sons of St. George at the Auditorium for the benefit of the Widows, Orphans and Dependents of the British Soldiers and Sailors. The audience filled the hall to its capacity and generously applauded the various numbers on the program. The entertainment consisted of Scottish, Irish and English selections by Holmes, the Scottish Dulermeister; duets by Walter Sharples and Grant Webber; and solos by William Maxwell, and T. White of Cambridge. De Grassie's orchestra furnished selections through the evening and several reels of pictures were shown. The committee in charge, Messrs. George Jackson and Sampson Shuker, are receiving much praise for the efficient manner in which the program was rendered.

MR. SMITH DEAD

Mr. Harley A. Smith, formerly of 66 Rockland place, Upper Falls, passed away last Saturday after a lingering illness.

Mr. Smith was born in this village on September 23, 1854, and has been a life long resident.

He entered into the employ of the Moses G. Crane shop at Newton Highlands when a young man working in the cabinet making department and remained with the firm when it was taken over by the Gamewell Fire Alarm and Telegraph Co. until he retired from business a few years ago.

Mr. Smith took a great interest in the Fire Department having joined the old hand engine company Mechanic 4 and served as clerk of the company in 1877. When Hose 7 was installed in January 25, 1878 he became a member of that company and was appointed Assistant Foreman in 1879, serving in that capacity until March, 1893, when he was appointed Foreman. He resigned from the Department in November, 1895, but returned in 1899 and served as Assistant Foreman from 1910 until his resignation in May, 1913.

He was a charter member of the Quinobeguns, and a member of the Royal Arcanum and Veteran Firemen.

Mr. Smith is survived by a wife and one daughter.

Funeral services were held in the Chapel at the Newton Cemetery Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. T. Carlyon of the Methodist Church officiating. The pall bearers were Mr. Horace Covert, representing the Fire department, Mr. John Daniels, the Royal Arcanum and Mr. Fred A. Cole and Charles H. Moulton, the Gamewell Fire Alarm and Telegraph Co.

 The half hour given to games in the evening has given much pleasure and broken up the habit of living in the same dull, beaten track year after year. A Syrian woman won a picture as a prize in one of our games and she was so delighted she said she should take it to the Dennison House to show them and tell what good times she had at the Rest.

We were pleased to receive a letter from the husband of one of the women who was in our second party, thanking us for the grand time his wife and children had with us. Several sent letters of thanks after going home. The entertainments given by young ladies have been most pleasing and much enjoyed, and the clothing we have been able to give has filled a real need in many cases. There was in one party a German woman, a widow with two children to support. Just before the party left I overheard her telling another woman how hard it was for her to earn enough to provide clothes for herself and the children with her other expenses. There was a dress that had been left over from four parties before this one because it was too small for any one, and I just fitted her. "Oh," she said, "The Lord must have meant that for me. He knew how much I needed it." What a pleasure to help such a person. We have had some who were grandmothers, and some who were never mothers, but most worthy in every case. In one party all were Protestants but one, and in another all Catholic except three. In one party there were forty-nine (49) persons in the dining-room; thirty (30) of them children in high chairs. Many have been the stories of burdens, sorrows and want, that have come to our knowledge. In turn we have tried to tell the story of Him who said, "Come unto Me and I will give you rest." Sowing the seed by all waters, leaving it to the care of the "Lord of the Harvest." To the President of the Association the Chairman of the House Committee and others, I wish to express my thanks for all their kindness. Respectfully submitted,
 MRS. MYRA TAYLOR.

Antics of Volcanoes.

Some curious antics are performed by volcanoes in action. On the island of Savili, in the Samoan group of the south Pacific, a fissure opened late one day in a cocoa plantation. An eruption took place immediately, devastating the whole island. After an eruption from Mount Taal in Luzon, Philippine islands, five lakes, all of different colors, were left in the crater. Katmai, in Alaska, spread its volcanic dust around the world in less than a month. Mount Pelee thrust a rock plug through its crater nearly 2,000 feet high in a few days. The plug has since sealed until only the stump is left. Bandaisan, in Japan, blew its own head off and then belched streams of hot mud. When the island of Krakatoa, near Sumatra, was destroyed by volcanic shock the report of the explosion was heard 2,000 miles away. Cotopaxi, in Mexico, once broke loose so suddenly that the snow on its summit was scattered over the surrounding country as blocks of ice.—Kansas City Times.

A True Prodigy.

On June 27, 1725, died Christian Heineken. He was only just five, but was already famous. Within a few hours of his birth he could talk and with sense. At ten months he could talk with ease on most subjects; at twelve months he was thoroughly conversant with the Old Testament and in a month made himself equally conversant with the New. Conversant with things sacred, he turned to things secular and at thirty months could answer any ordinary question in geography and history, ancient as well as modern, a day when he was taken on a visit to the court of Denmark he conversed in Latin and French. He was then four. But nature had not balanced his prodigious mental digestion with a satisfactory bodily one, for his death at five years of age was due to a change in his food from milk to meat.—London Tatler.

Antioch.

Among the sacred cities of the east Antioch holds a high place, for it was here that the first Christian church was founded; it was, moreover, the center from which St. Paul conducted his missionary campaigns to convert the gentiles. In those days Antioch was a prosperous and thriving city, boasting of a population of half a million souls, while splendid Roman palaces and villas dotted the banks of the river Orontes, which flows through the town. Today, says the World Wide Magazine, it is a sleepy, old world place, occupying scarcely one-tenth of its ancient area, and certainly possessing none of its former glory. Nevertheless it is in many ways a delightfully quaint and picturesque eastern city, with narrow, tortuous streets, every other house in which appears to possess an architectural style of its own.

The Middle Finger.

Why is the middle finger of our hands so much longer than the little finger, and why is the thumb so stubby and short when it would be much more convenient if it were longer? One has to go way back not only centuries of time to find the answer to this "Why is it?" In the history of mankind's beginnings we find that before man saw even the dawn of civilization he used his hands as well as his feet to walk. Now if you will spread your fingers on the floor as if you were going to stand on them you will see what a good arrangement it was to have the fingers of different length; they give a well balanced support that fingers of equal length could not give. So it was to help prehistoric man and not man of the twentieth century that nature gave us fingers of varying length.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Jam, From "Jamaica."

Jam seems to take its name from Jamaica and is comparatively a modern luxury. Galt in his "Annals of the Parish" states that the fashion of jam making was introduced into Scotland about 1700, when berry bushes were planted by "some of our young men that had been sailors coming from Jamaica," and the condiment was valued in the first place chiefly as "an excellent medicine for a sore throat." A writer in Hone's "Everyday Book," in 1826, deplored the fact that jam could not be "purchased at the shops as other articles of consumption are."—London Mail.

Pretty Tranquil.

"I would like to lead a tranquil existence," said the troubled man of affairs.
 "About how tranquil?" asked his hard worked secretary.
 The other thought a moment. "Oh," he answered, "about as tranquil a life as a germ leads on a $1,000 bill."—Chicago News.

Deduction.

"Tell me what you eat, and I will tell you what you are," boasted an amateur sage.
 "Well, I ate a Welsh rabbit and a lemon pie last night."
 "You're simply a fool."—Kansas City Journal.

The Past.

"The past is dead," exclaimed the poet.
 "Not half so dead as some people would like it to be," said the philosopher.—Philadelphia Record.

Sympathy.

Juror—We acquitted him out of sympathy. Friend—For his aged mother? Juror—Oh, no; for having such a lawyer.—Exchange.

The things that never happen are often as much realities to us in their effects as those that are accomplished.

Modern Seamen.

The new ship has transformed the sailor with itself. He works among a subtle and intricate network of machinery. His brain is quickened by the effort to understand the new forces and appliances that he controls. He is drawn no longer from the lower strata of the population of our ports, but in increasing proportions from the ranks of skilled mechanics. The electricians and machinists, who are the aristocracy of the crew, bring with them the notions which prevail among the aristocracy of labor out of uniform. They possess more reading and more science than did nine out of ten of the officers in the old days. They have a respect for themselves and their class, which has revolutionized the morals and manners of the modern warship. The gradual reform of the service regulations has sought to keep pace with this transformation, and officers have been educated in a wholly new conception of their relationship to their men. The bullying and bawling which was the rule of the sea in the old days is today the rare exception. Instinct and "good form" condemn that kind of thing as severely as the regulations.—Nation.

If an Ant Were as Big as a Man.

An ant can carry a grain of corn ten times the weight of its body, while a man or horse can carry loads only about equal to its bodily weight. It is not a fact, however, that the ant is greatly superior in strength. If an ant should grow to twice its original size, still retaining its geometrical and histological structure, its volume, and accordingly the weight of its body, would increase eightfold. Although the muscles grow to twice their original dimensions, the increase in length does not increase the strength, which is proportional to their cross section, and the ant would only be four times as strong as before. As it now carries but five times its weight, however, it is relatively only half as strong. It is calculated that the same ant developed to the size of a man would only be able to carry one one-hundredth of its own weight.

Thrashing Wheat in Cyprus.

The ancient Roman tribulum, as used for thrashing, may still be seen in the island of Cyprus. It is a board about six feet long and two feet wide, studded with sharp edged flakes of flint. In use it is dragged by oxen or donkeys over the corn spread out on the hard earthen thrashing floor, separating the grain and at the same time bruising and chopping up the straw. Thrashing time is enjoyed alike by children and animals, the former riding on the primitive implement and the latter gorging themselves with a hearty meal, for in Cyprus the Biblical command, "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn," is still faithfully observed. Although the government offers to thrash by machine at nominal cost, the conservative Cypriote prefers the old method. He says that the animals will not eat machine chaffed straw, and straw they must eat, for there is no hay in Cyprus.—Wide World Magazine.

First Fiction Known.

The "Tale of Two Brothers," written 3,200 years ago by the Theban scribe Ennann, librarian of the palace to King Merenptah, the supposed Pharaoh of the Exodus, is the oldest work of fiction extant.

The tale was written apparently for the entertainment of the crown prince, who subsequently reigned as Seti II. His name appears in two places on the manuscript, probably the only surviving autograph signatures of an Egyptian king.

This piece of antique fiction, written on nineteen sheets of papyrus in a bold hieratic hand, was purchased in Italy by Mme. d'Orbigny, who sold it in 1857 to the authorities of the British museum, where it is now known as the D'Orbigny papyrus.

The Master's Voice.

"We have come," said the chairman of the committee, "to ask you to take this nomination. The city needs a man like you—strong, brave, self made, self reliant, owning no master, fearing no man."

The great man was visibly touched. "I'll not deny," said he, "that your kind words have shaken my resolution. I trust that, if elected, I may justify your confidence and prove that I am indeed strong, brave, self reliant; that I own no master and fear no man. Suppose you wait a minute till I see if my wife will let me accept?"—New York Times.

Coarse and Fine.

The finer the nature the more flaws will it show through the clearness of it. The best things are seldomest seen in their best form. The wild grass grows well and strongly one year with another, but the wheat is by reason of its greater nobleness liable to a bitter blight.

Trademarked.

"If my little brother Willie ever gets lost we can easily find him," said small Eloise.
 "How, pray?" queried the visitor.
 "He's got a strawberry trademark on his right arm," was the reply.—Chicago News.

Health Recipe.

One time a man asked the poet Longfellow how to be healthy, and this is the answer he received:
 Joy, temperance and repose
 Slam the door on the doctor's nose.

The word "lieutenant" means, literally, "holding the place." Thus a lieutenant colonel holds the place of a colonel.

"THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS"

(Quaint Sayings of William Hodge in His Big Play at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston.)

You can't fight trouble with tears. Tears help trouble just the way water helps flowers.

Courage—confidence in the truth—this makes the road to happiness. A smiling face cures lumbergo.

You can't control a woman's heart with a sledge-hammer. Laughter on the lips makes sunshine in the heart.

Let's take it easy now. If we start slow, we won't be so tired when we get where we're going.

Let 'em roast. While they're roasting in 'em they're lettin' somebody else cool off.

Worry makes the heart ache harder. Let it rain; it'll make the ducks and the flowers happy.

Squeeze your mind and press on your heart and see what your tongue will do.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—No more powerful, more effective warning has ever been preached against the grave dangers lurking in the feminine folly for dress than in "To-Day." George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer's terribly intense drama of New York life which is in the second week of its engagement at the Majestic Theatre. A cast approaching nearer to the designation "all-star" than has been seen in Boston for a long time presented. "To-Day" was Broadway's biggest dramatic hit of last season where it ran for a whole year. It is a tragedy in a modern setting, a narrative of the moral decay of a young wife whose lust for gaudy tinsel and a mad desire to gratify social ambitions tempts her to betray trust reposed in her by an unforgiving husband. With clothes, and the desire for their possession, the motivating power of "To-Day," it is but natural that the gowns shown are veritable triumphs of the sartorial art. The management was particularly fortunate in landing from France the advanced models before the war interfered with the transatlantic traffic.

CORT THEATRE—Oliver Morosco's international triumph "Peg O' My Heart" celebrated the fiftieth performance of its engagement at the Cort Theatre Monday night. All Boston suburbs are flocking to the beautiful Park Square playhouse. "Hank," the well-known writer recently reviewed "Peg" in this style:
 Hair like the gold of a mid-summer sun; heart of an angel—and sure she is wan. If a new resolution 'y'd start, make up your mind to see "Peg O' My Heart."

"Peg O' My Heart" is a bit of a miss, cheeks like an apple, and mouth made to kiss. Goes over to England across the gray sea, where they inform her a lady she'll be.
 Then the poor darling gets sneers from a dude, hears the great ladies describe her as "crude"; everyone picks on the poor colleen, so back to her daddy she says she will go.

But a foine laid with a laugh an' a smile looks her in the eyes an' she stays for a while. He calls her Peg with a voice that is merry—bit of a devil he is, too, is Jerry.
 Och, then, begorra, the trouble comes croppin'. Peg and her Jerry one night go 'hoppin' off to a dance for to shake foot and leg. Dyin' for fun is our darlin' young Peg.
 Neither return till the break of the day, they warra, worra, the devil's to go! But, as we know right away from the start everything ends well for "Peg O' My Heart."—Hank.

REAL ESTATE

Mr. R. T. Davidson has sold his new brick residence and double garage together with lot of over 17,000 feet of land. The estate is situated on Beacon street, corner of Gibbs street, Newton Centre, and is one of the most substantial and artistic new places in the Newtons. The construction of yellow brick with green tiled roof presenting very attractive appearance. The property is purchased by H. T. Hindlerang as a private residence and is valued at $127,000. John T. Burns & Sons were brokers.

John T. Burns & Sons have sold for Annie J. Ireland the 10-room house and 12,000 feet of land at 77 Newtonville avenue, Newton. Mr. W. B. Closson was purchaser. The property is assessed for $6,000.

Mr. Fletcher Clark has sold his double frame house containing 18 rooms together with 7,000 feet of land. All situated at 51-53 Bennington street, Newton. Dr. A. Rochford purchases for investment. The property is assessed for $5450. John T. Burns & Sons were brokers.

A. W. French has purchased the 9-room house and 5,000 feet of land at Warwick road, West Newton. James O'Quinn was the grantor and John T. Burns & Sons, Brokers. The new owner will occupy. Property assessed for $4,000.

Mr. D. A. MacFarlane has sold his attractive new stucco house at 25 Aberdeen street, Newton Highlands, to Mr. T. B. Sampson of Boston. This new house with 5,200 feet of land is not yet assessed but valuation exceeds $5,600. John T. Burns & Sons were brokers in all above transactions.

That the South is in the saddle is shown clearly by the $20,000,000 River and Harbor appropriation, allotment of which has just been made by the Secretary of War. Postmaster General Burleson is to be congratulated on having secured $277,900 for his state. Other appropriations reveal some interesting rivers, the list of which will doubtless refresh the reader's geography. Among these is the Withlacoochee, Florida; another is the Apalachicola and the Choctawhatchee. Nor was the Big Sunflower overlooked, or the Pascagoula.

Another appropriation for which Southerners will be thankful is the appropriation of $17,000 for removing the water hyacinth from Southern streams. At any rate the South has gotten away with about one-half of the Rivers and Harbors appropriation.

Heater to Warm Feed. An electric heater has been designed especially to warm food for horses and cattle in cold weather.

Democrats Throw Overboard Important Measures They Pledged Themselves to Put Through.

Among the Democratic measures which have been thrown overboard are the following:

National direct primaries for the nomination of Presidential candidates.

Regulation of railroad stock and bond issues.

Rural credit system to provide loans on easy terms to farmers.

Provision for greater safety at sea and amelioration of the condition of sailors.

Compulsory compensation of employees for injuries in the service of interstate carriers.

Enlargement of the operation of the bureau of mines.

Limitation of campaign contributions.

Constitutional amendment limiting the service of a President to a single term.

Creation of a council of national defense.

River regulation, flood prevention, and swamp reclamation.

National aid to building of good roads.

Suppression of gambling in agricultural products on boards of trade.

Creation of national health bureau or department.

Reorganization of the civil service.

All Pledged in Platform.

All of these measures the Democratic party in the Baltimore platform pledged itself to enact into law, and many of them the President hitherto has urged Congress to consider—Chicago Tribune.

There are just two weeks more of the engagement of Gabrielle d'Annunzio's colossal accomplishment, "Cabrera," at Tremont Temple, Boston.

After this week, those who have not yet witnessed this stupendous photographic spectacle should not let this opportunity pass them by. The engagement of "Cabrera" at Tremont Temple has been one of the most remarkable in many ways, in the history of amusements in Boston. "Cabrera" possesses an indescribable fascination that to many is irresistible, hence the frequent observations of this tremendously and intensely interesting picture.

NEWTON MEN APPOINTED

Two Newton residents have been selected for the important duty of acting as trustees to take over the Boston and Maine holdings of the New Haven Railroad Corporation, Messrs. Charles P. Hall and Henry B. Day of West Newton having been named in the decree of the United States District Court for New York on Saturday, three others being associated with them in this important duty.

The decree provides that they shall take over the stock of the Boston Railroad Holding Company, which owns a majority of the stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and shall sell the shares of the latter company at auction or by private contract not earlier than July 1, 1915, and shall use their best efforts to complete the sale before Jan. 1, 1917.

The New Haven Company must under the terms transfer to these same trustees, to be sold during the same time limits, all shares of various small railroad lines in New England which are leased to the Boston & Maine Company.

RICE—MERRIHEW

Miss Bertha Living Merrihew was among the brides of special note this week in Newton. The wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening at Grace Church, which was artistically decorated for the occasion with white chrysanthemums and palms.

Miss Merrihew, who is the daughter of Mrs. Edward Taber Merrihew of Eldridge street, became the bride of Mr. John Preston Rice, Harvard '10, of Newton. There was a large company of guests present at the church to witness the ceremony, which was performed at 8 o'clock, by the rector, Rev. Laurens MacLure, D. D.

Mr. William G. Hambleton presided at the organ and as the guests assembled gave a select program, which included Rubinstein's "Melody in F," Dubois' "Wedding Song," Moszkowski's "Serenade," "Sunset Melody," by Harker, and "Serenade," by Widor. As the bride party approached the altar, he played Wagner's "Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin," and for a recessional, the Mendelssohn Wedding March.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Mr. Edward King Merrihew of Newton, who gave her in marriage. Her beautiful wedding gown was of ivory white satin with point applique at the sleeves, and she wore a tulle veil fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a full shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Allen G. Rice of Springfield, as matron of honor, who was gowned in white satin with tulle and silk tulle embroidered in silver, pink chiffon velvet coat, and carried white chrysanthemums.

The groomsmen were Mr. F. Loring Preston of Weston and the ushers were Mr. Samuel H. Brown of Marblehead, Mr. Gilbert G. Brown of Newton, Mr. Richard W. Hall of Malden, Dr. Allen G. Rice of Springfield, Mr. Harker, and "Serenade," by Widor. As the bride party approached the altar, he played Wagner's "Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin," and for a recessional, the Mendelssohn Wedding March.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the residence of the bride's mother. The wedding party received in the drawing-room, which was artistically decorated with pink chrysanthemums and pink carnations.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Rice were Mrs. Merrihew, the bride's mother, who was gowned in white satin with over-dress of black spangled net and corsage bouquet of violets; Mrs. Frank A. Preston who wore a gown of light gray satin with black lace, and Mrs. Allen G. Rice, the bride's sister.

During the reception violin selections were rendered by Miss Anna Elchorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice left on a wedding trip and on their return will reside at 7 Linnaean street, Cambridge.

CADY—GORTON

Notable among the social events of the past week was the wedding on Saturday evening of Miss Evelyn Gorton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorton of West Newton, and Mr. Walter Holmes Cady, son of Mrs. Mary L. Cady of Brookline.

The Gorton residence on Berkeley street was elaborately and artistically decorated for the occasion in a scheme of pink, with a profusion of Killarney Queen roses in combination with asparagus fern and palms.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of West Newton. As the bride party entered the drawing-room, Wagner's Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by a string orchestra.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked very charming in an exquisite wedding gown of white Chantilly lace over ivory white satin, court train, with cape effect. Her tulle veil was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried a full shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a platinum brooch set with diamonds, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Daniel B. Rogers of Rochester, N. Y., as matron of honor, who was beautifully gowned in a combination of turquoise blue and peach colored satin, with Spanish lace tunic, and carried a bouquet of Ward roses. Mr. Ansel Cady of Brookline was the groomsmen and the ushers were Mr. Benton Bradshaw, Mr. Branton Kellogg, Mr. Lawrence Page of Brookline, Mr. Ralph Hammer of Flushing, N. Y., Mr. Duncan Wright of Newtonville, and Mr. Raymond Gorton of West Newton, brother of the bride.

A large and brilliant reception was held immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Cady being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Gorton, parents of the bride, and Mrs. Cady, the groom's mother. Mrs. Gorton was gowned in black Chantilly lace over white satin with coat of black velvet, and carried American Beauty roses. Mrs. Cady wore cream colored Chantilly lace over apricot satin, and carried Ward roses.

A wedding supper was served in a large Marquee on the lawn, which was illuminated, and decorated with pink roses and asparagus fern, and music was furnished during the reception by Atwood's Orchestra.

Guests of social prominence numbering more than three hundred were in attendance from New York, Rochester, Flushing, N. Y., Fall River, Connecticut, Boston, Brookline and the Newtons.

On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Cady will reside at 524 California street, Newtonville, where they will be at home after January 1st, 1915.

WHITCOMB—TAPLEY

Miss Margaret Tapley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren M. Tapley of Cabot street, Newtonville, was married Saturday evening to Mr. Henry Bassett Whitcomb of Campello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Whitcomb of Centre street, Newton.

The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Charles W. Hamilton, on Walnut street, which was decorated for the occasion in a color scheme of white and green.

The ceremony was performed at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of West Newton, in the presence of about fifty relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom.

In the drawing-room an arch separated a corner of the room devoted to the ceremony, the background of which was a bower of palms, southern smilax, and white chrysanthemums.

As the bride party entered, the Mendelssohn wedding march was played by a string orchestra. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was handsomely gowned in white crepe meteor court train, trimmed with Chantilly lace and wore a duchesse lace cap. She carried a full shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Virginia Tapley, as maid of honor, who was very attractively attired in coral satin with coat of coral velvet, and carried white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Carleton Blades of Campello, was the groomsmen, and the ushers were Mr. F. E. Packard, Mr. R. P. Whitman of Campello; Mr. W. I. Fearling of Newton; and Mr. Warren L. Tapley of Newtonville, brother of the bride.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony, and Mr. and Mrs. Whitcomb were assisted in receiving by their parents.

Mrs. Tapley wore a gown of white lace over yellow satin, and Mrs. Whitcomb was gowned in pearl gray silk, with over-dress of tulle and lace.

In the dining-room the decorations were pink, and on the bridal table was a large centre piece of pink Killarney roses.

The bride was a graduate of Wellesley class of 1908, and the bridegroom of the class of 1909, Dartmouth College.

A profusion of beautiful and costly gifts were showered upon the young couples, including china, cut-glass and silverware, and a furnished home at Campello.

Guests numbering about 150 were present from Boston, Lynn, Woods Hole, Malden, Brookline and the Newtons.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitcomb left on a two weeks' automobile trip, and on their return will reside at 17 South street, Campello, Mass.

cement floors, must have fireproofed walls and ceilings, must have wire-glass windows, all stairways must be of iron and steel, fire-doors must be provided with automatic closing apparatus.

The law further requires that heating of garages shall be by hot water or steam from a heating plant separate from the building. The lighting shall be by electricity. Repair shops must be separated from garages by non-combustible partitions with fire-doors.

Not only on the city, however, is the effect of the new law felt, for people keeping two or three automobiles will be obliged to make extensive alterations to their garages, owners of one car will be obliged to meet certain requirements and the man who has been in the habit of running his car into the stable in the rear of his house, whether horses are kept there or not may find that certain requirements will have to be met with before he can continue that practice.

While the new law is more lenient with motorists already owning their garages, it requires that the changes specified shall be made and in the case of new garages it requires that the law be fulfilled when building the structures.

SPEAR—GARDINER

A pretty and fashionable wedding was solemnized on Friday evening at Newton Highlands, when Miss Dorothy Gardiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hyde Gardiner, became the bride of Mr. Earl Thayer Spear of Littleton, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Spear of Shelburne Falls, Mass.

The bride's residence on Lincoln street was attractively decorated for the occasion with pink and white roses, palms and greenery. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. William C. Gordon, D. D., pastor of the Auburndale Congregational Church. The bride party stood in a bower of palms and pink roses in the living-room, and the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played by the Chadeny Trio, as the party entered.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful wedding gown of ivory white satin with Chantilly lace and pearl trimmings. Her tulle veil and cap were fastened with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The flower girl and ring bearer, was Miss Marjorie Spear of Shelburne Falls, who was daintily gowned in pink chiffon and carried a basket of pink Killarney roses.

Mr. Bruce Upton Gardiner of Newton Highlands, the bride's brother, was groomsmen. Following the ceremony a reception was held from 7 until 9. Mr. and Mrs. Spear being assisted in receiving by their parents.

Mrs. Gardiner wore a gown of white silk and satin with pearl trimmings, and Mrs. Charles Spear was gowned in light gray crepe de chine.

THE DEMERITTE SCHOOL

For earnestness of purpose, thorough work and the character of its pupils, is attracting the attention of thoughtful parents, who wish their sons to accomplish something definite in life, and do it in a manly way. The same careful training is given to all boys, whether preparing for college or the Mass. Institute of Technology.

THE AIM OF THE SCHOOL IS, not how many pupils, but how well they do their work of developing MEN.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

MISS GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

There has continued to be a large attendance at the Pure Food and Domestic Science Exposition now going on in Mechanics Hall, in which the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs is co-operating. The Government and State exhibits are attracting wide attention, as is also the (Gibson) exhibit. The Municipal Band of Havana gives concerts twice daily. The cooking demonstrations by Miss Emma Hanko every afternoon are well attended. By means of moving pictures the Making of a Modern Newspaper is illustrated, as is also the Milk Supply of a city. The Making of a Loaf of Bread is told by lantern slides—from the wheat in the fields to the finished product from the oven. Other lectures on live topics of the day are given each afternoon and evening. The Edison talking moving pictures are attracting great attention. From four until six each afternoon tea is served, one or two clubs being hostesses each time. The lecture on Monday evening by Prof. Lewis B. Allen, the father of the Westfield Standard of Pure Food, drew a large number. The clubwomen serving on the various committees have put in a great amount of work and the Federation deserves a substantial return for their labor.

State Federation

On Saturday afternoon, October 24, at 2:30 the Presidents' Conference of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at Paul Revere Hall, Mechanics Building. The general subject for discussion will be "Education." Tea will be served, with Mrs. Herbert Drew of Dedham street, and Mrs. J. E. Fessenden, the father of the Westfield Standard of Pure Food, as hostesses. The clubwomen serving on the various committees have put in a great amount of work and the Federation deserves a substantial return for their labor.

Autumn Meeting

By invitation of the Norwood Woman's Club the Autumn meeting of the State Federation will be held in the Civic Association Building, Norwood Central, on Wednesday, November 4. The morning session will be occupied with reports of the Chicago Biennial. In the afternoon Mrs. Jessie D. Hodder will speak on "The Custodial Care of the Deficient," and Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne on "How to Protect Society from the Criminal." There will be a box luncheon. Train leaves South Station, Boston, at 10:10 A. M.

Newton Federation

The Autumn meeting of the Newton Federation will be held in Players' Hall, West Newton, on November 11. Mrs. True Worthy White, chairman of Literature in the State Federation, will speak on "The Value of Contemporary Literature when rightly read."

Local Announcements

The Newton Highlands Shakespeare Club meets tomorrow afternoon, October 24, with Mrs. Herbert Drew of Dedham street. The work will be a continuation of the study of "The Winter's Tale," under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Bicknell.

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands meets with Mrs. C. T. Bartlett of 141 Jackson street, Newton Centre, on October 26.

Mrs. Boyd of Allerton road will be hostess for the meeting of the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. next Monday afternoon.

The Newton Centre Woman's Club will open its season of 1914-15 on Thursday, October 29th, in Bray Hall, with a musical followed by a reception to the new members. The musicians will be, Mr. Arthur Holy, harpist; Mr. George H. Boynton, tenor; and Mrs. E. B. Stratton, accompanist.

Local Happenings

At the meeting of the executive board of the Newton Federation last Monday morning the Christian Era Study Club of Auburndale was admitted to membership. The morning was given up to routine business and discussion of plans for the winter.

The Newton Highlands Monday Club met with Mrs. C. S. Luitweller on October 19. Mrs. D. W. Eagles had charge of the entire afternoon filling her time with an exhaustive study of "Perry." She outlined the history of the country and told much of the life there and traced in detail the foos and the wonders of their government.

Mrs. W. C. B. Robbins gave a report from the Newton Federation board meeting.

On Monday afternoon the Newton C. L. S. C. studied the "Early Saints and Heroes of Ireland" under the leadership of Mrs. C. Peter Clark. The principal ones treated were Saint Patrick, Saint Bridget and Saint Columba. Mrs. Clark gave the historical background surrounding each, and told many legends concerning them.

Mrs. G. A. Clapp of Walnut street opened her home for the annual reception of the Newtonville Woman's Guild last Tuesday afternoon. The guest of honor was Mrs. John Martin, this being the public recognition of her eightieth birthday, which occurred in June after the Guild closed its meetings, and of the many years of efficient service Mrs. Martin rendered the club as its recording secretary. A purse of gold was sent her by Guild members at the time.

In the receiving line on Tuesday afternoon were Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, president of the Guild, Mrs. F. J. Fessenden, the recording secretary, and Mrs. Clapp, the hostess. Mrs. A. E. Vose, was in charge of the dining room. A profusion of flowers graced the occasion and a most delightful time was enjoyed by all present.

The Newton Ladies Home Circle on the evening of October 15th royally entertained the members of Charles Ward Post 62 with an excellent supper and a short entertainment in Temple Hall, Newtonville. About 50 were present and thoroughly enjoyed the Home Circle viands. Music was contributed by the Elliot Mandolin Club and there was esthetic dancing by Miss Ruth Allen. The evening was greatly appreciated by every veteran present.

CATTLE SQUARE THEATRE—With next week comes a play that at its first appearance in England and America, carried press and people off their feet. No play within recent years ever received the notices that "Madame X" did. The reason is very simple. A theme whose appeal comes home to every man, woman and child is its central motive, and it teaches as only a strong play can, the redemption of an erring soul through maternal love. As Madame X, Miss Young is sure to repeat the great success which she achieved in the character two years ago. Besides Mr. John Craig the cast includes William Carleton, Dudley Hawley, Alfred Lunt, Al Roberts, Marion Turner, Mabel Colcord and has the whole strength of the company in support.

TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION (a la Kipling)

A woman there lives, of her substance she gives.
Even as you and I.
On her house and land, and her swift motor car
A duty is levied, exceeding by far
The tax which men seek to evade at the bar
Of greedy assessors who fortunes can scar.
Even as you and I.

Many years she paid, saying never a word,
Even as you and I.
Until the truth entered her awakening mind,
Taxation without representation in kind
Is an old world tyranny, ancient and blind,
She knows it a burden to all woman-kind,
Even as you and I.

So before the jury her cause she now pleads,
Even as you and I.
She awaits the verdict, and not far away
The jurors, second Daniels, will not go astray.
When through the ballot they allow her to say
What to do with the coin she yearly must pay.
Even as you and I.

WAYS OF PUTTING UP PEACHES.

PEACH marmalade may be made with small fruit, but only large, handsome fruit should be chosen for canning or preserving.

Fruit Must Be Stoned.

Peach Marmalade.—Peel and stone some peaches. The smaller kinds will do for this. Weigh the pared and pitted fruit, allowing to every pound of it three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Cook the fruit by itself for three-quarters of an hour, stirring it constantly. At the end of this time turn in the sugar and cook for ten minutes, taking off the scum. You may either put it up at this stage or you may add to it the chopped kernels of a dozen or so of peach-stones and the juice of a lemon for every three pounds of fruit.

There should be a good deal of extra juice, and if this is dipped out after the addition of the sugar and of any flavoring and sealed in bottles it makes a fine sauce for baked or boiled puddings.

Natural Looking Fruit.

Canning Peaches.—This recipe saves many hours' standing over a hot stove. Try to have as many jars ready as will be needed before beginning with the peaches. Peel and cut in halves and drop in jars as fast as you peel them so they will retain their original color. Let the outside of the peach come next to the jar and they will look like whole peaches. Now have ready a hot sirup made with two cups of sugar to one-half of water. Use only one cupful of water if you like them quite sweet. Have covers heated, and after pouring hot sirup over the fruit and filling them to the brim adjust covers and rubbers and screw as tight as possible. Now place in a boiler of boiling hot water, cover closely and let remain until cool enough to handle, then screw lids down tight. When the jars are cold tighten again.

Left Over Juice Makes Jelly.

Preserved Peaches.—Fill a dishpan half full of peaches, then cover them with boiling water, let them stand three or four minutes, then drain off the water and the peaches will peel very easily. When you have a keel of peeled make a sirup of one cupful of sugar and two cups of water for every quart jar. When it boils put in your peaches and cook until a straw will run through them easily, then can as usual. If the peaches are very large cut them in halves after they are peeled, leaving the stone in one half. If they are small ones put them up whole. In either case leave the stones in, as it helps to give them a nice flavor.

WHAT TO HAVE FOR SUPPER.

SUPPER MENU.
Parker House Rolls.
Creamed Cauliflower With Ham.
Orange Charlotte.
Iced Tea.

WHEN appetites are capricious a dainty supper like this will tempt even the fastidious.

Delicious Rolls.—Take three quarts of flour, one quart of milk, one tablespoonful each of butter and sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and one-half yeast cake dissolved in one-half cupful of water; scald the milk, add the butter and one cupful of the flour to it while hot. Let it cool; then mix all together with a knife. Let it rise three hours, cut it down, let it rise one hour; then make rolls. Let rise half hour in pans and bake in hot oven.

Creamed Cauliflower With Ham.—Take one head cauliflower, three well beaten eggs, two cupfuls white sauce, three-fourths cupful finely chopped cooked ham. Trim the cauliflower and boil in boiling salted water until it is tender; then drain and rub it through a sieve. Add the eggs and the cauliflower and pour the mixture into a buttered mold. Bake until firm. Turn out on a hot, flat dish, cover with sauce and sprinkle with ham.

A Dainty Dessert.

Orange Charlotte.—Take one third box of gelatin, one-third of a cupful of cold water, one-third of a cupful of boiling water, one cupful of sugar, juice of one lemon, one cupful of orange juice and pulp, whites of three eggs. Line a bowl with lady fingers or sections of orange, as preferred. Soak the gelatin in cold water until soft. Pour on the boiling water, add the sugar and the lemon juice. Strain the orange juice and pulp and add with a little of the grated rind. Set in a pan of extremely cold water. When it begins to harden beat it until light. Add the beaten whites and beat together until the mixture is stiff enough to drop. Pour into the mold.

Iced Tea.—One of the most refreshing beverages is iced tea. Prepare a tea as usual. When cool place in clean bottles—milk bottles are good for that purpose—cover and place on ice until very cold. Serve in tall glasses partly filled with crushed ice.

NEWTON, MASS., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1914.

TERMS, $2.00 A YEAR

Councillor Hogan For Re-Election

There is every good reason for giving Hon. John J. Hogan, a second term in the Governor's Council.

A LAWYER—of Large Experience.

A LEADER—of Strong Personality.

A MAN—of Broad Views.

He has made good as Councillor the present year, and has received the endorsement of Governor Walsh, and his Associates in the Governor's Council. He should be re-elected.

SHOWING therefor,
That ability has been recognized and efficiency rewarded.

AND ON THE GROUND—
That ONE GOOD TERM DESERVES ANOTHER.

Mr. Hogan was born in Lowell, served his city in many official capacities, has the united support of the Republican, Democratic, and Progressive newspapers of his home city, a unanimity of expression, which has honored no other candidate.

Hon. JOHN J. HOGAN
Candidate for a second term in Sixth Councillor District
Hogan Campaign Committee, John M. Hogan, Secretary, 198 Cross St., Lowell, Mass.

PUPPY SHOW

Members of the Alredale Terrier Club of New England conducted their seventh puppy show Saturday at Orchard Knoll, the home of James W. Spring, Oak Hill, and it was successful to a degree that was highly pleasing to those in charge. About 40 attended, including 15 guests. The interest manifested was indicated by the fact that Tyler Crutten, one of the contestants, autoed from New Haven to bench his entries.

George S. West of Chestnut Hill, president of the Eastern Dog Club, was the big winner of the day. His entries carried off the President's cup for the best dog in the show and also won the Vice-President's cup for the best dog or bitch under six months of age. The Secretary's cup for the best dog or bitch over six months was taken by the puppy shown by Robert Jordan of Boston and Beverly. Harold W. Read of Cambridge was the judge.

Dogs, under 1-2 months—Won by the entry of William P. Wolcott of Readville.

Dogs, under six months—Won by the entry of George S. West of Newton.

Dogs, between six and 12 months—Won by Mr. West's entry.

Bitches, between three and 4-12 months—Won by the entry of Tyler Crutten of New Haven.

Bitches, 4-12 to six months—Won by the entry of Mr. West.

Bitches, six to 12 months—Won by the entry of Mr. Jordan.

Winners' class, dogs—Won by Mr. West's entry; reserve, won by Mr. Wolcott's entry.

Winners' class, bitches—Won by Mr. West's entry; reserve, won by Mr. Jordan's entry.

Every Saturday night will be Club Night with prizes for bowling. The more formal entertainments include the reception by the president, Mr. John Hopewell on Tuesday evening, November 3rd, ladies and gentlemen's bridge on Monday, November 9th, and entertainment, entitled "A Costume Carnival" on November 13, a ladies' matinee bridge on Friday, November 20, a Thanksgiving Eve party on November 25, and open house on Thanksgiving Day, November 26th.

WEST NEWTON DAY NURSERY

The West Newton Day Nursery held its first meeting for the season on October 6 and arrangements were made for the coming year. The Nursery has completed its seventh year of work in caring for the children of wage-earning mothers. These years have proved beyond question the pressing need of such an institution. The nursery is open for routine work ten months, July and August being vacation months. The officers include, Mrs. James A. Neal, president; Mrs. John W. Carter, Mrs. George A. Frost, Mrs. Julian C. Jaynes, vice-presidents; Mrs. Sidney B. Thomas, treasurer; Mrs. William A. Young, secretary. The directors are Miss Dora A. Allen, Mrs. Thomas F. Baxter, Mrs. John W. Carter, Mrs. George T. Dodd, Mrs. George A. Frost, Mrs. Julian C. Jaynes, Mrs. James A. Neal, Mrs. Francis Newhall, Mrs. Sumner Robinson, Mrs. Charles H. Stacy, Mrs. Sidney B. Thomas and Mrs. William A. Young. The investigating committee includes Mrs. Charles H. Stacy, chairman; Mrs. Frank M. Sherman, Miss Florence M. Taylor and Miss Elizabeth Frumde, matron. The House committee includes Miss Dora Allen, chairman; Mrs. Charles E. Braham, Mrs. George P. Hatch and Mrs. Charles H. Stacy.

The finance committee includes Mrs. George A. Frost, chairman; Mrs. Harry L. Ayer, Mrs. Harry L. Burrage, Mrs. John W. Carter, Mrs. James Richard Carter, Mrs. Henry B. Day, Mrs. William B. H. Dowse, Mrs. Swan Hartwell, Mrs. Anna M. Langley, Mrs. Lawrence Mayo, Mrs. Henry A. Robbins, Mrs. Fred S. Sawyer, Mrs. Dudley P. Tenney, Mrs. Robert W. Williamson and Mrs. Daniel G. Wing.

CARD OF THANKS

Frederic P. Barnes, who was Newton's Republican Candidate at the Primaries Sept. 22nd, for Middlesex County Commissioner, desires to thank his friends who so loyally supported him for the nomination; and though he was defeated, it was by a comparatively small margin.

He carried Lowell, the largest city in the County, and his own city, Newton, 2 to 1 as well as Waltham and Watertown by about the same majority, and other cities and towns, and feels well satisfied with the showing which he made under conditions of the strongest kind of competition.

All the candidates for Governor of Massachusetts this year are suffragists.

NEW THEATRE

Newton Men Interested in Theatrical Enterprise At Allston

Newton men are interested in the new Allston Theatre on Brighton avenue, near Harvard street, Allston, which was formally opened last Saturday night, and many friends of Mr. Theodore C. Walker, the president of the company, were present. Many beautiful flowers were sent to the theatre and used as stage decorations, among them being a beautiful horse shoe and pedestal and a handsome basket of American Beauty roses. The stage was banked with autumn foliage, yellow chrysanthemums and carnations.

The theatre itself was most attractive. The walls are tinted rose pink and the hangings and fittings are of old blue with touches of gold. It is constructed of incombustible materials, and according to the latest methods of fire-proofing. The floor, balcony and roof are of reinforced concrete, and the walls are of brick, with granite trimmings. There are 18 exits, or more than any other Boston playhouse, and the entrance too, as well as the exits from the balcony, is independent of those leading from the main floor. These exits open on all sides. There is no basement under the main auditorium.

The stage is fitted with automatic fire extinguishers and fire hose. The proscenium opening has a width of 35 feet and a height of 25 feet, and the stage is large enough to put on any production.

With a length of 132 feet and a width of 70 feet, the main floor has a seating capacity of 700 while there are 500 seats in the balcony. The arrangement of seats affords more than the usual space between the rows of chairs, while the chairs themselves are wide enough to insure the maximum of comfort.

The heating and ventilating devices are modern in every way, and arrangements have been made for cooling the air in the theatre during the hot weather so that the atmosphere inside will be from 15 to 20 degrees cooler than out of doors.

Special attention has been given to sight lines and acoustic properties so that from every seat an uninterrupted view may be had, and the lowest tone spoken on the stage can be heard in all parts of the auditorium.

Retiring rooms for ladies and gentlemen are located on the mezzanine floor. The entrance lobby is finished with black and gold marble dado nine feet in height, above which is a frieze of gold leaf.

Special attention has been paid to the lighting problem. The latest type of concealed lights are used and the auditorium is always light during performances, thus doing away with the dark theatre, which is objectionable to many persons.

The picture machine booth is built according to the very latest ideas. The machines are of the most improved pattern and of the type that produces a clear picture with an absence of flickering.

Mr. Theodore C. Walker is the president and business manager of the theatre, Mr. Edward A. Watson is vice-president and theatrical manager, and Mr. James H. Dalton is treasurer.

PASTOR'S RECEPTION

Rev. and Mrs. John Goddard Receive New Church Members

The annual pastor's reception on Friday evening at the Church of the New Jerusalem, Newtonville, was a most enjoyable social affair and there was an attendance of more than one hundred.

Rev. John Goddard, the pastor, and Mrs. Goddard received, and were assisted by Rev. E. M. Lawrence Gould and Mrs. Gould.

An exceptionally fine program was arranged for the entertainment under the direction of Mr. John G. Thompson.

It included 'cello selections, "Tantaleina," "Lamento," "Cradle Song," and "Serenade," by Mrs. Albert Luke Walker; selections by the Dresco Trio, composed of Miss Marie Bartlett, Miss Mollie Coxeter, and Miss Dresco; two recitations by Miss Bartlett, piano solo by Miss Coxeter, and two groups of songs by Miss Dresco; baritone selection, "Alla, Stella Considente," by Mr. Albert Luke Walker, with 'cello obligato by Mrs. Walker; and vocal solos, "For All Eternity," "Dawn," "He Shall Feed His Flock," "Bonny Sweet Bessie," by Master Barrows Whittemore of Newton, who possesses a high soprano voice of rare sweetness and purity of tone.

Miss Dresco's beautiful contralto was heard with great artistic warmth of feeling and finish, eliciting insistent applause to which she gracefully responded with encores. Mrs. Bartlett was most happy in her readings, both in dialect and character sketches, and Miss Coxeter in her playing displayed uncommon delicacy and good taste, combined with skilful blending of light and shade.

Both Miss Bartlett and Miss Coxeter responded generously to the enthusiastic demand for encores. Mrs. Walker's 'cello numbers were delightfully rendered, the charming broad, mellow tone which she produced from her instrument, giving great pleasure, and the demand for encores was cheerfully responded to.

Altogether the evening was a pronounced success. At the close of the entertainment a collation was served.

NEWTON LADIES' HOME CIRCLE

The next regular meeting will be held on Thursday, November 5th in G. A. R. hall, Newtonville at 2 P. M.

RECEPTION

Newton Universalists Welcome Their New Pastor

Rev. Rufus H. Dix, the new pastor of the Newton Universalist Society, formerly of Weymouth, has received a notably cordial welcome from his Newton parishioners. His sermons since his coming to the church in September have won much admiration, and have been listened to by increasing audiences.

A reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Dix was given by the members of the parish Tuesday evening, in the parish house at Newtonville. The rooms were adorned with palms, carnations and chrysanthemums, and an orchestra played throughout the evening. A very large number of the people of the parish from all parts of Newton were present to greet the new minister and his wife, who were assisted by Mr. William M. Zoller, chairman of the trustees and Mrs. Edwin Wilcox, president of the Ladies' Sewing Circle. Rev. Mr. Mason of the Universalist Church at Waltham, Rev. Mr. Loring of St. John's Church, Newtonville, Rev. Mr. Spaulding of Dorchester and other brother clergymen came to pay their respects to Mr. Dix, whose remarkably successful work at Weymouth is regarded as a bright augury for a great strengthening of the Newton Society. Mr. Dix is not only a preacher of uncommon power, but a gentleman of culture and social charm.

The committee which made the arrangements for the reception comprised Mr. Wise, Mr. Banchoff, Mr. Jerrold, Mr. Newell, Mr. Cabot, Mrs. Wilcox and Mrs. Newell.

The ladies who poured were Mrs. Franklin Banchoff, Mrs. Herbert K. Hallett, Mrs. Allen D. Cady and Mrs. Winthrop L. Marvin, and the young ladies of the parish who acted as servers included the Misses Eleanor Banchoff, Abbie Cady, Helen Baker and Ruth Blake.

The young men of the parish, who served as ushers, were Mr. Russell Wise of West Newton, Mr. Perry Page, Mr. Raymond Cabot and Mr. Gordon Banchoff of Newtonville.

EDITORIAL

While there is an apparent apathy towards the coming state election, the Republicans of this city have special reasons for attending to their duty next Tuesday. Mr. McCall should receive a good vote in this city, not only because he is by far the best qualified man for the office by experience and ability, but because the friends of Senator Weeks can thus indicate that the recent senatorial contest, was a contest among friends.

Newton Republicans ought also to do their share towards redeeming the 13th Congressional district from the Democracy. A district that has sent such men as Samuel L. Powers and John W. Weeks to Washington, ought to continue to be represented by a Republican, as well as a man who will vote right on the tariff, in which the manufacturing interests of Massachusetts have such a vital concern. With many men out of work, with factories shut down, and numerous firms either bankrupt or tending in that direction, no sentimental consideration in regard to the European war, should divert the attentions of the voters.

Newton should give Mr. George H. Ellis of West Newton a heavy vote for the state senate. As one of our representatives for the past five years Mr. Ellis has made a splendid record at the State House, and is one of the ablest legislators on Beacon Hill. He has made a particular study of the railroad situation and will be greatly needed at the next session. The Democratic nominee is making a great campaign in the western end of the district, and Newton must cast a heavy vote for Mr. Ellis if he is to be elected.

The remainder of the Republican ticket, with one exception, should be given hearty support. Mr. Cushing, for lieutenant governor has made a fine record as Speaker of the House, and is so far superior to the present lieutenant governor, as to be beyond comparison. Mr. Langtry, for secretary served nearly two years in that office, and should be given the vindication he deserves. Mr. Burrill, for state treasurer, has the financial ability for the office, which the present Democratic incumbent so clearly lacks. In addition, the state should emphatically show its disapproval of the "spoils of office" theory of which State Treasurer Mansfield is such an ardent advocate. For attorney general, Mr. Atwill brings the practical experience of several years as district attorney for Essex county, and can be depended upon to give the state, able and efficient service. Hon. Henry C. Mulligan, the Republican candidate for the Governor's council has served several years in the state senate and has a long record of public service. Governor McCall should have the support of a Republican council and this district should do its utmost to redeem the office from its present Democratic incumbent. For county commissioner, Mr. Gould is entitled to another reelection on his record of efficiency alone. While Mr. Gould's methods may arouse some antagonism, every one will admit that the financial condition of Middlesex county is among the best in the Commonwealth, and that Mr. Gould has served this historic old county with unremitting zeal and industry. Moreover, as the County Commissioners will apportion the representative districts anew next year, it is of considerable importance that it should be a Republican body. For Representatives, the Republican nominees, Representative Bothfield, Allen and Weston will probably have an easy victory, for Newton heartily endorses the splendid work of Republican legislatures for the past generation and will continue to send men to the House of Representatives to help elect Republican Speakers and support Republican policies.

While the GRAPHIC intends to support Republican candidates, whenever the editor believes them, at least the equal of their opponents, it will not support the party candidates, when it believes them unfit for political office. The Republican nominee for state auditor, in the opinion of the editor, comes within this classification, and the present efficient auditor, altho a Democrat, should receive the votes of every patriotic citizen of whatever party.

Every parent with children in the High School and every person in the city interested in maintaining a standard of decency in school affairs, ought to protest against the playing of another game of football with the Waltham High School. The reprehensible actions on the football field last year and the disgraceful street riot which followed, should have taught our school authorities that another game between these two High schools was out of the question.

Once again, attention is asked to the referendum votes on the state ballot next Tuesday. Two of these measures are so called "labor" propositions, altho there is a seeming paradox in coupling vacations and labor. These matters were somewhat discussed last week, the referendum granting city laborers two weeks' vacation will probably cost this city ten or twelve thousand dollars a year, besides arousing endless discussion as to what the act really means.

The abolition of party enrollment, while a popular measure, with those voters who do not care to accept any responsibility for party policies, will simply lead to some kind of a parlor caucus, preliminary to the primary election, and add still further to our already cumbersome political machinery. As was stated last week, the act should be entitled "An act to allow members of one party to dictate the nominations of their opponents".

The referendum instructing our representatives to support the initiative and referendum policy should be emphatically negated. It is contrary to the established policy of this state, it applies solely to this city, and would be manifestly unfair to our representatives at the State House to be so instructed, while their colleagues were allowed to use their own judgment on this political caprice of the day. Vote NO.

Our news columns have a significant item this week bearing on the political situation. It refers to the conference being held today by the state Board of Labor and Industries and Governor Walsh and the mayors of the different cities in the Commonwealth in regard to the closing of factories and the care for the unemployed. These conditions did not exist under Republican administration and the Democratic party and Democratic policies are clearly to blame for these unfortunate conditions. The remedy is obvious.—Vote the Republican ticket next Tuesday.

The suggestion of President Blakemore of an investigation as to the liquor transportation situation in this city, is a move in the right direction and may have an important bearing on the license question next December. The friends of temperance have a hard fight ahead of them in maintaining the NO vote at the city election, especially when it is known that a YES vote does not necessarily mean that saloon licenses must be granted.

The solution of the old armory matter as proposed by the aldermen seems sensible and timely. The old building is a disgrace to the city in general and Newton village in particular, and should be removed as soon as possible. The value of the land as a future site for a modern fire station is so evident, that it is the part of wisdom to keep it for that purpose.

A mighty good principle for every voter to act upon in the matter of referendums on the state ballot, particularly where the voter is either uninformed or entirely indifferent, is to vote NO. It is far better to endure the ills with which we are acquainted than to fly to others of which we know nothing. Learn to vote NO as a general principle.

Some idea of the high standing of Newton residents among the business men of Boston, can be gathered from the recent list of nominations for new directors for the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Out of seven nominees four are residents of this city.

The two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the First Church at Newton Centre is a noteworthy event and its members have planned an interesting and dignified celebration.

Once again the Weston bridge matter is publicly agitated. Let us hope that something substantial will be the outcome of the present suggestion.

MISS MORSE ENGAGED
Miss Harriet C. Morse of Newtonville, whose engagement to Mr. Nicholas Richardson of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, was announced last week on Saturday, is being showered with congratulations, and many luncheons and dinners have been given in her honor.
Professor Edward S. Morse of Salem, a cousin of Miss Morse, was the first to give a luncheon, and Mrs. Harvey Wheeler gave a large dinner party on Sunday, at "Fairlawn," her estate in Lexington, in honor of the event.
Mrs. Wheeler conveyed her guest to and from her house in motor cars and in the evening they had a delightful moonlight ride.
The engagement is one of widespread interest, because of Miss Morse's extensive acquaintance. She is the daughter of the late George W. Morse and was graduated from Radcliffe College with the class of 1902. She spent about six years in France and Germany, to prepare for college, and to study music. She is a singer of ability, a fine linguist and a writer. Mr. Richardson is the youngest member of an old English family. He is a mining engineer by profession. The wedding probably will take place in the spring, unless Mr. Richardson has to return to England on account of the war troubles, in which case the marriage will take place in a few weeks.

A FEW FACTS FOR THE VOTER

Since the present Democratic tariff law went into effect, our purchases from foreign nations have increased $102,000,000, while our sales abroad have decreased in the same time $108,000,000. We have bought more and sold less, and the most of which we have bought from abroad should have been produced at home. We have lost in foreign commerce since this bill went into effect not less than $150,000,000. We have donated to Canadian lumbermen in the same period $2,000,000, which is the amount they contributed to the expenses of our government during the last year of a Republican tariff. Had they paid the old rate on what they shipped into this country during the first eight months of the Underwood law, they would have contributed twice $4,000,000 to this government.

With all this sacrifice, the consumer has not paid one cent less for his lumber. In the same time, $10,000,000 has been given to the Sugar Trust, and the consumer pays more for his sugar. To the foreign wool grower, a donation of $20,000,000 in duties has been made, and woolen clothes cost no less than before. The importers of beef and cattle have been relieved of paying $5,000,000 toward the support of this government, and the overburdened taxpayer pays more for his meat. Now, to make up the deficit thus produced, and from which the consumer has received no benefit, the people of the country are asked in a so-called "war revenue" bill to pay a direct tax of $105,000,000, in addition to the tax burden they are already bearing, at a time when our nation is at peace with all the world. Are you going to vote to continue this kind of Democratic inefficiency?

—Coach "Hurry Up" Yost and a squad of 31 including the trainers, managers and players of the University of Michigan football team arrived yesterday at noon, at the Woodland Park Hotel, where they were given a great reception. A large sign with "Michigan" in the University colors, was hung across the front entrance to the hotel. The squad appeared none the worse for their 16 hours of travel, and had a work out in the afternoon, to limber up for the contest with Harvard on Saturday. Dinner was served in one of the large banquet halls adjoining the main dining room at the hotel, which was at the disposal of the guests. It was decorated appropriately for the occasion, and at the end of the long table stood a good representation of a Michigan football player, on which was placed a Halloween pumpkin head, lighted with electricity. The figure was dressed in football togs and sweater with the letter "M," which was worn by Mr. Eugene F. Leger, a retired player, who was the guest of the evening. A sign bearing trophies of his numerous victories was also hung over the table. Mr. Leger was a member of the class of 1910, University of Michigan, and is now with the Wheeler Condenser and Engineering Company of Boston.

—Coach "Hurry Up" Yost and a squad of 31 including the trainers, managers and players of the University of Michigan football team arrived yesterday at noon, at the Woodland Park Hotel, where they were given a great reception. A large sign with "Michigan" in the University colors, was hung across the front entrance to the hotel. The squad appeared none the worse for their 16 hours of travel, and had a work out in the afternoon, to limber up for the contest with Harvard on Saturday. Dinner was served in one of the large banquet halls adjoining the main dining room at the hotel, which was at the disposal of the guests. It was decorated appropriately for the occasion, and at the end of the long table stood a good representation of a Michigan football player, on which was placed a Halloween pumpkin head, lighted with electricity. The figure was dressed in football togs and sweater with the letter "M," which was worn by Mr. Eugene F. Leger, a retired player, who was the guest of the evening. A sign bearing trophies of his numerous victories was also hung over the table. Mr. Leger was a member of the class of 1910, University of Michigan, and is now with the Wheeler Condenser and Engineering Company of Boston.

CITY POLITICS

Nomination papers which must be filed tomorrow for the coming city primary on November 17, indicate that there is but little interest in filling the aldermanic and school committee offices at the city election on Dec. 8.

Only two contests are in sight for Republican nominations, one in ward 2, where Alderman Harry D. Cabot will be opposed by George F. James, and one for alderman at large from ward 1, where Alderman Reuben Forknall will be opposed by Charles E. Rees, a Progressive, who is also seeking the Progressive nomination for the same office.

The full ticket will probably be as follows.

Aldermen at Large
Ward 1, Reuben Forknall
Charles E. Rees.
Ward 2, George F. Malcolm.
Ward 3, John S. Alley.
Ward 4, Bernard Early.
Ward 5, Ernest G. Hapgood.
Ward 6, William L. Allen.
Ward 7, Henry I. Harriman.

Ward Aldermen
Ward 1, John W. Murphy.
Ward 2, Harry D. Cabot.
George F. James.
Ward 3, Undecided.
Ward 4, William S. Wagner.
Ward 5, Joseph W. Bartlett.
Ward 6, Robert M. Clark.
Ward 7, Henry W. Jarvis.

School Committee
Ward 1, Frederick W. Stone.
Ward 4, Charles E. Valentine.
Ward 7, Everett E. Kent.

Only two Democratic nominations have been filed, one for Daniel O'Connell for ward alderman, ward 2, and one for James J. Martin for ward alderman, ward 5.

EVERY SATURDAY CLUB

On Saturday next the second meeting of the Every Saturday Club, for the season of 1914-15, will be held at the home of Miss Louise R. Sherman on Walnut street. The work of the entire season is to be devoted to the study of Robert Louis Stevenson and his books. The particular topic for Saturday night will be his life, from the time he was married in 1882 to the time of his death in 1894, together with the letters of the period, his religious faith, and his friendships. These topics will be discussed by Mr. Joseph C. Hagar, Mrs. Mary R. Martin and Mr. John R. Prescott.

The opening meeting of the season was held at the home of Mr. John G. Thompson, and considerable activity was begun at the inception of the season's study. Miss Clara A. Burgess was elected secretary. The subject which has been chosen lends great variety to the thought, literary study and wit of the members of this club, and will no doubt, provide a season of lively interest and wide knowledge of the great author.

The Club now has a membership of thirty-seven and the officers are, Mr. Fred S. Retan, president; Mr. Russell C. Gibbs, vice-president; Miss Burgess, secretary. The executive committee which includes the presidents and ex-presidents for 1910-1913, are Mr. A. B. Basset, Mr. Charles S. Thomas, Mr. Frank W. Chase, and Mr. W. H. Sylvester. The mid-winter party committee includes Mrs. Wallace C. Boyden, Mrs. J. H. Willey, Mrs. J. C. Hagar, Mrs. Charles W. Davidson, Mrs. J. R. Prescott, Miss Lucy B. Cram, Program Committee, Messrs. Russell C. Gibbs, Samuel Thurber, Jr., Francis J. Garrison, William E. Strong, Winfield S. Smyth and John G. Thompson. The committee on place of meeting are Mr. Edward W. Greene and Mr. William C. Bamberg.

A RESPONSIBLE FIRM

Most of our older readers are well aware that for over one hundred years T. D. Whitney & Co., Temple place, Boston, have been the leading retail linen store east of New York, and won the enviable reputation for always selling goods of dependable quality.

By concentrating their efforts on this one line of goods, T. D. Whitney & Co. have been enabled to establish intimate relationship with all of the larger weavers of linens in both Europe and America, and are consequently always in position to show a very complete stock of medium and the finest grade linens suited for every purpose. Since their store was enlarged, they not only carry increased stocks of linens, but also many other carefully selected fabrics and goods, all of which are of guaranteed good quality and sold at favorable prices.

We would call especial attention to their advertisements as they appear in this paper, and assure every one of our readers that it will well repay them to visit this store when in the City.

Republican Candidate For Congress

MR. WILLIAM H. CARTER

Business Men of Newton

Should Vote For Mr. Carter

Because the present Democratic Administration has Increased The Cost of Living Thrown Wage Earners Out Of Employment
Increased The Number Of Bankrupts
Reduced The Business Prosperity Of The District

A Vote for Mr. Carter is the FIRST STEP to IMPROVE THESE CONDITIONS

YOUR VOTE IS NEEDED NEXT TUESDAY

HORACE M. BUNKER, 176 Grove Street, Auburndale, Mass.

What the Democratic Administration Has Cost the Country.

- Loss to Wage Earners:
1,500,000 idle workmen for 300 days, $450,000,000.
- Loss to Borrowers:
Increase of interest on all new loans of from one to two per cent per annum.
That is an average increase interest rate of $15 per thousand loan. While the exact amount is unascertainable, it is certainly staggering in its proportions.
- Railroads:
Decreased passenger receipts. More than 200,000 idle freight cars and all which that entails.
- Business Failures:
A large increase bankruptcies in the commercial world. A shutting down of tens of thousands of factories.
- Farm Products
Large reductions in the price of farm products up to the time of the beginning of the European War.
- Loss to the Treasury:
Increase in appropriations by this Democratic Congress for the present year $100,000,000 over the high tide of Republican Appropriations.
- Loss to Sovereignty:
Exclusive right to control the Panama Canal yielded at the behest of foreign powers.
- Question:
Has the Democratic Administration been worth it?

SARAH HULL CHAPTER, D. R.

The Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R., held the first meeting of the season at the Newton Club House, Wednesday, Oct. twenty-eighth, at the usual hour.

Previous to the prepared program Mrs. Bolton, Regent of the State society, made a statement of a proposed plan for relief work to aid the Red Cross society in which all Massachusetts societies should join, working on three days in the week at the society headquarters in the Westminster.

Individual gifts of money, material and labor are much desired.

Miss Martha Gifford of Newton played two selections, an Intermezzo and a Venetian Sketch with much finish and expression, to introduce the program.

Rev. H. Grant Person spoke delightfully of the "Evolution of the American Flag," illustrating the different epochs of growth with drawings and flags.

Miss Gifford again favored the audience with three Etudes by Chopin and the Chapter adjourned after the usual singing of "America."

The hostesses were, Mrs. Howard Allen, Mrs. Geo. Agry, Mrs. William Bacon, Miss Emma Barker, Mrs. Clifton Black, Mrs. Vincent M. Bowen.

Perfection of berries used—the extreme care exercised in roasting—the delicious flavor developed—the sanitary precautions scrupulously preserved—the persistent uniformity of quality and the safe-from-harm packing in sealed all-tin cans, have made our splendid "White House" COFFEE a household word wherever it has been distributed.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARYNewton Methodists Celebrate a Half Century of Growth

The Newton Methodist Church celebrated its fiftieth anniversary this past week, with church reunion and dinner last week Thursday, a communion service on Friday night, and anniversary service on Sunday morning and a Fellowship meeting Sunday evening.

On Sunday morning the sermon was preached by Bishop John W. Hamilton, D. D., LL.D., and Rev. Dr. William E. Huntington, D. D., LL.D., and Rev. Arthur A. Wright, D. D., former pastors assisted in the service. The regular church quartet was assisted by Miss Florence Ferguson, violin and Mrs. Gladys Barber Walley, pianist.

On Sunday evening the clergy of neighboring churches were present to discuss the subject, "Some Relations of the Church to the Community." Rev. George H. Parkinson of the Newton Centre Methodist church spoke on "The Church and Social Service," Mr. Allan C. Emery, president of the Newton Y. M. C. A., spoke on "The Church and the Y. M. C. A.," Rev. Laurens MacLure, rector of Grace church spoke on "The Church and Education" and Rev. H. Grant Person of Eliot church spoke on "The Church as a Unifying Force." The music was rendered by Dr. Archibald T. Davison, organist and Mr. Walter Kidder, baritone.

- W. E. Huntington, whose pastorate closed in 1876.
- Samuel Jackson, whose pastorate closed in 1879.
- Dr. W. S. Studley, whose pastorate closed in 1881.
- J. B. Gould, whose pastorate closed in 1883.
- (and at this time the Newton Centre church was formed from our own which shows the reason for the apparent great drop in membership.)
- Joel M. Leonard, whose pastorate closed in 1885.
- Fayette Nichols, whose pastorate closed in 1888.
- Andrew McKeown, whose pastorate closed in 1891.
- and it was during the pastorate of Bro. McKeown that the Quarter Century exercises were held. Since that date we have had six pastors as follows:—
- Dillon Bronson, whose pastorate closed in 1896.
- C. E. Holmes, whose pastorate closed in 1899.
- George R. Grose, whose pastorate closed in 1904.
- George S. Butters, whose pastorate closed in 1911.
- J. E. Lacombe, whose pastorate closed in 1913.
- G. Charles Gray, 1914—

THE NEWTON METHODIST CHURCH

At the church reunion held last week Thursday evening the following brief historical sketch was given by Mr. J. Wesley Barber.

"The first twenty-five years of the history of the Newton Methodist Church was so thoroughly done by our former historian, Henry J. Woods, that anyone who wishes it in detail will find it duly recorded in the NEWTON GRAPHIC under date of November 1, 1889.

Referring to that article, the following persons left the Watertown Church to form the Newton Methodist Episcopal Church viz. John Fisk, Martha A. Gay Aaron F. Gay, Edwin W. Gay, E. M. Mosher, Olivia Mosher, Mary M. Mosher, Thurston Priest, Mary A. Priest, James Skinner, Mary A. Skinner, Henry Thrall, Minerva Thrall, F. M. Trowbridge, Abbie A. Trowbridge, Abram Thomas and Arethusa Thomas. Also as probationers, Emily J. Thrall, Maria L. Thrall and Minerva J. Thrall.

"The meetings were first held in Cole's Hall which was the principal hall before the present Eliot Block was erected. The first church edifice was dedicated Sept. 26th, 1869, and the record says, 'There were services in the chapel, and a feast in Eliot hall, afternoon and evening.' Instead of the present Eliot Block, the first story of the ground floor of this building was occupied by a door dash and blind store room. The quotation says, 'The festivities in the hall concluded in a most agreeable manner the exercises of the day. The tables in the centre were loaded with fruit and flowers and the crowd assembled were bountifully entertained with excellent viands prepared by the ladies of the society, enlivened by strains of music from a fine stringed band. There were quite a number of visitors from Boston and surrounding towns.'

"Of the first communicants, but one remains—Olivia M. Mosher—who is unable to leave her room, but is represented by her daughter, Mrs. William A. Parks. Of those worshipping in Cole's Block previous to the erection of the church, but one remains so far as is known, namely Mr. M. F. Blanchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Blanchard. Mr. Blanchard is here this evening and this church has a warm place in his affections from the fact that he married his wife from the church, and though living in Cambridge, all of his children have been christened at our altar.

"Of those who were at the dedicatory exercises, there is perhaps one person here this evening and he was one of four who came from Boston, representing the Bromfield St. Church. A feature of the evening's entertainment was the auctioning off of bouquets, of which there were a large number, and the present historian, then a young man, outbid his companion from the Bromfield St. Church and then presented the bouquet to Charlie Hatfield's best girl. And to show that it makes a difference who presents the bouquet, Mrs. Rev. Charles S. Miller over the phone today did not remember anything about that special bouquet.

- "The pulpit was occupied in the first twenty-five years by thirteen different pastors in this order:—
- J. C. Cromach, from the Cincinnati Conference, (called Prof. Lewis) until Apr. 18, 1866.
 - C. S. Rogers, whose pastorate closed in 1869.
 - S. F. Jones, whose pastorate closed in 1872.
 - Alfred A. Wright, whose pastorate closed in 1878. (and Bro. Wright therefore graces this occasion as the Dean.)
 - Frederick Woods, whose pastorate closed in 1874.

"Of this number, Brothers Wright, Huntington, Nichols, Bronson, Butters and Lacombe are with us at this time and Brothers Holmes (now a Congregational minister in Westfield) and Dr. Grose (President of De Pau University) are unable to be with us this evening.

"It was interesting to take from the records the number of parishioners and probationers for the entire period at the close of the different pastorate.

Members Probationers
1866	39 10
1869	63 20

1913	177 5

but at this time there are on the church books 132 persons, non resident members.

"Newton may be almost called the 'Saints' Rest' if we may judge of the number of ministers who have been in the pews in the last quarter of a century. The following is the record and the date in which they joined the conference:—

Thomas Marcey,	1835
Bradford K. Pierce,	1842
Daniel W. Barber,	1843
Edward A. Manning,	1843
John B. Gould,	1846
Levi P. Cushman,	1849
Andrew McKeown,	1852
Geo. W. Mansfield,	1858
Joseph H. Owens,	1859
Charles W. Rochelle,	1876
Prof. Geo. K. Morris,

who is at present in the Cincinnati conference and the only one of this record living. We have with us, however, as regular communicants, Mrs. Geo. W. Mansfield and Mrs. Joseph H. Owens.

"The characteristics of some of our members were admirably delineated in a few words by the different speakers at the half century celebration:

Of Edward W. Gay, it was said, "What a spirit of faithfulness to duty!"
Of Mrs. Daniel W. Barber, everywhere known as Mother Barber—"Her contagious optimism."
Of Mr. Alonzo S. Weed—"Stalwart, splendid, worth walking miles to see him smile."
Of that "Double Barber"—Amelia Barber Barber—"That cultured, refined gentle soul."
Of William A. Alexander—"What a friend—strong, quiet, a faithful, noble man."

Of Mrs. Charles Lawrence—"That glorious woman."
Of Washington Warren—"Faithful and earnest."
Of Alden Speare—"A man of all men."

Of Bradford K. Pierce—"A man of great affection" while
Mrs. Pierce was—"Of a queenly character but wonderfully sweet."

Of Henry J. Woods—"This wonderful Christian spirit."
Of Hiram Leonard—"Tall, splendid soldier, whose life meant a great deal to the spiritual life of Newton and whose two sons are with us this evening."

etc., etc., while many were mentioned without special reference to characteristics.

Dr. Huntington well characterized in his remarks the four features that had made the Newton church peculiar and which had much to do with the fact that there has never been aught but good fellowship.

1. The church should be a "Consolidated Home", and the Newton church has always had a warm, congenial atmosphere.

2. It must be hospitable, and the Newton church with its doors always open has a quiet loving hand for all those who worship with us.

3. It should have an interest in civic and social ideals for the uplift of the community, and our little church small in membership had furnished its full quota in all civic and association matters relating to our city.

4. Its religious ideals are concentrated upon the great ideals as it should be in the consolidated home.

Dr. Leonard's remarks covered his coming from Winchester to which charge perhaps he was sent on the ground that they had no parsonage, and who was told when he was appointed to Newton, "You won't have any revivals because they haven't any revivals over there." It was also related of the woman who wished a proper motto on her husband's tombstone and searching for a sentiment, some one suggested "Gone to a better land," to which she quickly replied, "I guess not, he died in Newton."

Fayette Nichols' remarks were characteristic of the man, and in speaking of his retiring from the active ministry, he said, "Today a pastor needs to be two men; the old theories that the morning should be given to the study of the Sunday sermon, and the afternoon to the visiting among the parishioners will hardly do and yet few societies feel that they can hire two preachers."

Dr. Butters' remarks were covered by two sentences—"We loved you in the days gone by; we love you today more than ever."

Brother Lacombe referred to the older members present, to Mr. Butters as his Father Confessor and to Dr. Rice "Who fathered me for six years." Dr. Bronson who introduced the speakers of the evening was very apt in his remarks as usual, and the closing feature of the evening was a few words from our present pastor, who said that he felt he was only a novelty in the midst of the antiques but he believed with deep sincerity that this was a possible spiritual enterprise.

Music was furnished by our own church orchestra of twelve pieces, who now devote one evening a week under the able leadership of Mr. P. S. Witcomb, a recent addition to our church, duly interspersed among the speakers. Beside our old pastors referred to above, Mayor Childs, representing the city as well as the Y. M. C. A., said "If it had not been for the several members of the Barber family, Henry J. Woods, H. Campbell, and Hiram Leonard, we should have no Y. M. C. A. building in the city today, for they made the Association possible in its early years."

Dr. Parkinson, representing the Newton Centre church, who claimed he was not blessed with a gift of humor, turned the tables on several of the former speakers by humorous references.

Dr. Rice closed the exercises with a short address in his usual happy vein.

ORGAN RECITAL

The most interesting musical event of the week was the organ recital on Monday evening by the New England Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. It was the fifty-third public service and the entire capacity of Eliot Church was taxed by the large assemblage and the utmost enthusiasm was shown.

The organ prelude was played by Mr. Harry E. Wry, organist and choir master of the Old South Church, Boston. Mr. Allen W. Swan, organist and choir master of the First Unitarian Church of New Bedford, played the Offertory, and the Postlude was played by Mr. B. L. Whelpley of the Arlington Street Church, Boston.

Mr. Everett E. Truette, organist and choir master of Eliot Church, played "The Service, which was sung by the quartet, Miss Josephine Knight, soprano; Mrs. Adelaide Griggs Bowman, contralto; Mr. J. Garfield Stone, tenor and Mr. Frederic W. Cutler, bass, assisted by the chorus choir of 35 voices.

The Stabat Mater program included ten numbers, which were delightfully sung by the quartet and chorus, and greatly enjoyed by the large audience.

Newtonville

—When in doubt, vote NO.
—Mr. Charles W. Leonard of Forest avenue left Tuesday for a short stay in New York.

—Mr. H. Stewart Bosson of Lowell avenue returned Monday from a stay of several months at Bear Island, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

—The Mission Circle of the First Universalist church held a very successful Food Sale on Saturday afternoon in the parish house. Mrs. Merritt, Mrs. Jennison, and Mrs. Taylor served on the committee.

—The Young Woman's Club of St. John's church held a meeting Tuesday evening at the residence of Miss Benner on Clyde street. The Club will meet Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, with Miss Frances Richardson on Page road.

—The Central Club held the first meeting of the season last evening in the parlors of Central church. Professor John A. Wait of the German Department, Harvard University, gave an interesting address on the German Viewpoint of the Present European War.

Practical Suggestion.
A man rather untidy in his personal habits was discussing the question of a new waistcoat with a friend. "What color would you advise?" he asked the friend. "Why," said the friend, "I'd get one of soup color."

Longest Straight Railroad Track.
Argentina, not New Zealand as often reported, has the longest stretch of straight railroad track in the world. A transcontinental railway in Argentina crosses 175 miles of prairie without a curve.

NEWTON MAN HONORED

Mr. Vernon B. Swett of Franklin street, Newton, who was elected Monday night as the president of the Boston Life Underwriters Association, is one of its most popular and active members. He was born at Milton Plantation, Me., in 1870, and prepared for college at Kent's Hill, Me. He graduated from Wesleyan University in 1896, and began his business career with a teachers' agency, later entering the local service of the Provident Life and Trust Insurance Company of Philadelphia as clerk and solicitor. In 1908 he was promoted to assistant general agent of the Boston office, and in 1911 was appointed junior general agent to Frank J. Hammer.

Mr. Swett is secretary of the Newton Planning Board and a member of the Hunnewell and Eight O'clock Clubs. He is also a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the City Twenty-third Century and Massachusetts Clubs, also of the Phi Nu Theta, Mystical Seven and Phi Delta Kappa Orders. Mr. Swett is married and has three children.

250TH ANNIVERSARY

The First Church in Newton is celebrating its two hundred and fiftieth anniversary this week, with a communion service and reception to members this evening at its church in Newton Centre and to be followed with interesting exercises on Sunday and Monday.

The program for Sunday includes an historical service at 10.30 A. M., with a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Edward M. Noyes, D. D., a Children's service at 3.30 with addresses by Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., President Allan C. Emery of the Y. M. C. A., and Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, a Young People's service at 7.30 with addresses by Mrs. V. G. Simkhovitch, Prof. Arthur G. Webster and Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

On Monday there will be greetings and congratulations at three o'clock from many clergymen, to be followed at 5.30 by a banquet and at 7.30 there will be an oratorio by Rev. Charles R. Brown, Moderator of the National Council.

do it. An ash pan is hard to remove and it usually spills the ashes in carrying.

The deep Ash Hod of our latest ranges catches all of the ashes, is easy to remove and carry and does not spill the ashes. Coal Hod beside it. Both hods free with each range.

Then there is a wonderful "Single Damper" [patented]; gives perfect control of fire and oven. Better than two dampers. Have you seen it? Gas ovens if desired, end [single] or elevated [double].

"TRAVEL WITHOUT TROUBLE"

Travel is the one fountain of pleasure that cannot be drained dry, and when, as now, a tour across Europe would be regarded as a desperate adventure, we need not forego the pleasure of sight-seeing. The Elmdorf easy-chair method of travel is still open to us. With a fine selective skill, developed by years of intelligent professional sight-seeing, Mr. Elmdorf has garnered the best of the things we go abroad to see, and sets them before his audiences with none of the worry or hardships of travel.

His series this year, which will open at Symphony Hall on Friday evening, November 6th, will consist of five ideal circular tours. The first,—"Around the World through the Panama Canal," will reveal new scenes at the various ports of call over the seven seas from New York to the Hawaiian Islands and thence home through the Panama Canal to New York.

The second lecture,—"Around the Mediterranean," will embrace a tour from Tangiers along the coast of Northern Africa to Egypt and the Holy Land; thence to Constantinople and the Adriatic, Naples, Genoa, The Riviera, and Spain.

The third lecture,—"Around Northern Europe," will include visits to four great capital cities, London, Berlin, Vienna, and Budapest, and many in-between places.

The fourth topic,—"Around Southern Europe," will comprise a tour from Paris through Switzerland and Italy and back to Paris; while the concluding lecture of the course,—"Around the United States," will make every one wish to "See America first."

The entire course of lectures will be illustrated with color reproductions from Mr. Elmdorf's original negatives.

NEWTON OFFICER LOSES CASE

After deliberating 15 minutes a jury in Judge Lawton's court Tuesday returned a verdict of $1500 in the $10,000 suit instituted last December by Miss Alice F. Walsh of Boston against Patrolman James H. McMahon of the Newton police force, for alleged breach of promise to marry.

The plaintiff's contention was that she was introduced to McMahon a year ago February, that the policeman became a constant caller, and that he affectionately and frequently declared he would soon make her his wife.

She declared that the approximate time of the wedding even was set, and that she purchased part of her trousseau. A friend corroborated her testimony, and added that she had seen McMahon hold Miss Walsh on his knee and kiss her frequently.

McMahon's defence was a denial of any promise to marry Miss Walsh, and the testimony of witnesses to the effect that the plaintiff really was engaged to a man "down east" whom she intended to marry in case the policeman did not marry her.

MASSACHUSETTS CIVIC LEAGUE

The Massachusetts Civic League has voted to devote its annual meeting this year to some of the more fundamental aspects of the recreation problem. This is done in the belief that the state has in a measure passed the propaganda period and that the campaign of the future must be in the direction of materializing the plans set on foot by Mrs. Eva W. White, in charge of the evening centers in Boston, on "The School House as a Social Centre," and by Ernst Hermann, playground director in Newton, on "Play in Education." The Secretary will give a review of the year's work with special consideration to the housing situation. The meeting will be held at 3 Joy street, Boston, on Friday, November 20, at 3.30 P. M.

A special demonstration will be given by Mr. Hermann, showing how to use churches, schools and other places for recreation purposes.

N. H. S.

It is announced that the Waltham-Newton football game will be played at Waltham on Thanksgiving morning. Newton has played in Waltham for years, and when it was decided by the managements last Spring to play the game hereafter on Thanksgiving Day, it was agreed to alternate between Clifton Field, Newtonville and Waltham, the time this year to be played in Newton. The Newton management concluded that on account of the poor accommodations on Clifton Field, the game would be more successful if played in Waltham.

NEW TIME TABLE

A new schedule of the Auburndale-Subway line of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway will go into effect on Nov. 1. Instead of the cars running direct to Park street, the destination will be Lake street, where the patrons will change cars over the Boston Elevated route to Park street. As at the present time, the cars will run on 20-minute time and at rush hours on 10-minute time.

REAL ESTATE

F. A. Horn & Co. have bought of T. F. O'Halloran, a lot of land on Harvard street in Newtonville. They have also purchased the adjoining lot from M. Cullinan and are negotiating for several other lots in the vicinity. D. P. O'Sullivan was the broker.

WILBUR THEATRE—A striking feature of "The Road to Happiness," now in its eighth week at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, and one which is thoroughly enjoyed by the host of playgoers who throng that beautiful playhouse, is the curious likeness which exists between William Hodge's character of young Jim Whitman in the play and the real Abraham Lincoln in the days of his youth. He has the same native humor, the same Yankee shrewdness, the same deep-rooted honesty of purpose and belief in the triumph of the right. Like the youthful Lincoln still, he whips the village bully. This dramatic story only helps to bring out into strong relief the youthful Lincoln-like qualities and characteristics of Jim Whitman as portrayed by the inimitable Hodge. It is no wonder "The Road to Happiness" is enjoying such pronounced popularity.

NEWTON CLUB NOTES

The activity of the season is in full swing; bowling, cards, billiards, pool, dancing, neighborhood nights, formal nights, and Saturday club nights, are all receiving lively interest from the members. Last Thursday, informal dancing, with the orchestra, was enjoyed by about 30 couples, while all tables were occupied in the billiard room, and the alleys were crowded with ladies, members and their guests. Saturday night, the stag luncheon brought out over 100 members and their guests.

Last evening the club-house held a brilliant throng, the card rooms holding about 50 couples, and the newly decorated ball room being filled during almost the entire evening, and to overflowing after the supper. Mrs. A. M. Lyon, Mrs. George F. Malcolm, Mrs. H. Belden Sly, were the matrons at the bridge, and Mrs. Hubert G. Ripley, Mrs. Louis I. Schreiner, and Mrs. Lester B. Hunter, were the matrons at the dancing. Supper was served at half past ten, and dancing continued until midnight.

The entertainment committee is hard at work supervising and producing a minstrel show for the 18th and 19th of November. This will be one of the finest productions ever given by the club, and the ball room is expected to be full to overflowing when the evenings come. The price of 50c has been set upon the tickets, and reservations may be made at the club-house. Members will find tickets reserved for them up to about the 12th of November, after which tickets will be sold to the public.

Applications for membership in the Newton Club are increasing rapidly, and it is expected that the roster of membership will soon be the largest ever known in the club. Members are using considerable energy in finding newcomers to the city during the past few years, some of whom have no knowledge whatever of the pleasures of membership, so that there is a general effort to increase the importance of the club in the community and its meaning as a center of social activity for the gentlemen and their families in the immediate neighborhood.

POLITICAL PARTIES ENDORSE SUFFRAGE

Equal suffrage planks have been adopted in more party platforms this year than ever before.

The Republicans have recommended the submission of a constitutional amendment to the voters in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Vermont, while in Illinois, Maryland, North Dakota, and Arkansas they have gone further and declared for the principle. The Democrats have recommended the submission of a constitutional amendment in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Illinois, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and have come out in favor of the principle in North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Vermont. The Progressives and Socialists have adopted suffrage planks practically everywhere.

In several of the States where women already have full suffrage, both Republicans and Democrats have this year for the first time adopted planks calling for a nation-wide woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

DALE-SMITH

The wedding of Mr. Sidney L. Smith of Hartford, Conn., the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith of Auburn, and Miss Dorothy V. Dale of Omaha, Neb., took place at the Hancock Park Methodist Church at that city on October 14th, the ceremony being performed by Bishop Frank Bristol.

Miss Martha Dale of Omaha was the maid of honor and the Misses Helen Epener and Marjorie Howland of that city were the bridesmaids. Mr. P. Marborough Smith of Auburn was the best man and the ushers were Messrs. Kenneth Mansfield of Brookline, Mass., and Mr. R. Wood, Alexander Loomis and Albert Busch of Omaha.

After a wedding trip to the White Mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home after December first at Hartford, Conn.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Cohan and Harris' latest success "Wanted $22,000" will begin its last week at the Plymouth Theatre, Monday night. This amazing play by A. E. Thomas and Clayton Hamilton is the biggest hit of the Boston season. Every effort has been made to keep the production in Boston throughout the winter but previous contracts call for its presentation in New York. Cohan and Harris have given the piece three beautiful stage settings. The cast, an all-star organization selected for Boston and New York only, comprises besides Mr. Glendinning and Miss Kelley, Richard Sterling as Robert Caswell, the insurance agent; William Courtleigh as the theatrical manager, Gilmore; Forrest Robinson as the father James Howard; Harold Russell in the role of the bank teller Byrne; Hazel Lowry as Elsie Howard; Frances Wright as Mary; Isabel Garrison in the part of Mrs. Howard; George Wright, Jr., as Stephen Bingham; and Harold Grau in the role of Jim.

ELECTRIC CAR SALON

Mr. Louis D. Gibbs of Billings park, Newton, is president of the Electric Car Motor Club which will give a salon next week from Monday to Friday in the ball room of the Copley Plaza hotel, Boston.

Special features for the afternoons and evenings will add to the attractiveness of the occasion. Many prominent society people have manifested their desire to be present, and the stars from the big shows in the leading Boston theatres will attend. An especially attractive feature this year will be the dancing. The exhibition by professionals of the latest dances will go on every afternoon and evening, and there will be a general opportunity for the guests of the Salon to take part. The small ballrooms, connecting directly with the grand ballroom, which will be used for the exhibition of cars, has been set aside for the dancing. The orchestral music will be especially adapted to this feature of the event.

CLAFLIN SCHOOL CHILDREN

Original Rhymes and Stories Written Especially For the Graphic

The following rhymes and stories are the work of children attending the Claflin school at Newtonville, and were selected by a vote of the class.

Halloween

My but I'm scared on Halloween,
When frightful things are on the scene!

To see the witches flying by
The prowling with scary eye,
And hear and see the goblin's howl,
And also hear the screeching owl.

To see the ghosts all dressed in sheets
Parading up and down the streets,
My but I'm scared on Halloween,
When frightful things are on the scene!

—Carl Schipper.

Halloween Witches

An old black witch with her tall
Painted hat,
Followed by a lean and hungry cat,
Scared the girls and scared the boys
Who ran away with a terrible noise.

She followed them with her broom stick, too;
They ran so fast that they fairly flew.
When mothers and fathers heard of this plight
They told the children to stay home
at night.

For that is the time when witches appear.
October thirty-first every year.
—Beatrice Smyth.

Halloween

I'd like to be a witch, I think,
When all the sky is black as ink.
To ride upon a broom stick, too.
To have such lots of things to do.

I'd like to scare the girls and boys.
Wouldn't they make a lot of noise!
I'd jump and fly, right into the sky,
Then I'd tell them all good-bye.

I'd sit on the moon all the long year thru
And plan all the wonderful things
I'd do,
When the next Halloween is drawing near,
I'll be ready, never you fear.
—Frances Hatch.

Halloween

A Halloween witch went out one
night,
To give to the people a terrible fright
She rode on her broom stick all the way,
And landed on top of a high stack of hay.

And then, do you know, she jumped from that stack
With a monstrous black cat seated behind her back.
The moon saw her tricks and so brightly she shone,
That she scared all the people, then rode away home.
—Emily Kent.

Halloween Preparations

The witches are getting ready to fly;
The mothers now give many a sigh,
The girls have sheets to wear that
night;
The old black cat licks her fur pure white.

Chairs are taken in from the porches;
The older boys are making torches,
The broom that laid in the corner is gone;
And will not be back until early next morn.

Jack O'Lanterns are everywhere seen;
With mouth and eyes and nose between,
'Tis all of these things together you see;
That make a Halloween such a day
of glee.
—Alfred Stafford.

Halloween Night at Hackett

All Hackett was excited! Even the old ladies sat out on the porch and watched. The Mayor of Hackett had promised some excitement that night.

About five o'clock if you had been watching the old church steeple you would have seen ten men ascend the stairs to the belfry. Five carried an enormous bundle, the others followed with smaller parcels. Inside of one bundle could be heard a purring sound.
When they reached the top one lighted a dim lamp and they set about their business.

The first two men tied white cloths
to two of the west aways.
Then the men opened the smaller parcels; afterwards the big bundle.
Just at that time another man came up the stairs with a large pole. Out of one of the bundles came a small piece of wire netting which one of the men tied to the pole.

"Wonder if Dolly will stick to this," observed one of the men tapping the pole.

The big bundle contained various parts of a machine which were soon put together.

About half-past six a light flared up and then was shown in big letters from behind the screen, "Witch Hollowheart starts her trip, 7 P. M."

Before seven the people collected in the streets chatting, squabbling and laughing.

As the old clock tolled seven there seemed to be a great flutter of wings and a strange looking bird darted from the belfry. A queer looking object was on its back evidently holding a pole. On the end was a figure of a cat. The strange bird hovered over the crowd for a few seconds.

Then there was heard a rushing sound as the bird suddenly shot down, dropping goodies on the crowd. A faint voice cried, "Scramble!"

Then the bird flew over to the green. It suddenly swooped down.
The occupant jumped out and the bird landed a few feet away.

And then, how the pumpkins glared! The occupant of the bird cut capers; the cat arched her back at the pumpkins which had been lighted.
While this was going on the crowd made a mad rush for the green, but in a twinkling the bird with its cargo was gone.

Strange noises were heard in the air and there were four witches mounted on birds similar to the other one. They did all sorts of things and last of all they joined hands all on one bird and danced a witches' dance;
then each leaped to their bird and flew away. Just then the old clock struck ten and from the belfry appeared the sign, "Good Night."

—Reginald Capon.

The Pumpkin's Story

One spring day long before I was born, Mr. Williams, the farmer, said to his son, "Thomas, I think it's about time you were planting those pumpkins for me! Go and do it this minute!"

The boy went sulkily out and started to plant the seeds in the tomato bed.
His father, luckily, came out before he had planted many and made him dig them out. He got them all out but one which happened to be the seed that I came from. So that is how I grew in the tomato bed.

One day the farmer came out to pick his pumpkins and passed right by me and never looked at me.

I waited and waited till it got awfully cold but yet he never came.
One morning a little poor boy came and saw me. He ran as fast as he could to ask Mr. Williams if he could have me. Mr. Williams consented and off he ran with me, dropping me several times for I was quite heavy and large.

The little boy to my astonishment, took a sharp knife and cut a face in me and whittled out my insides. It made me look so funny. That evening I was stuck on a pole with a lighted candle inside of me. Some children saw me and ran. I tried to run after them and comfort them but as I jumped to the ground I crashed.

The next morning the little boy came out and said, "Well, I guess you served a good purpose, Old Pumpkin.
It's too bad you got crushed though.
You will have to be thrown away now.
Goodbye, Old Beauty! good bye!" And he threw me in the rubbish. That will have to be the end of my story for I lived no longer.
—Josephine Hurst.

A Halloween Party

It was drawing near the end of a rather chilly October day, and I had just finished my witch costume for the evening.

I had decorated the house with Jack O' Lanterns and cornstalks from the garden and in the growing twilight
the house looked very "spooky."

The guests began to arrive and there were many witches, ghosts and goblins.

When every one had been shown through the house from garret to cellar, where many witches and goblins were hidden, we assembled in the parlor and dined on apples or threw chestnuts on the fire.

At about seven o'clock the folding doors were thrown open disclosing a table loaded with goodies. Every one made a rush for the same seats and we had quite a scramble before all were seated.

After supper we had our fortunes told and played games until half past ten. Then we said goodnight and my friends went home. I was very tired and happy. I hope I will have as pleasant a Halloween this year as last.

—Helen Sheldon.

A Halloween Party

It was Halloween day; Jack and Margaret were very much excited because they had been invited to a party that afternoon.

"Oh dear, I wish the time would hurry up and come, I don't want to wait for this afternoon," said Margaret.

At quarter of three they started across the street and were met at the door by the maid who told them to go around by the cellar door, where they would be let in.

At the cellar door they were told to go up the cellar stairs which were lighted only by Jack O' lanterns.

Half way up the stairs they saw something white come creeping down the stairs.

"Oh! What is that?" they both said together.

It was a ghost! He went slowly down the stairs and put out a white, thin hand towards them to the parlors with them. But Margaret didn't know what he was going to do.
She screamed and ran up the stairs.

At the top of the stairs they were met by Helen, the little girl who was giving the party. She took them into the parlor where there were a lot of other little boys and girls.

Then the games began and what fun
they had!

After a while Helen told them one by one to go up stairs and have their fortunes told.

They had to go into a dark room where an old witch was sitting. She told their fortune by the light of a Jack O' lantern.

A quarter of six the dining-room doors were opened and they marched in to supper.

In the middle of the table was a big pumpkin. A lot of colored strings were coming out of his mouth and each child pulled a string and got a prize.

There were a lot of nice things to eat.

When they were just starting to go home Helen said, "Here is a paper
Jack O' lantern for you to take home.
But don't open it till you're way home."

When Margaret and Jack opened theirs at home they found all sorts of candy in the shape of witches and cats and Jack O' lanterns. How good they tasted!

At seven o'clock Margaret and Jack went to bed and dreamt about witches and ghosts and Jack O' lanterns.
—Martha Carter.

years under Gen. G. A. Custer, on the plains; also among the K. K. K.'s, the Moonshiners, and White Leaguers, of the Southern States, and fired the first shot in the Battle of the Little Big Horn, will give "War" at 8 o'clock sharp.

The general committee includes the pastor, Rev. William W. Ryan, and Deacons George W. Weeks, James Spikes, Charles Robertson, George
Timothy Lawson, and Frank Cooper.

A SONG OF THANKSGIVING

On the morrow I must rise,
Firm of will and clear of eyes;
Strong to bear the light of day,
Brave to lift my voice and say:
God, I thank Thee that I live;
Yea, for all that Thou dost give,
Joy and sorrow, blessing, pain,
Health and sickness, loss and gain,
Thank Thee for the power to see
E'en through tears Thy love for me;
Knowing that the good, the scourge,
Oath my lagged spirit urge Toward new heights—new realms of peace
Where Thou givest it release, Haste thee then. Thanksgiving-morrow.

HALLOWEEN PARTY

The Summer P. Lawrence Lodge of Rebekahs, No. 177, I. O. O. F., held a most enjoyable Halloween party on Thursday evening at Odd Fellows Hall, Newtonville.

A bountiful harvest supper was served at 6.20 o'clock followed by whist and dancing.

The Newtonian Orchestra of Newtonville furnished music for the dancing and made a decided "hit," the program including the most popular music of the day, which was greatly enjoyed by those present.

A novel feature was the "Ghost Dance," which was a surprise, and afforded great amusement.

Much credit is due the committee who spared no pains to make the occasion a success.

THE GROWTH OF GOVERNMENTAL REGULATION

By Samuel L. Powers.

The framers of the Federal Constitution had in mind a limitation upon the functions of Government which ought to be exercised, and they adopted only those which they regarded as absolutely essential for the life and welfare of the Nation. Evidently they believed in permitting this country to be developed through individual effort, and with the least possible governmental interference. Until a very recent period no one ever questioned the wisdom of this policy.

Our people believed that civilization was dependent upon the progress of the individual, and the greater his progress the greater the general progress of mankind. We Americans had every reason for this belief. We had no reason to favor the substitution of a paternal government for individual self-dependence.

The millions who have crossed the seas to become citizens of our country have been largely influenced to do so by the belief that they could better their condition through individual freedom in the conduct of their own affairs. They believed in the doctrine of Thomas Jefferson, that "that government governs best which governs least."

No Nation ever advanced as rapidly as our own under the stimulus of individual freedom in commercial life. Within the past generation, however, the sentiment in favor of a paternal government has taken strong hold on the minds of the American people.

There are two distinct theories of the economic functions of government. One may be called the individualistic, and the other the socialistic. One is founded on the belief that noninterference with the individual should be the leading principle of government and interference the exception only. The other is founded upon the belief that all industries which minister to the welfare and convenience of substantially all the inhabitants should be owned, supervised or controlled by the Government. Under the first theory the working units control the ruling units, and under the second theory the ruling units control the working units.

France is the best illustration we have of the first theory, and Germany of the second. In no country in the world is individual freedom in commercial affairs so fully protected as in France. The success of the individual contributes to the success of the Republic. In Germany, however, the sentiment in favor of a paternal government has taken strong hold on the minds of the German people. The Government of the Empire of Germany is thoroughly paternal. It creates its own standards and ideals, and every individual is supposed to strive to conform to them.

In this country there is a rapidly growing sentiment in favor of the German or socialistic theory. There has been a tremendous increase in the exercise of Federal power during the past 30 years. Under the welfare clause of the Constitution, and under its taxation power, together with the authority to regulate interstate and foreign commerce, it has been found that the Federal Government may exercise, under the provisions of the Constitution, a control and supervision of commercial life which was never thought possible in the early days of the Republic.

Our people demand that customs duties shall be levied with a view of fostering and stimulating certain industries. This we call incidental protection. Our people demand that the merchant shall be protected from unfair competition, and to that end Congress enacts laws which interfere with individual freedom in commerce. Our people demand a regulation of the rates charged by transportation companies for the protection of the shipper and the traveling public.

They demand appropriations for the preservation of forests, for the construction of good roads, for the establishment of departments to furnish expert knowledge relative to the cultivation of the soil, the raising of grains and vegetables, the cultivation of flowers, and even for the breeding of animals and the propagation of fish. At the present time the Federal Government is expending more than $700,000,000 per annum for the distribution of seeds, of shade trees, grapevines and strawberry plants.

This exercise of paternalism has a tendency to bring the people a little closer to their Government and stimulates a love of the Nation which we call patriotism. There probably is no people in the world so devoted to their country as are the Germans, and it is undoubtedly true that this growing paternalism on the part of the United States toward its people is creating an increased regard and love for the Nation.—Boston Globe.

IS PAINTING BY FIREMEN MANUAL LABOR OR EXERCISE?

Is painting manual labor or simply exercise for physical development? The fire commissioners of Buffalo, N. Y., asked the Corporation Counsel officially to express an opinion on that question; also to defend the commissioners in a taxpayer's action brought by A. J. March to restrain firemen from painting interiors of fire stations. A temporary injunction is sought by March, who asserts that fire commissioners have no right to order firemen to paint, that their jurisdiction is confined to approving plans for repairs and alteration, and that this "amateur" painting is wasteful and injurious to property. The commissioners, in defense, contended that painting is an exercise for the firemen who are instructed to devote as much time as is possible and consistent to physical development, and the commissioners claim painting is in line with this development.

BUSINESS AND THE CHURCHES

The churches have been so long regarded from the spiritual standpoint, and as objects of charity, that their great value as business factors has been frequently overlooked. A few years ago, a police commissioner in New York remarked that the average church in New York, regardless of denomination, "did as much to promote good order as eight policemen." The cost of eight policemen with all other expenses associated with them is between fifteen and twenty thousand dollars. This includes cost of arrests, police courts and other expenses of the criminal classes. The average annual church budget is not half so great. The average salary of the ministers in America is about one-half as much as that of a New York policeman.

In round figures, the country spends on its public schools a half billion dollars. An equal amount is spent for motion pictures, theatres and entertainment. Four times that amount is spent for liquors of various kinds, and twice the amount for tobacco according to careful estimates, yet all the Churches get along with less than a quarter billion dollars, or less than the amount which is spent for ice cream, candy and soda water. Moreover they are one of the most desirable business assets of any community. The real estate promoter starts his building operations with a church whenever possible. The residential section of our cities want churches while they exclude other kinds of buildings.

The churches in all ages and lands seem to have been the chief inspiration and promoters of art, the leaders in education and reform and the champions of law and good government. Before and since Columbus was sent forth by Isabella to discover and convert new lands, the church has led the way in discovery. Trade has followed in paths made by missionaries in all lands and times. Without entering into a discussion of its admitted chief work as a religious force, the church has always been one of the greatest factors in business and one of the best investments of the human race.—W. C. Poole in Truth.

"IT CAN BE DONE"

Somebody said that it couldn't be done. But he, with a chuckle, replied: "That maybe it couldn't be he would be one. Who wouldn't say so till he'd tried. So he buckled right in, with the trace of a grin. On his face; if he worried, he hid it. He started to sing as he tackled the thing. That couldn't be done—and he did it."

Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that— At least no one ever has done it." But he took off his coat, and he took off his hat, And the first thing we knew he'd begun it; With the lift of his chin and a bit of a grin. Without any doubting or quidding; He started to sing as he tackled the thing. That couldn't be done—and he did it."

There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done; There are thousands to prophesy failure; There are thousands to point out to you, one by one, The dangers that wait to assail you. But just buckle in with a bit of grin, Then take off your coat and so to it, Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing. That "cannot be done"—and you'll do it.

GRAND OPERA

The fifth week of the season is to open with the company's first presentation of "La Traviata," familiar in its dramatic form as "Camille." The difficult "Ah, fors e lui" will be sung by Miriam Ardini. The opera will be given on both Monday evening and Wednesday afternoon. The remarkable reception given Ciccolini for his work in "La Boheme" has led to a demand for another presentation of this ever popular Puccini opera which will perform on Tuesday evening. Ciccolini again appearing with Millo Picco and a strong cast as before. "Faust," will be the opera for Wednesday and Friday evenings. Johanna Kristoff will add to her laurels in the part of Marguerite and Miss Alice Gentle will be the Siebel. "Un Ballo in Maschera," is to be given on Thursday evening with Oppezo repeating his dramatic role in the role of Governor Richard, Count of Warwick, and Ramon Blanchard his marvelous interpretation of the part of Reinart, the unhappy secretary. Another performance which always commands attention and satisfied lovers of dramatic music is "Tosca" to complete the week on Saturday evening. Johanna Kristoff will sing Tosca, repeating her great success of last week and Corradetti will be the Scarpia. Next Sunday evening the customary popular concert will be given by the principal artists of the company.

LODGES

More than 40 members of Newton Council, K. C., all members of Bishop Cheverus Assembly, held their annual banquet at the Revere House Monday night. State Deputy Watson, State Secretary Daniel J. Gallagher, M. Joseph O'Donnell and John Gordon were guests. William H. Maguire was toastmaster. P. A. Murray, who has returned from a visit in Europe, told his experiences in Germany, where he was held for a time on suspicion of being an English spy.

Mayor Childs has received from the Governor and the State Board of Labor Industries an invitation to attend a conference at the Copley-Plaza today at 10 A. M., when the situation pertaining to labor in the State will be considered and means discussed to improve conditions among the laboring people.

In a letter, the State Board calls attention to the fact that there are 25,000 factories, mills and workshops in the State, yet there are thousands of skilled men who are unemployed.

FIRE PROOF MOTOR APPARATUS STATIONS

Fire Prevention Commissioner O'Keefe, of Massachusetts, has informed fire departments in that state what they must do to make all motor fire apparatus stations fire proof. In the first place the space used for the storage of motor fire apparatus must have a cement or concrete floor. Its walls shall be constructed of fireproof material or metal lined and it shall have a metal or fireproof ceiling. The windows shall have metal frames for the glass and where they open out in near contact with other property the panes shall be of wired glass. In other words, hereafter, in all stations used for the storage of apparatus using gasoline, either for tractors or pumps, or having automobile motive power, the building shall be made as near fireproof as it is possible to make it, and the roofs of all such houses shall be slated or of non-combustible material. This means the rebuilding of many fire stations, which not a few believe is not necessary. They say that fire stations with firemen and fire apparatus in them all the time are safe enough as they are, and that there is no just reason for reconstructing old stations just to make them absolutely fireproof, which, if carried into effect, means the reconstruction of hundreds of practically new stations, which are now as near fireproof as any actual necessity requires. The construction of new stations, they say, should be in accordance with the commissioner's regulations, but old stations should not be disturbed to any extent, as they are under constant fire protection by the men and apparatus occupying them. Deputy Chief George C. Neal, of the District Police, who is the fire marshal of the State, had already started on this very thing, the requirement that fire department houses, especially those housing motor apparatus of any kind, shall be made fireproof before the office of fire prevention commissioner was created. The new metropolitan fire hazard act makes the power of the fire prevention commissioner mandatory and he intends that there shall be no more delay than is absolutely necessary.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT

A disabled automobile which was being towed by its owner, A. B. Cobb of Waltham, and which was being operated by Edward Holmes of Waltham, came into collision with an electric light pole at the corner of Lexington and River streets, West Newton last week Thursday afternoon, badly damaging the car and causing the driver to suffer from a broken leg. When the two cars tried to make the corner of the streets the steering gear refused to work and the smaller car crashed into the pole. Young Holmes was removed to the Waltham Hospital in the automobile by Mr. Cobb.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Never has there been preached a truer, more powerful, more effective warning against the grave dangers lurking in the feminine folly for dress than in "To-Day," George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer's vital and vivid drama of life which is now on its third week at the Majestic Theatre, Boston. Another, scarcely less important moral to be gleaned from "To-Day," is the pitfalls which are dug for loyal wives by demons of their own sex. Seldom has a more evenly balanced and competent cast than the one presenting "To-Day" been seen in Boston. It took Harry Von Tilzer, the managing director, one year to assemble for its interpretation those players who he has considered best equipped to portray the various characters.
